PREFACE TO THIRD EDITION.

THE scope of this book has been much enlarged in the present edition. About one hundred and fifty forms have been omitted as unnecessary and obsolete—largely under the titles of Pensions and Pre-Emptions and Homesteads. About four hundred and fifty new forms have been added, chiefly under the chapters upon Chattel Mortgages, Contracts, Deeds, Leases and Mortgages. There has also been added a very full digest of the statutes of the several states and dependencies relating to chattel mortgages, conditional sales, deeds and real property, leases, mortgages and wills. This statement of the law has added several hundred pages to the volume and made it not only a compilation of forms but also, it is believed, the most complete compilation extant of some of the most important branches of the statute law, with a statement of the exact places where that law may be found in the latest official compilations of the statutes of the several States and dependencies.

The forms which have been added have been taken from those in actual and ordinary use in actual and important transactions. For instance, there have been given the deed of trust under which the controlling stock of the Equitable Life Assurance Society was deposited after its acquisition by Thomas F. Ryan from James H. Hyde (form 720); the form of proxy officially used by the United States Steel Corporation (form 1520); the patent lease and license of the United Shoe Machinery Company (form 723), and many other forms of equal importance. No merely academic forms drawn for use in such a work as this, and without the assistance of clients and the criticisms of opposing counsel, can be as valuable as forms taken from actual practice.

Such a very voluminous work is largely valueless without a complete index which shall directly point the reader to its important features. With this in mind the index has been enlarged to cover all the new forms added so that the reader can easily get at, not only the form itself, but also its important provisions. In its present shape this volume contains at least twice as much printed matter as any other similar work.

CLARENCE F. BIRDSEYE.

A Collection of Forms of Conveyancing, Contracts, Etc.

THIRD EDITION.

CHAPTER I.

ABSTRACTS OF TITLE.

The customs in relation to abstracts of title have materially changed since the wide introduction of title companies and title insurance companies. An abstract of title is a document presenting in a connected form the substance of the various instruments affecting the ownership of real property and especially the "chain of title" or the instruments through which the title is to be traced back. It is the appropriate means of laying before one who contemplates buying the property the history of the title which the seller proposes to convey. In the early times in England the purchaser was presumed to receive from the attorney or conveyancer in charge of his interests an abstract of the title and also the original earlier deeds through which his title was derived. Therefore, in England abstracts have an importance in conveyancing which they have never acquired in the United States. There are well settled rules governing the duties of parties to real estate transactions relative to the preparation and verification of the abstracts and the art of preparing these documents is far advanced and has been the subject of several important legal works.¹

In the United States the statutes requiring that all deeds and mortgages, etc., must be recorded in order to give notice to subsequent purchasers and others have taken away the relative importance of abstracts of title. Nevertheless it has been the custom in the United States for the conveyancer to prepare and give to his client, the purchaser, an abstract bringing the title

He must cause an abstract to be prepared and furnished to the buyer, giving him an opportunity to verify it by comparison with any original deeds in the seller's possession or otherwise, as circumstances may admit; and until this is done, the buyer is not bound to accept a deed, or pay purchase-money. Upon the buyer, however, devolves the labor or expense of verifying the statement furnished; of ascertaining that it correctly states the original deeds, etc., and determining that the title proffered is one which he is satisfied to accept.

In the United States, many circumstances—such as the comparative youthfulness, so to speak, of our land titles, the very general extension and completeness of systems of recording deeds, the moderate values of landed property, and the characteristic inclination of our people for sales and exchanges,—have prevented any such necessity for these abstracts as has arisen in English practice. For American works on this subject, see Curwen's (Maskell E.) Manual upon the Searching of Records and the Preparation of Abstracts of Title to Real Property: Cincinnati: Clarke & Co., 1865. Tuttle, Farm Titles in N. Y. City, 3 v., 1877-81; down to the date of the purchase, and this abstract has been used by subsequent purchasers to bring their title down to date. A copy of this abstract has usually been kept by the conveyancer for his own future use and guidance. The earlier form of abstract is given in form No. 2 hereafter, but the business done by title companies has become so much larger and more important than that of the ordinary attorney that it is proper to speak first of the newer form of abstract. This is usually brought down upon uniform sheets of paper about 9½ to 10½ by 5½ inches. Sheets devoted to different kinds of instruments are distinguished by different colors of paper. For example, the cover and all deeds will be upon white paper, mortgages upon yellow paper, wills upon pink paper, references to actions upon green, covenants upon red and incorporations upon blue. The best forms provide for plenty of blank sheets corresponding in color to the various main sheets on which to enter any information under this subdivision which cannot be put upon the first sheet. These sheets, ruled lengthwise upon the length of the sheet, are uniformly punched upon the left-hand side, so that they can be easily bound together when made up. After the first page comes a blank sheet upon which are to be written the various objections to the title or other matters which should be brought at once to the attention of the conveyancer. This is succeeded by a sheet of cross section quadrille paper, which is well adapted for making maps. The forms of the several sheets are as follows:

In places where land values are relatively important, or where titles have become complicated, they are used; but we believe their use is regulated rather by convenience and courtesy of parties than by any distinct recognition of the English rules above stated as a part of the American law of conveyancing. The system, so universal in America, of recording deeds, whereby public notice is given of almost all transfers of real property, has tended strongly to diminish the necessity for the use of abstracts. And we understand the American rule to be, that where the memorandum of the contract of sale contains no provisions expressly requiring the seller to furnish one, he is not bound to do so; but the contract is satisfied on his part by the tender of a competent deed, on the contract day, if the title of the seller is actually perfect. To relieve from payment of the price, the buyer should show some defect in the title, and not merely that the chain of conveyances was not made known to him.

The older form of abstract of title proceeds upon a somewhat different plan.

Time of Commencing.—When an abstract is to be prepared, a preliminary question is, at what date the search shall commence. Upon theory, the chain of conveyances should be traced back to some date anterior to the time from which adverse possession is, by force of the statute of limitations, equivalent to a perfect title. But in applying this rule, a large allowance is evidently necessary for the exceptions which the statute makes in favor of infants, lunatics, married women, and other persons under a disability to sue. In England, where the limits of the statute are fixed at forty years, the practice requires that titles should be traced back for sixty years; and this rule may be considered as desirable in the older states of our Union, except so far as variations in the time prescribed for adverse possession to quiet the title, may modify it. In the western states generally, and wherever lands have been settled under grants from the federal government, an abstract is sufficient which traces the title back to the patent granted by the United States. But it is very frequently the case that a client is satisfied to take the title of some owner for granted, knowing that it has been pronounced good in the courts, or bears an unquestioned reputation, and instructs the conveyancer to commence his search at the conveyance by that owner. Where this is intended, the abstract should state in the caption the instruction given, in order that the conveyancer may appear to take no responsibility for the anterior period.

Facts not Matter of Record.—There are many facts affecting title to lands which are not necessarily evidenced by any documents or records subject to the conveyancer's inspection. Hence an abstract may be full—that is, may state every important portion of all instruments involved, and may exhibit a good title—and yet there may exist facts which create a defect. Marriage may have created an undisclosed right of dower; alienage a liability to escheat; or death have caused the land to descend; yet nothing appear upon the record to indicate the fact. So it may be that the seller is kept out of possession by an adverse claimant; in which case, in several of the states, he is, by statute, forbidden to convey.¹ And there are other similar cases. No absolute duty rests upon the conveyancer to elicit facts of this description. He should make such inquiry as the record suggests and the circumstances admit. When inquiry is made as to some fact of this description, it is usual and convenient to annex to the abstract the affidavit of the informant upon the matter in question.

Order and Arrangement.—The object of the counsel in preparing an abstract is to present a statement of every fact, and an epitome of every deed, will, or other document or record, upon which the validity of the title depends; which, while free from all unnecessary details, shall answer all reasonable inquiries, and shall be sufficiently methodical and lucid in its order and arrangement, to enable a qualified person to form his opinion upon the chain of title as he proceeds from point to point in reading. It is obviously impossible to give forms which can be followed as guides, so much depends on the circumstances of the individual case; but the outline of an abstract presented below illustrates the method employed.

At the outset occurs a caption, which states the name of the person whose title is presented, and describes the property which is the subject of examination. It is convenient to accompany this description with a map or diagram of the lot, and of any surrounding landmarks referred to throughout the paper. Then follow the various deeds, wills, etc., through which the title is deduced; and these, if the chain is sufficiently simple, are best arranged in chronological order. Where, however, one portion of the property is derived from one source, and another portion from another, it is convenient to trace the title to one portion down to a point where both are found to belong to one owner, then to go back and trace the title of the residue down to the same point, and then, from that time, to trace the title of the whole, down to the date of inquiry. The various documents abstracted should be numbered in their order, to assist reference. At the end of the list of transfers, is placed such certificate as the counsel thinks it expedient to give, as to the completeness of the title. And to the whole are appended such official searches, and other paper proofs that the land is free from other incumbrances and liens, as the nature of the case requires.

X. Y. Z.

To premises fronting upon Fifty-first street, in the city of New York, and described as follows:

Beginning at a point on the southerly side of Fifty-first street, distant one hundred and fifty feet east of the easterly side of the Third avenue; running thence easterly along Fifty-first street fifty feet; thence southerly and parallel with said avenue, one hundred feet and five inches to the centre line of the block; thence westerly and parallel with Fifty-first street, fifty feet; thence northerly and parallel with Third avenue, one hundred feet five inches to the place of beginning.

This parcel of land comprises two city lots, both of which were many years ago embraced in what is known as the Old Elm farm, which was conveyed, some time prior to 1836, to Messrs. A. B. and C. D. I am instructed to assume their title as good at the date of the conveyance first mentioned below. The title to the two lots continues united until 1844, when they were separately conveyed, as appears by the deeds marked VII and XI respectively.

By the deeds marked X and XIII they were subsequently both vested in Q. R., from whom the title of Mr. X. Y. Z. is deduced.

Recites the deed of last above mentioned, numbered XI, and the death of S. T., leaving the parties of the first part, his widow and heirs-at-law, and conveys the same lot as is described in the deed numbered XI, above, together with the buildings thereon.

Habendum in trust to sell and convey the same as soon as an advantageous price can be obtained, and invest the proceeds in dividend-paying stocks, for the benefit of Mrs. Ellen T., for her life, with remainder to the three sons.

Mrs. T. is made a party for the purpose of relinquishing her right of dower.

Q. R.

Deed dated August 16, 1854. Ackd.
August 16, 1854. Recorded Sept. 1,
1854, in Liber 540 of Convs., p. 307.
Consid., $8,000.

Recites last-mentioned deed, and conveys same premises by same description. Habendum in fee.

Covenants against grantors' acts only.

A mortgage for $5,000, part of the purchase money, recorded in Liber 159 of Mortgages, p. 200, has been discharged of record.

From this point, both lots will be considered together.

Q. R. appears to have been an alien; but any right in these lots which would have arisen to the people of the state, by escheat, was released to his son, by the following act:

XIV.

An Act to release the interest of the people of this state in certain lands in the city of New York, conveyed by A. F. N. and U. V. to Q. R., and which escheated, on his death, to his son, James Henry R.

Passed June 4, 1855, by a two-thirds vote. Session Laws, ch. 210, p. 360.

Enacts that all the right, title, interest, and estate of the people of this state, acquired by escheat, upon the death of Q. R., late of the city of New York, in and to the premises described in the heading to this abstract, are released to his son, James Henry R.

I find no evidence of the alienage, marriage, or death of Q. R., except such inference as may be drawn from the above act. But assuming those facts to be true, it is evidently possible that his widow may be still living.

Inasmuch as, by Laws of 1845, ch. 115, the wife of an alien is declared entitled to dower, and as the releasing act above mentioned purports to convey only the interest of the people, I am of opinion that the wife of Q. R., if she survived him, was dowable in these lands. It cannot well be contended that the act of release above mentioned, though later in date, overrides the provisions of the act of 1845. I find no release or transfer of this right.¹

Conveys the premises in question, with the buildings thereon, by the description employed in the heading to this abstract.

Habendum in fee, but subject to the mortgage last above mentioned, which grantee assumes to pay.

Covenants of seizure; of power to convey; for quiet possession; against incumbrances, except said mortgage; for further assurance; and for warranty.

From an examination of the transfers above mentioned, and the affidavit and searches annexed, I am of opinion that X. Y. Z. is seized of a good estate, in fee-simple, in the premises in question, subject only to a right of dower in Mrs. Q. R., if living, and to the mortgage above mentioned, marked XVI.

[Here may follow any affidavit or exhibit referred to in the abstract, and the official certificates of the register of deeds, county clerk, and other proper officers, showing the premises free from incumbrances, taxes, etc., except as disclosed in the abstract. ¹ Aliens.—No general rule can be stated as to the rights of aliens to take and hold real property in the United States, although there is a marked tendency to liberality in the tenor and application of the laws bearing on the subject. It is advisable to consult the state statutes of the date of the transfer. As to present law in New York, see Birdseye, C. & G. Cons. Laws, pp. 4921-4928.

CHAPTER II.

ACKNOWLEDGMENT AND PROOF OF DEEDS.

A DEED is said to be acknowledged, when the person executing it comes before a public officer who is authorized for the purpose, and admits to him that it is a genuine instrument, and voluntarily made, and the officer certifies the fact in proper form upon the deed.

A deed is said to be proved, when a witness comes before the officer and testifies to its genuineness, and the officer certifies thereto in the same way.

These officers are usually justices of the peace, commissioners of deeds, notaries public, and judges or clerks of courts.

The certificate of the officer is commonly designated the acknowledgment, or the proof.

The mode and the effect of thus authenticating a deed of lands is governed by the law of the state or territory where the lands lie, not by that of the place where the parties may be when it is executed. For obvious reasons of convenience, however, it has been enacted in the statutes of most of the states, that a deed of lands therein, executed without the state, and either within or without the United States, may be executed or acknowledged, or both, pursuant to the law of the place of its execution, with like effect as if it were done according to the law of the place of the property.

Where a deed is executed and acknowledged without the state, in pursuance of such a statute, there must be entire conformity with the one law or the other, both as to the officer and as to the contents of the certificate. The laws of both states cannot be invoked to sustain an acknowledgment manifestly defective when tested by either.

General Principles.—The following remarks will illustrate the general principles of American law upon this topic. It will be observed that these principles are subject, however, to numerous local exceptions, which, so far as they relate to the form of proceeding, are noticed at the head of the forms given for each state.

In general, the function of acknowledgment or proof is twofold—to entitle the deed to be recorded, and to entitle it to be read in evidence in courts of justice, without further proof of its authenticity. The act is not essential to the bare validity of a deed, although it is almost indispensable to the security of a purchaser. In a few of the states, acknowledgment and record are necessary to pass title, even as against the grantor. Formerly, the laws of most of the states provided that a wife's deed was not valid unless upon a private examination, made separate from her husband, she acknowledged that she executed the deed without fear or compulsion. This law has been changed in many of the states, especially at the West.

Where a deed is executed by an attorney in fact, the more common practice is to have the power of attorney acknowledged or proved as the act of the principal, and to have the deed acknowledged or proved as the act of the attorney, and to have both recorded.

In a great many of the states it is the rule that proof, by the oath of one or more subscribing witnesses (except as to a married woman's execution of a deed under the laws of those states which require her to be personally and separately examined), is equivalent to an acknowledgment by the grantor in person. In a number of the states, however, no provision is made for proof by witnesses, except in case an acknowledgment cannot be procured.

In most of the states it is the rule, that a deed executed by several grantors should be acknowledged by or proved as to each one of them. An acknowledgment by one of them may suffice to get the deed on record, but the omission of any acknowledgment by the others may raise doubts on the part of subsequent purchasers. It is, however, only those who convey or release some interest in the land who need unite in the acknowledgment. A grantee who executes the deed merely to bind himself by personal covenants, need not do so.

Officers authorized to take acknowledgment or proof, are generally limited in the exercise of such authority to the place or district for which they are appointed; judges, courts and clerks of courts being limited to the territorial jurisdiction of their tribunal.

The Forms.—Although as a general rule it is enough if the certificate shows a substantial compliance with the statute, and formal and verbal departures from the form and words of the statute are not regarded as fatal, yet language of the same force and import must be used; and it is best to follow the words of the act so far as they can serve as a guide, and for the rest to pursue the methods of establishing precedents.

Care is necessary on the part of the officer as to the form of the certificate which he signs, whether it be drawn by him or drawn by a party or attorney; as he may, perhaps, be chargeable with damages resulting from the use of an insufficient certificate. A mistake in the certificate may be corrected by the officer who made it, at any time afterward during his term of office; except that where the statute makes the validity of the instrument depend upon the record, he cannot amend his certificate after the deed has been recorded.

In the following pages are given, under the names of the several states and territories of the Union, forms for all ordinary cases, framed in this way, agreeably to the laws and the practice of their respective jurisdictions. As the laws of New York on this subject have been copied in several other states, and the practice there is well settled, we give among the forms for that state a large number adapted to peculiar cases, which will be found serviceable guides in framing certificates for similar cases in other states generally.

In respect to the use of the forms, it is the better practice in all cases to write the certificate upon the same paper on which the instrument is written; although in some states the law or settled practice sanction a certificate upon a separate paper, firmly annexed. Any material erasures or interlineations in a conveyance should be noted previous to the execution, above the place where the witnesses are to sign; and if not so noted, should be mentioned in the officer's certificate of proof or acknowledgment. The signature of the officer should be followed by his official designation or title. When the proof or acknowledgment of an instrument is taken in one state or territory to be used in another, the venue of the certificate should designate that in which the proof or acknowledgment is taken; and the body of the certificate should, according to the general usage, give the official title of the officer at full length; and his signature, with his official seal, should be accompanied by his official title.

In the following pages, the law of acknowledgment in each state is treated under five different heads:

I. Whether or not a seal or scroll is necessary.

II. The law as to witnesses.

III. The statute as to whether a husband or wife must join in the deed, or whether a separate examination of the wife is necessary.

IV. The officers before whom acknowledgments may be taken (a) within the state, (b) without the state and within the United States, and (c) without the United States.

V. The form of the acknowledgments. Where such form is prescribed by law, the statutory form is given; otherwise the form in common use in that jurisdiction.

In accordance with the endeavor which has been made to bring about uniformity of legislation within the several states of the Union, a uniform system of acknowledging and proving instruments relating to real property has been adopted by the following states: Iowa, Code Supplement 1907, §§ 2943, 2943a; Massachusetts, Revised Laws 1902, ch. 127, §§ 18-22; Michigan, Compiled Laws 1897, §§ 9018-9022; Minnesota, Revised Laws 1905, § 2684; Missouri, Annotated Statutes 1906, § 913; New Mexico, Laws 1907, ch. 37, § 17. Several other states have adopted forms substantially like those mentioned above, but with some variation.

When any conveyance, mortgage, or other instrument required to be recorded is acknowledged in any county in this state other than the one in which the same is required to be recorded, the acknowledgment shall be certified by the clerk of the circuit court of the county in which such officer resides, and attested by the seal of said court; but an acknowledgment before an officer having an official seal, if attested by such official seal, shall be sufficient without such certificate. Ibid., § 3966.

(b) To entitle to record, in this state, conveyances out of this state and within the United States, the same must be certified by the clerk of any court of record of the county in which the officer receiving the acknowledgment resides, and attested by the seal of said court; but an acknowledgment before an officer having an official seal, attested by his official seal, shall be sufficient without such certificate. Ibid., § 3967.

All deeds may be proved according to the rules of common law, before any officer authorized to take acknowledgments, and being so proved, shall be entitled to record. Ibid., § 3968.

Where by law the certificate of the clerk of the proper county is required to accompany the acknowledgment, the said certificate shall set forth that the officer before whom such acknowledgment was taken was, at the time, lawfully acting as such, and that his signature to the certificate of acknowledgment is genuine.

Wherever, before any public officer duly authorized to receive acknowledgment of deeds, the grantor of any deed shall sign the same with his or her mark (and also in all other cases in which the said public officer shall have good cause to believe that the contents and purport of said deed are not fully known to the grantor thereof), it shall be the duty of the said public officer, before signature, fully to explain to him or her the contents and purport of the said deed. CHAPTER III.

ADOPTION OF MINORS.

NOTE.—This subject is regulated by statute. Adoption did not exist at common law, and all legislation on the subject is of rather recent date. To make adoption effectual, a strict compliance with the statutory provisions is always necessary. The provisions regulating this subject in New York state are contained in the Domestic Relations Law, §§ 110–118; Birdseye, C. & G. Cons. Laws, pp. 1074–1082; R. S., 2d ed., pp. 937–941, and are in brief as follows:

Voluntary adoption is any other than of an indigent child, or one who is a public charge, from an orphan asylum or charitable institution. An adult unmarried person, or an adult husband or wife, or an adult husband and wife together, may adopt a minor.

Consent to adoption is necessary as follows: Of the minor, if over twelve years of age; of the foster-parent's husband or wife, unless lawfully separated, or unless they jointly adopt; of the parents or surviving parent of a legitimate child, or of the mother of an illegitimate child; but consent of parent who has abandoned the child, or is deprived of civil rights, or divorced because of adultery or cruelty, or adjudged insane, or an habitual drunkard, or judicially deprived of custody of child because of cruelty or neglect, is unnecessary.

Where child has no father or mother living, or whose consent is required as above, there must be consent of a person of full age, having lawful custody of the child, if any such person can be found, or otherwise the judge or surrogate shall recite such facts in the order allowing the adoption.

The foster-parent or parents, the minor, and all persons whose consent is necessary, must appear before the county judge or surrogate of the county where foster-parent resides, and be examined, except as stated below. They must present to such judge or surrogate an instrument containing substantially the consents required and agreement by foster-parent to adopt and treat the minor as his lawful child, and a statement of child's age as nearly as same can be ascertained. This instrument must be signed by foster-parent and each person whose consent is necessary, and severally acknowledged before judge or surrogate. But where the person whose consent is necessary resides or is located in some other state or county, consent may be acknowledged there and certified like deed there executed. The judge or surrogate's order and the instrument of consent must be filed and recorded in clerk's office of county where foster-parent resides.

After adoption, the minor's parents are relieved from all parental duties and responsibilities to it, and have no rights over child or property by descent or succession, but his rights of inheritance and succession from his natural parents remain unaffected. The child takes the name of foster-parent, and foster-parent and minor sustain toward each other the legal relation of parent and child, and have all rights and are subject to all duties of that relation, including right of inheritance from each other, and such right extends to heirs and next of kin of the minor, except that as respects the passing and limitation over of real or personal property dependent under the provisions of any instrument on the foster-parent dying without heirs, the minor is not deemed the child of the foster-parent to defeat the rights of remaindermen.

Where orphan asylums or charitable institutions are authorized to place children for adoption, the adoption must be given, if practicable, to persons of the same religious faith of the parents of such child, and is effected substantially as in case of voluntary adoption, except that officers of institution need not appear before county judge or surrogate to be examined.

Abrogation of voluntary adoption may be had if the foster-parent, the minor, and the persons whose consent was originally necessary appear before county judge or surrogate in county where foster-parent resides. If he is satisfied upon examination that abrogation of the adoption is desired by all parties concerned, and will be for best interests of minor, an agreement to that end must be executed by all parties, and the judge or surrogate must indorse hereon his consent to abrogation. Upon the filing and recording of such paper, the adoption is abrogated, and the child shall reassume its original name, and its parents or guardians may reassume such relations. Adoptions may be had, however, from foster-parents.

Where a minor has been adopted from orphan asylum or charitable institution, an application, upon verified petition, to county judge or surrogate where foster-parent resides may be made for abrogation of such adoption on the ground of cruelty, misusage, refusal of necessary provisions or clothing, inability to support, maintain or educate child, or other violation of duty on the part of foster-parent. Citations shall issue thereon to foster-parent and hearing shall be under the provisions of Code of Civil Procedure relating to citations out of surrogate's court. Such judge or court may compel the production of the minor's person, and upon return of citation may enter order abrogating the adoption. If one such petition has been denied, a further citation against same foster-parent is in the discretion of the judge or surrogate.

A foster-parent, adopting child from orphan asylum or charitable institution, may also present a verified petition for abrogation of adoption on the ground of wilful desertion, misdemeanor, or ill-behavior of such child, and a citation shall be issued by county judge or surrogate to corporation who consented to adoption, or, if such corporation does not then exist, to superintendent or the poor of such county. If corporation does not appear, a special guardian shall be appointed to protect interests of child, and the foster-parent shall pay such special guardian fees and necessary disbursements for contesting such application. The granting of the abrogation is in the discretion of the county court or surrogate.

CHAPTER IV.

AFFIDAVITS.

NOTE.—The following are the usual requisites in affidavits:

Affidavits should be entitled in the action or proceeding, but it is frequently provided by statute that the want of a title or a defect in the title does not impair the affidavit, if it intelligibly refers to the action or special proceeding in which it is made. See N. Y. Code Civ. Pro., § 728; Code Crim. Pro., § 683.

The names of all the deponents should be mentioned, and where the affidavit is made by several, it should be shown that the deponents were severally sworn.

Where the description or residence of the deponent is material to the affidavit, it should be directly alleged.

An affidavit should be subscribed by the deponent. The jurat should state the day on which it was sworn. The venue sufficiently shows the place where the affidavit was taken, and if it thereby appears that the affidavit was taken at a place beyond that where the officer was authorized to act, it will not be received by the court. The jurat should be subscribed by the officer with his official designation.

CHAPTER V.

APPOINTMENTS.

APPOINTMENTS are of two kinds: 1. The conferring an authority to perform duties or to act for another, such as the appointment of a guardian or an attorney. 2. The declaration of an act or transfer in execution of a power.

Appointments of the former kind are usually to be executed with the same formalities as are used in the execution of conveyances, for which see the chapter on ACKNOWLEDGMENT AND PROOF OF DEEDS. For forms of appointments of attorneys and trustees, see the chapters on POWERS OF ATTORNEY, and on TRUSTS, respectively.

In regard to appointments in execution of powers, it is to be observed that the American law and usage renders resort to this class of instruments comparatively rare; but in many of the states the subject is regulated more or less by statute, the chief effect of which, so far as the forms of attestation are concerned, is to relax the very strict rules of the common law, requiring all incidental circumstances directed by the grantor of the power to be most rigidly observed in the execution of it; and we apprehend that the usual American rule is, that such an appointment must be executed with the formalities required by law to pass such an estate, and that these are sufficient, even though the grantor may have prescribed less or more formalities.

It is not necessary that an appointment should recite, or even refer to the power, provided the act shows that the decree had in view the subject of the power, and intended to execute the power.

CHAPTER VI.
 APPRENTICES.

APPRENTICES are a species of servants, so called from Apprendre, to learn; and the term is usually taken to mean a minor, bound for a term of years, or until he attains majority, by indenture or sealed contract, to serve a master, by whom he is to be both maintained and instructed.

In general, and without any statute regulation, a contract of service made by a minor will not be held valid unless, in the particular case, it appears, in its terms and in the circumstances under which it was made, to be reasonable and beneficial to the minor. But a father, who is entitled to the services of his minor son, and for whom he is obliged to provide, may assign those services to others, for a consideration to inure to himself, and may contract that his minor son shall labor in the service and employment of others for any term which does not exceed the period of the child's emancipation from the father, which may take place as well on the father's death as on the son's arriving at the age of twenty-one years.

The Statute.— This subject was regulated in England by a statute enacted in the time of Queen Elizabeth, which prescribed the modes in which such contracts should be made, and declared all contracts by which minors should be bound in service to be illegal, unless made pursuant to the statute.

This statute has been in part adopted in most of the states in this country as the basis of a system of apprenticeship, the general features of which are, that a minor, with the consent of his father,—or, if the father is dead or incapacitated to act, or has abandoned the family, the consent of the mother; or, if she cannot act, or refuses, that of the guardian; or, if there is no guardian, that of certain magistrates designated by statute,—may be bound to service, by writing, to a master, who shall by the contract undertake to maintain the apprentice, and to teach him his trade. Various special provisions for the security of either party are made by different statutes in the different states. Unless the statute declares other contracts than those so made to be void, others may be valid also, but if broken can only be enforced by action at law; whereas contracts made pursuant to the statute may be summarily and specifically enforced, by either party, by an application to the proper magistrate, who may punish a refractory or unfaithful apprentice or an unjust master; and in proper cases may discharge the apprentice, and compel the master to refund any money he received with him.

An old common-law form of apprenticeship, actually used in the state of Rhode Island, and which covers practically all the common-law rights and provisions, is given below; also the forms under the Domestic Relations Law of the state of New York, §§ 120-127; Birdseye, C. & G. Cons. Laws, pp. 1082-1087.

The provisions of this law are substantially as follows: The indenture of apprenticeship must contain the names of the parties, the age of the minor, the nature of the service or employment, the term of service, an agreement that the minor will not leave his master during that term, and that the master will provide suitable and proper board, lodging and medical attendance, or pay to such apprentice, or his parent or guardian for him, a sufficient sum therefor; a statement of every sum of money paid or agreed to be paid in relation to the service; if the minor is bound as an apprentice to learn a trade or craft, an agreement on the employer's part to teach or cause to be carefully and skillfully taught to such apprentice every branch of such business, and, at the expiration of the apprenticeship, to give a certificate in writing that the apprentice has served his full term of apprenticeship. If minor is indentured by poor officers, or by authorities of orphan asylum, penal or charitable institution, there must be an agreement to cause the child to be instructed in reading, writing and general rules of arithmetic, and that at the expiration of the term the master will give the minor a new bible. Every indenture of apprenticeship must be filed in the office of the clerk of the county where master resides.

Any minor may, by the execution of such agreement, bind himself as an apprentice to learn any trade or craft for not less than three nor more than five years, or as a servant or clerk in any profession, trade or employment for a term not longer than the minority of such minor, unless the minor comes from a foreign country, when, for the purpose of paying his passage, the indenture may be made for a term of one year, even if such term extends beyond the majority of the minor. Such indenture must be signed by the minor, his father (unless he is legally incapable of giving consent or has abandoned his family), by the mother (unless she is legally incapable of giving consent), by the guardian of the minor's person, if any. If there are neither parents nor guardian legally capable of giving consent, by the county judge of the county or a supreme court justice of the district in which the minor resides. The county judge of the county, or a supreme court justice of the district, must consent to the apprenticeship of a minor coming from a foreign country, or of a child of an Indian woman. The consent must also be signed by the master or employer. If a municipal corporation apprentices a minor, the indenture must be signed by the officers apprenticing the minor, by the master or employer, and by the county judge if the support of such child was chargeable to the county, by two justices of the peace if chargeable to the town, or by the mayor and aldermen, or any two of them, if chargeable to a city. The poor officers by whom a child is indentured, and their successors in office, shall be guardians of such child, and shall inquire into its treatment and redress any grievance. Orphan asylums or charitable institutions must, when practicable, apprentice to persons of the same religious faith as the minor's parents, and the indenture must then be signed in the corporate name of such institution by the officer or officers authorized to sign the corporate name, and be sealed with the corporate seal, and must also be signed by the master or employer, and may be signed by the child if over twelve years of age.

If the master or employer fails during the term of service to perform provisions of indenture, the minor, or anyone on his behalf, may sue to have indenture canceled, and for not more than $1,000, nor less than $100 damages, to be paid to the minor's parents or guardian, or to the institution or poor officers, for the benefit of the child.

Where a minor has been indentured by poor officers, and the master or employer dies, his personal representatives may, with the written and acknowledged consent of such poor officers, assign the indenture; or, if such consent be refused, the assignment may be made by the county judge on fourteen days' notice to the minor and his parent or guardian, and such poor officers.

Contracts with apprentices in restraint of trade are void.

| A. B., by Y. Z., his Guardian, v. C. D. | } |

The complaint of A. B., the above-named plaintiff, respectfully shows:

That the plaintiff is a minor, an infant, under the age of twenty-one years [here state the date of the entry of the order appointing guardian ad litem]; that by an indenture of apprenticeship, dated the day of _____, _____, duly executed by plaintiff, and by [his father, or as the case may be], the said plaintiff was duly apprenticed to said defendant for the term of years from the date of said indenture, in the trade and business of a , which said C. D. was engaged in. That annexed hereto, and made a part hereof, is a copy of said indenture.

That it was covenanted and agreed in and by said indenture, on the part of the above-named defendant, among other things, that he would provide at all times during the continuance of said apprenticeship suitable and proper board, lodging and medical attendance for the said plaintiff, and would teach or cause to be carefully and skillfully taught to said plaintiff every branch of said business to which the said plaintiff was apprenticed, as aforesaid.

Plaintiff further alleges that said plaintiff entered into the service of said C. D., as his apprentice, and has faithfully performed the covenants and agreements contained in said indenture on his part to be performed, but that said defendant has not performed said covenants on his part, but has during all the term of said apprenticeship neglected and refused to teach or cause to be taught to said plaintiff the art or mystery of the trade or craft to which said plaintiff was indentured, as aforesaid, and he has failed to provide suitable and proper board, lodging and medical attendance to said plaintiff, though often requested so to do by said plaintiff.

Plaintiff further alleges that by reason of said neglect and refusal, as aforesaid, the plaintiff has sustained damages to the amount of dollars.

Wherefore, the plaintiff prays that judgment may be given against said defendant for the sum of dollars, and that the court will direct said indenture to be canceled, and will enforce a fine upon said defendant of one thousand dollars for said neglect and refusal, to be collected and paid over to said plaintiff's sole use and benefit, as provided by statute, and for such other relief as to the court may seem just.

CHAPTER VII.

ARBITRATION AND AWARD.

In general, any controversy which might be the subject of a civil action may be submitted to arbitration. If an action is already pending, the arbitration effects a discontinuance of it, unless it is otherwise stipulated by the parties. An agreement to arbitrate is usually, though not necessarily, in writing. When in writing, it is frequently in the form of mutual bonds. If not in that form, it is prudent to make two counterparts of the instrument, one for each party. It is usual to appoint one, two, or three arbitrators, and, if more than one, to provide against the contingency of their not being able to agree. This may be done by empowering them, in such case, to call in another person, chosen by themselves, to act with them; but the better practice is to empower them to choose an umpire, who shall act instead of them, if they shall fail to agree.

The agreement of submission, in whatever form it is made, should state explicitly what powers are intended to be conferred on the arbitrators or umpire, either by referring all controversies without limit, or by distinctly limiting the particular controversies intended. If it is intended that the arbitrators may require either party to pay the expenses incurred by the other in the arbitration, the agreement should expressly empower them to award payment of expenses. But without this, the arbitrators are entitled by custom to require the prevailing party to pay them the same fees which are allowed to referees in courts of record. A different rate of compensation may be fixed by agreement of those concerned.

All the arbitrators and all the parties must have reasonable notice of the time and place of the hearing. The more convenient practice is to apply to the arbitrators to appoint a time and place, and give written notice to the parties.

If several arbitrators are appointed, an award must be made unless it is otherwise provided in the submission. At common law all arbitrators must join unless agreement provides for a majority. By New York statute, majority must join, unless agreement provides for all. Code Civ. Pro., § 2371.

If it is provided that all or any two of the arbitrators may make an award, they must all have due notice to attend the meeting, and of the subject of reference, otherwise the award will not be binding.

If, after due notice, either party neglects to attend, the arbitrators may proceed ex parte.

In settling their award, the arbitrators must confine themselves strictly within the powers conferred by the submission. The precise controversy submitted to them should be determined; and if the award embraces matters not included in the submission, it is void, unless the portion which exceeds the submission can be separated from the rest, without affecting the merits of the award as to that which was submitted.

The matters awarded should be expressed in clear and distinct terms, so that nothing shall be left uncertain. Thus, if a party is required to give security, the nature and extent of the security must be stated, otherwise it would not appear what would amount to a performance of such requirement. In reference, however, to matters of calculation, or of definite facts, ascertainable to a legal certainty, it is enough if the award give the data or conditions from which the result may be deduced.

The matters awarded must also be mutual, affecting both parties, possible of execution, and final, so as to terminate the controversy.

If the submission requires it, the award must be sealed as well as signed; otherwise, sealing is not necessary, even where the submission is sealed. If the submission contemplates being delivered to the parties, it should be executed in duplicate, so that each party may have an original; the power of arbitrators ceases with the delivery of an award, but not of a document which is merely an opinion.

Statutory Arbitration—In many of the states, the proceeding is regulated by statute, with provisions that the award may be brought into court and a judgment entered thereon. In New York and some other states, it is held that the statute does not take away or affect the common-law proceeding; so that in such states an arbitration may be good for the purpose of establishing a valid award on which the successful party may sue if necessary, although it does not conform to the statute, and therefore does not entitle the party to a summary judgment without suit. In other states, the statute method is exclusive, and its regulations are held to apply to all arbitrations.

The statute of New York provides that for the purpose of an award on which judgment may be entered, all persons, except infants and persons legally incapacitated, may, by an instrument in writing, submit to the decision of one or more arbitrators any controversy existing between them, which might be the subject of a suit at law or in equity; including any claim to an interest in real estate, for a term of years or less, and any controversy respecting partition between joint tenants, or tenants in common, or concerning boundaries, or the admeasurement of dower, but excluding claims to real estate, in fee or for life.

The agreement may stipulate that judgment may be entered on the award, if a proceeding under the statute is intended.

The forms under the New York Code of Civil Procedure (Code Civ. Pro., §§ 2365-2386), and the statutes of other states, appear in regular books of forms of pleadings and practice, and are not given here.

CHAPTER VIII.

ASSIGNMENTS.

AN assignment, in the broadest sense in which the term is used in conveying, may be any transfer of any property; but in respect to lands and chattels it is generally employed to designate a transfer of some partial or qualified interest only; or it signifies, often, a transfer of a right in action.

As between the parties, it is necessary to the validity of an assignment, that the assignor should express his intent to transfer the title to the property; and, in the cases in which a writing is required by the Statute of Frauds, that this intention should be expressed in writing. A consideration for the assignment is only necessary in order to sustain it against creditors, or other third parties.

The usual technical words of an assignment are "sell, assign, transfer, and set over," or, "sell, assign, transfer, and set and deliver over." But any language which expresses the intent to transfer the property is sufficient.

In cases in which, by the Statute of Frauds, a writing is necessary to a valid assignment, the essential parts of the instrument must be reduced to writing before the signature and delivery. If the assignor signs and delivers a blank paper on an agreement that a third person may write a certain assignment thereon, this will not constitute a valid transfer of an interest which can only be transferred by deed or note in writing—e. g. a lease—although the blank is subsequently filled as agreed. Otherwise, when the interest to be transferred is not one of those which can only be transferred by writing.

In general, the assignee of a right in action acquires no better title than his assignor possessed. He holds the demand subject to any equities which might have been enforced against his assignor.

Every instrument of assignment ought to be acknowledged by the assignor.

Formerly, the assignee was not permitted to sue the demand in his own name, but could only proceed to enforce it in the name of his assignor; but in New York and most other states, he is enabled, by recent statutes, to sue in his own name. See also chapter on ACKNOWLEDGMENTS, etc.

CHAPTER IX.

ASSIGNMENTS IN TRUST FOR CREDITORS.

WHAT is commonly known as a general assignment, or an assignment in trust for the benefit of creditors, is usually a transfer of all, or the bulk of the property of one who finds himself to be insolvent, to a trustee, upon trust to sell it and distribute the proceeds among the creditors of the insolvent.

As respects the way in which the various creditors shall share in the distribution of their debtor's assets, the debtor, in the absence of legislation to the contrary, may distribute his property among them as he pleases. To restrain frauds and mischief arising under the free operation of this rule, the statute 13 Eliz., c. 5, was passed. It recites that transfers of property were often made with intent to "delay, hinder, and defraud creditors and others" of their just and lawful demands; and declares every transfer of property made with such intent to be void as against the persons delayed, etc.

The principle of this statute has been generally adopted throughout the United States as a part of our common law. Irrespective of any special statute in the particular state, the validity of an assignment, upon its face, is ordinarily tested by inquiring whether its provisions are such that it tends to delay, hinder, or defraud creditors, so that it falls within the prohibition of the statute of Elizabeth.

In addition to the adoption of the principle of the English statute as a part of our jurisprudence upon this subject, many of the United States have passed special statutes; — either recognizing the right of a debtor to give certain creditors a preference over others in the distribution of the property he may assign, but providing strict guards against fraud in the exercise of that right; or allowing the bare right to make an assignment for the benefit of all creditors, but forbidding any preference or favor of one over another.

An assignment with preferences must be drafted in such a manner that none of its provisions can be seen to create or involve any unnecessary delay, hindrance, or embarrassment to the general right of the creditors as a body, to have the assets of the debtor converted into money, and that money applied, as far as it will go, in discharge of his debts. If this right is injuriously affected by the instrument, it will be adjudged void.

Thus it is held that any clauses in an assignment which confer any power or privilege upon the assignee inconsistent with the simple duty of converting the assets promptly into cash, and distributing it among the creditors, or which give him a compensation or advantage therein not allowed by law, operate to defraud creditors, and render the assignment void. But clauses which merely express in terms powers or rights which the law would confer upon the assignee were they not expressed, are unobjectionable.

Thus, again, provisions which tend to secure some ultimate surplus or other benefit or advantage to the assignor, render the assignment void.

Thus, again, any language in an assignment, which enables the assignor to exercise a future preference among his creditors, avoids the instrument.

Thus, again, all provisions which disclose an endeavor to empower the assignor to impose conditions upon creditors, before paying their demands, avoid the assignment.

Thus, again, any directions to the assignee to deal with the estate in a given way, to increase the amount to be realized from it, avoid the assignment, whenever they operate to delay a sale.

Thus, again, any permission given in the assignment to the assignee to sell upon credit, although with a view to realize a larger sum for ultimate distribution, avoids the assignment.

It is also necessary to the validity of an assignment that it should be made in good faith, without any actual intent to defraud any one. And there are some restrictions relating to the classes of persons who may make preferential assignments.

A general assignee for the benefit of creditors stands in no better position, and has no higher rights in respect to enforcing choses in action transferred by the assignment than those of his assignor. He is not to be regarded as a purchaser for a valuable consideration.

Notwithstanding an assignment is originally invalid as against creditors generally, for such defects as are pointed out above, it is valid as between the parties to it, and as against all creditors who have assented to it, or in any way ratified it.

In the state of New York, these proceedings are regulated by the Debtor and Creditor Law. Birdseye, C. & G. Cons. Laws, pp. 860-937. The statutory provisions in other states are very similar to those of New York. The material provisions of the law are as follows:

Every assignment has to be in writing, acknowledged and recorded in the office of the county where the assignor has his principal place of business. A certified copy of such an assignment is also to be filed in the county where any real property of the assignee may be situated. The assignment must also contain the residence, location, and kind of business of the assignor, and the assent of the assignee, subscribed and acknowledged by him, is to be annexed to the assignment before the same can be recorded.

Wages and salaries are preferred. Preferences, except wages and salaries, are allowed only to the extent of one-third of the assigned estate, after deducting such wages, salaries, etc. But if the estate is insufficient to pay all the preferred claims, the same is to be applied in payment pro rata.

At the time of the assignment, or within twenty days afterwards, an inventory under oath is to be prepared, and the same is to contain:

1. The name, occupation, places of business and residence of the assignor.
2. The name and place of residence of the assignee.
3. An account of all the creditors, stating their places of residence, the sums owing to each, and the consideration for the indebtedness; also a statement of any security given for the payment of the same.
4. An inventory of the assignor's estate, and the date of assignment with the incumbrances thereon and all vouchers and securities relating thereto, and the nominal as well as the actual value of the same according to the best of his knowledge.

5. An affidavit by the assignor that the inventory is in all respects just and true. If the assignor should fail to deliver an inventory within the specified time, the assignee may, within thirty days after the assignment, prepare an inventory under oath. The books and papers of the assignor are open for examination and inspection for the purposes of preparing the inventory.

Before entering upon his duties, the assignee must, within thirty days after the assignment, file in the county clerk's office where the assignment is recorded, a bond for the amount fixed by the judge, with sufficient sureties to be approved by the same.

The failure to file a bond does not deprive the county judge of jurisdiction over the assignee and the insolvent estate. Further security may also be required by the judge if he should deem it necessary.

On petition by the assignee, the judge may authorize him to advertise for claims of creditors to be presented not less than within thirty days from the last publication. The advertisement is to be made in two newspapers not less than once a week for six successive weeks.

The assignee may be removed for misconduct or incompetency, or may be discharged on his own petition, on five days' notice to the assignor and other interested persons. His bond is to be canceled upon discharge. On the death of the assignee, the personal representatives may be substituted in his stead, or another assignee may be appointed. At any time, on the petition of the assignee, or after one year from date of assignment, on the petition of a creditor, or the assignee's surety, or where the assignee has been removed or ordered to account, the court may issue a citation to all parties interested, requiring them to appear in court and show cause why a settlement with the assignee should not be had. A citation issued on the petition of a creditor may be served on the assignee alone, and on its return the assignee may require a general citation to issue to all persons interested. Such citation need not be served on creditors who have not presented their claims. On proof that the creditors exceed twenty-five in number, the judge may direct that the citation may be served by mailing a notice of the same to each of these creditors at least thirty days before the return day, and by publishing the citation once a week for at least four weeks prior to the return day in one or more newspapers. The judge may also direct service to be made by publication where the party to be served is unknown or his residence cannot be found, or where he cannot be found in the state. Such publication must be made not less than once a week for six weeks, and a copy of the citation is to be mailed to each of the known creditors at least thirty days before the return day. Where service by publication has been ordered, a personal service of a citation within thirty days, if within the United States, or within forty days, if without the United States, before the return day, is equivalent to publication and mailing.

On a proceeding for an accounting the court shall have the power:

1. To examine the parties and witnesses on oath in relation to all matters concerning the assignment, and compel their attendance, and the production of books and papers.
2. To require and compel, if necessary, the assignee to file an account of his proceedings.
3. To take and state such account or to appoint a referee to do so.
4. To settle and adjudicate upon the account and the claims presented.
5. To discharge the assignee and his surety upon performance of the decree, or upon proof of composition between the assignor and his creditors, provided that if there be any creditors not assenting to the composition, the court shall determine what proportion of the fund shall be paid to or reserved for creditors not assenting, which shall not be less than the sum or share to which they would be entitled if no composition had been made, and may decree distribution accordingly.
6. To adjourn the proceedings when necessary.
7. To punish contempt of court.
8. To exercise such other further powers as the surrogate may exercise in an accounting by an executor or an administrator.

The court may also at any time order the examination of witnesses and the production of books and papers, and the answer of no witness shall criminate him.

The judge may, upon application of the assignee, upon terms to be fixed, ratify, or direct, or authorize the sale, compromising or compounding of any claim belonging to the estate. The assignee is responsible for any sum which might or ought to have been collected by him.

Any disputed matter may be ordered for trial by jury or before a referee, and the court may award reasonable counsel fees and costs, and the assignee shall receive for his services five per cent. of the whole sum received.

It may be laid down as a general principle that the existence of a bankruptcy law suspends ipso facto the operation of state insolvent laws.¹ The right, however, to make general, voluntary assignments is a principle of the common law, and exists independent of any statute laws.² Under the Bankruptcy Law of 1898, c. 3, § 3, subd. 4, a general assignment for the benefit of creditors constitutes an act of bankruptcy.

BETWEEN A. B., of the city of Albany, county of Albany, and state of

New York, and C. D., of the same place, who have heretofore composed the partnership of A. B. & Co., heretofore doing business at the city of Albany aforesaid, parties of the first part, and E. F., of the city of Albany, county of Albany, and state aforesaid, party of the second part,

WITNESSETH:

THAT, WHEREAS, the said parties of the first part are justly indebted to sundry persons in divers and sundry sums of money, and being unable to pay the same in full, are desirous of making an equitable distribution of their property and effects among their creditors.

NOW, THEREFORE,

First: The parties of the first part, in consideration of the premises and the sum of one dollar to them in hand respectively paid, by the party of the second part, the receipt whereof is hereby acknowledged, have granted, bargained, sold, assigned, transferred, and set and delivered over and conveyed, and by these presents do grant, bargain, sell, assign, transfer, and set and deliver over and convey unto the said party of the second part, his successors or assigns, all and singular, their copartnership and individual estate and property, real and personal, of every name and kind whatever and wheresoever situated, held by and in the name of the said parties of the first part, and each and either of them, or by and in the name of any other person, for them, or either of them, except such property, if any, held or owned by said parties of the first part, separately and individually, as is exempt by law from levy and sale under execution or otherwise.

TO HAVE AND TO HOLD the same and every part and parcel thereof, with the appurtenances to the said party of the second part, his successors and assigns:

IN TRUST, nevertheless, for the following uses and purposes, viz.:

Second: The party of the second part shall forthwith take possession of all and singular the estate, property, and effects hereby above assigned, transferred and conveyed, and set and delivered over, or intended so to be, and shall, with all reasonable diligence, sell and dispose of the same and convert the same into money, and shall collect any and all bills, promissory notes, bonds, accounts, choses in action, claims, demands, and money due or owing to said parties of the first part, as such copartners or individuals, so far as the same shall prove collectible:

Third. Out of the proceeds of said sales, collections, and estate and property, the said party of the second part is authorized to pay and retain all reasonable costs, charges, and expenses of making, executing, and carrying into effect this assignment, including the lawful commissions of the said party of the second part, for his services in executing and carrying out the trust created in this behalf in this assignment.

Fourth. Out of the proceeds of said sales, collections, and estate and property, the said party of the second part shall pay and discharge the wages or salaries actually owing to the employees of said parties of the first part at the time of the execution of this assignment, amounting to about dollars. If, however, such proceeds shall not be sufficient for that purpose, then the said party of the second part shall apply the same to, and in payment of the same, pro rata, and in proportion to the respective amounts of each of such claims.

Fifth: With and out of the proceeds of the separate and individual property of each of the said parties of the first part, the said party of the second part shall pay in full the separate and individual debts and liabilities, of each of said parties of the first part. If the net proceeds of the separate and individual property of each or either of the said parties of the first part is insufficient to pay his separate and individual debts and liabilities in full, then the proceeds of the individual property of the said party of the first part so insufficient to pay his debts and liabilities in full shall be applied pro rata to the payment of such party's separate and individual debts and liabilities. If, however, any surplus remains of the net proceeds of the said separate and individual property of either of the parties of the first part, after the payment of his separate and individual debts and liabilities in full, the said surplus shall be applied towards the payment of the copartnership debts and liabilities of the said parties of the first part.

Sixth: With and out of the proceeds of the copartnership property, together with the surplus, if any, of the proceeds of the individual property of the said parties of the first part, or either of them, the said party of the second part shall pay all and singular, the copartnership debts set down and enumerated in the schedule hereto annexed, marked Schedule "A," in full, with lawful costs and interest, if the said net proceeds and said surplus shall be sufficient for that purpose, and if the same be not sufficient, then the said party of the second part shall apply the same to and in the payment of the said partnership debts ratably and in proportion to the respective amounts thereof.

Seventh: And after paying and discharging all of the aforesaid copartnership debts, as above provided, the said party of the second part, with and out of the said proceeds and surplus, if any, shall pay in full, all and singular, the partnership debts set forth and enumerated in the schedule hereto annexed, marked Schedule "B," with lawful costs and interest, if the said net proceeds and said surplus shall be sufficient for that purpose, and if the same be not sufficient, then the said party of the second part shall apply the same to and in payment of the said partnership debts mentioned in said "Schedule B," ratably and in proportion to the respective amounts thereof.

Eighth: After fully paying, satisfying and discharging all the aforesaid copartnership debts, as above provided, and which are thereby intended to be preferred as aforesaid, the said party of the second part shall pay out of the residue of said net proceeds and surplus, if the same shall be sufficient therefor, to each and every of the other or remaining creditors of the said parties of the first part, as such copartnership, the full sum that may be justly due and owing to them respectively from said copartnership, without any priority or preference whatever; and if the residue of said proceeds and surplus shall not be sufficient to pay and satisfy in full the debts of each and all of the remaining creditors of said copartnership, then the said party of the second part is hereby directed out of the said residue to pay the said remaining creditors ratably and in proportion to the amount due and owing to each of them.

Ninth: If any surplus shall remain of the property and estate hereby assigned, after the payment of all the just debts owing by the parties of the first part, or either of them, the party of the second part shall return the same to the parties of the first part, their heirs, executors, administrators, or assigns, according to their respective rights thereto.

AND, in furtherance of the premises, the said parties of the first part do hereby make, constitute, and appoint the said party of the second part their true and lawful attorney, irrevocable, with full power of substitution and revocation, and with full power and authority to do all acts and things which may be necessary in the premises for the full execution of the trust hereby created, and to ask, demand, recover, and receive of and from all and every person or persons, all property, debts, and demands due, owing and belonging to the said parties of the first part, or each or any of them, and to give acquittances and discharges for the same, and to sue, prosecute, defend, and implead for the same, and to execute, acknowledge, and deliver all necessary deeds, instruments, and conveyances.

AND the said parties of the first part do hereby authorize the party of the second part to sign or endorse their names or the copartnership name of the parties of the first part, to or upon any check, draft, promissory note, or other instrument in writing, for the payment of money, which is payable to the order of the parties of the first part in their copartnership name or otherwise, and to sign their names or the said copartnership name to any instrument in writing of any name, kind, or nature, which may be necessary to more fully carry into effect the object, design, and purpose of this trust.

AND the said party of the second part doth hereby accept the trust created in him, and in him reposed by these presents, and doth for himself, his heirs, executors, and administrators, hereby covenant and agree to and with the said parties of the first part, their heirs, executors, administrators, and assigns, that he, the said party of the second part, will honestly and faithfully and without delay, execute the same according to the best of his skill, knowledge, and ability.

CHAPTER XII.

BILLS OF EXCHANGE.

A BILL OF EXCHANGE is an unconditional order in writing addressed by one person to another, signed by the person giving it, requiring the person to whom it is addressed to pay on demand or at a fixed, determinable future time a sum certain in money to order or bearer.¹ The person making and signing such a bill is called the drawer; the person directed to make the payment is called the drawee, and the person in whose favor it is made is called the payee. Sometimes the drawer and the payee are the same person—that is, the bill is drawn payable to the drawer's order. If the payee of a bill writes his name upon the back of it, and transfers it to a fourth person, he becomes an indorser, and the person thus taking the bill is termed the indorsee. An indorsee may in turn become indorser, by transferring it in the same way. The person who at any given time has the right to the bill, is termed the holder.

An indorsement in blank is where the indorser writes his name only on the back of the note; and it is a mere agreement to pay, on the usual conditions of demand and notice. If he wishes to transfer the bill without making himself liable, he should write before his name, the words "without recourse," or, if he indorses merely as agent to transfer the nominal title, he should add the word "agent" to his signature.²

In accepting a bill of exchange or draft, the acceptor writes the word "accepted," together with the date when accepted, and his own signature, and sometimes the place of payment, across the face or on the back of the bill or draft. But the signature alone written across the face of the bill is sufficient to bind the writer as acceptor. The acceptance must be absolute according to the tenor of the bill.

Bills drawn in one state and payable in another state or country are foreign bills. Such bills are usually drawn in several parts, the whole of each making up what is called a set. Commonly the drawer delivers to the payee three bills of the same tenor and date; and each of these contains a condition that it is to be paid, provided the others remain unpaid; and all of them collectively amount to one bill, and a payment to the holder of either is good, and a payment of one of the set is payment of the whole.

CHAPTER XIII.

BILLS OF LADING.

A BILL OF LADING is the written evidence of a contract for the carriage and delivery of goods, usually by water or railroad, for a certain freight. It is signed by the captain or master of the ship or vessel, or by the agent of the railroad, and states, among other things, by whom the goods are shipped, and where and to whom they are to be delivered. There are generally three or more parts or copies of the instrument; one of which is usually sent to the consignee by the ship which carries the goods; another is sent to him by some other conveyance, and a third is kept by the merchant or shipper. Contracts for the freighting of goods must have all these essential qualities, or else they cannot have the effect of bills of lading.

Signature by the owner of the vessel may, however, be sufficient.

In respect to the agreement to carry and deliver the goods, the bill of lading is a contract, to be construed, like all other written contracts, according to the legal import of its terms, and it may not be varied by parol evidence. The receipt embodied in it is not, however, conclusive, and does not preclude the carrier from showing what was the actual quantity put on board; nor does the ordinary admission in the bill of lading that the goods were received in good order, preclude him from showing the true condition of the property at the time of shipping. The common-law liability of the carrier may be qualified by express agreement of the parties embodied in the bill of lading.

SHIPPED, in good order and well-conditioned, by [name the consignor of the goods], on board the [describe vessel], called the [name vessel], whereof M. N. is master, now lying in the port of _____, and bound for the port of _____, [here designate the merchandise], being marked and numbered as in the margin, and are to be delivered in the like order and condition at the port of _____ [the dangers of the seas only excepted],¹ unto [name of consignee], or to his [or, their] assigns, he or they paying freight for the said _____, with _____ primage and average accustomed.

IN WITNESS WHEREOF, the master or purser of the said vessel hath affirmed to [three] bills of lading, all of this tenor and date; one of which being accomplished, the others to stand void.

Dated the _____ day of _____, 19 _____.

¹ The clause, "the dangers of the seas excepted," does not affect the question whether freight has been earned or not. Its effect is only to exempt the carrier from liability to pay for the cargo when lost through the danger of the seas. And unless there is an express agreement to the contrary, freight paid in advance may be recovered back, if the voyage is not performed, although prevented by the dangers of the seas, and without fault Phelps v. No. New York, Received by Steamship Company of from under the contract hereinafter contained, the property mentioned below, marked and numbered as per margin, in apparent good order and condition (contents and value unknown), viz.: Consigned to at , via , from to be transported by Steamship appointed to sail , or by any other or succeeding steamer or vessel, whether belonging to said corporation or to any other owner, to the port of , and there, if that be their destination, to be delivered to consignee or his assigns, if called for by him or them, as in this contract provided, he or they paying freight and charges thereon, and average, if any; or, if destined beyond, to be there delivered to connecting carrier, and so on by one connecting carrier to another, until they reach the station or wharf nearest to the ultimate destination. If their ultimate destination be beyond the point for which rates are named, they may, by the connecting carrier nearest to such ultimate destination, be delivered to any other carrier, to be transported to such ultimate point; and the carrier so selected shall be regarded exclusively as the agent of the owner or consignee.

Each carrier shall be bound (subject to the limitations and exceptions contained in this contract) to deliver said goods in the same order and condition as that in which it received them; and the ultimate carrier to deliver them at its station or wharf to the consignee or his assigns, if called for by him or them, as in this contract provided, he or they paying freight and charges thereon, and average, if any.

It is mutually agreed that the liability of each carrier, as to goods destined beyond its own route, shall be terminated by proper delivery of them to the next succeeding carrier.

The carrier shall have liberty to transfer the goods to and transport them by lighters, barges, or any other vessel than that named, and shall have liberty to sail without pilots, to tow and assist vessels in any situation, and go to and stop at any port or ports on route, or beyond, and to deviate, with like privilege to stop. It is agreed that the goods may be lightered, ferried, or carted to the consignee or a connecting carrier, at the owner's risk.

It is agreed that the carrier shall not be liable for loss of or damage to cotton while in or at any press, or during transportation to or from press, and also that the carrier has liberty to compress.

No carrier, or the property of any, shall be liable for gold, silver, precious stones or metals, jewelry, or treasure of any kind, bank notes, securities, silks, furs, laces, pictures, plate, china, glass, or statuary, unless bills of lading are signed therefor, in which their nature and value are expressed and extra freight expressed and paid for the assumption of extraordinary risk, nor for any loss or damage arising from any of the following causes, viz.: fire, from any cause, on land or on water, jettison, ice, freshets, floods, weather, pirates, robbers or thieves, acts of God or of the country's enemies, riots, collisions, explosions, accidents to boilers or machinery, stranding, straining, any accident on or perils of the seas or other waters, or of steam or inland navigation, restraints of government, legal process, claims of ownership by third parties, detention, deviation, or accidental delay, want of proper cooerage or mending, insufficiency of package, in strength or otherwise, rust, dampness, loss in weight, leakage, breakage, sweat, blowing, bursting of casks or packages, from weakness or natural causes, evaporation, vermin, frost, heat, smell, contact with or proximity to other goods, natural decay, or exposure to weather; or for loss or damage of any kind on goods whose bulk or nature require them to be carried on deck or on open cars; or for the condition of packages or any deficiency in the contents thereof, if receipted by the consignee as in good order. All liability under this bill of lading shall be estimated on the basis of the actual market value of the goods at the place and time of shipment.

Explosive, inflammable, or other dangerous articles may be transported, if the carrier chooses, on deck, or elsewhere, and they shall, in all cases, be at the owner's risk. If any such articles be secretly delivered to the carrier, the shipper shall be responsible for any damage resulting therefrom, and such articles may be destroyed by the carrier without incurring any liability therefor. All articles named in this bill of lading are subject to charges for necessary cooerage and repairs. No liability shall exist for wrong carriage or delivery of goods marked with initials or imperfectly marked, unless name and address of consignee be given in writing at time of shipment, such marking being agreed to be taken as proof of contributory negligence. All claims for damage to goods must be made, and the nature and extent thereof fully disclosed in the presence of the agent of the company having the same then in custody, before they are removed from the station or wharf. Unless written demand for damage shall be made upon the carrier liable therefor, or upon the carrier which actually delivered the goods, within ten days after delivery, all claims for damage shall be taken to have been waived, and no suit shall thereafter be maintainable to recover the same. No agent or employee shall have authority to waive such demand.

In case of detention by quarantine, obliging a discharge of the articles named in this bill of lading, all risk and liability of the carrier and its property shall cease, and the obligations under this bill of lading be deemed to have been entirely fulfilled when the articles shall have been thus discharged; and all risks and expenses incurred thereafter shall be on account of shipper, owner, and consignee. The several carriers shall have a lien upon the goods specified in this bill of lading for all arrearages of freight and charges due by the same owners or consignees on other goods. In case of loss, detriment, or damage to the goods, or delay in the transportation thereof, imposing any liability hereunder, the carrier in whose actual custody they were at the time of such loss, damage, detriment, or delay shall alone be responsible therefor. The receipt of any carrier for the goods shall be prima facie evidence of the condition in which he received them, in a suit against any other carrier. In the event of the sale of the goods because of damage or otherwise, at any point short of their ultimate destination, it is agreed that out of the proceeds thereof pro rata freight for that part of the transportation which may have been completed shall be due and payable.

The goods shall be received by the owner or consignee at the station or wharf of the carrier at the ultimate point of delivery, and if not taken away within twenty-four hours after their arrival, may, at the option of the delivering carrier, be sent to a warehouse, or be permitted to lie where landed; all at the expense and risk of the shipper, owner, or consignee. If no address of a person at the ultimate point of delivery immediately entitled to such delivery be disclosed by this bill of lading, the same must be furnished by the shipper, owner, or consignee in writing, to the terminal carrier before the time at which in ordinary course of transportation the goods should arrive at such point. A failure to do this or remove the goods within twenty-four hours after their arrival shall, in case of any subsequent loss or injury to the latter, be treated as conclusive proof of negligence on the part of the shipper, owner, or consignee which contributed to such loss or injury. Negligence shall not be presumed as against any carrier under this bill of lading, and no liability shall exist therefor without actual and affirmative proof thereof.

This bill of lading is signed for the different carriers who may be engaged in the transportation, severally, but not jointly, and each of them is to be bound by and have the benefit of all the provisions thereof as if signed by it, the shipper, owner, and consignee. The acceptance of this bill of lading is an agreement on the part of the shipper, owner, and consignee of the goods, to be bound by all of its stipulations, exceptions, and conditions as fully as if they were all signed by such shipper, owner, and consignee. This bill of lading shall have the effect of a special contract, not liable to be modified by a receipt from or any act of an intermediate carrier.

And it is further agreed that after due notice to the consignee or owner of the arrival of the property described herein at the destination or point of delivery named in this bill of lading, and a reasonable period allowed thereafter for its removal from warehouses or cars, storage charges as usually are applicable at such point of delivery may be made and collected on the property remaining undelivered; and such demurrage charges made and collected on loaded cars as the delivering road may have established.

IN WITNESS WHEREOF, bills of lading, all of this tenor and date, have been signed, one whereof being accomplished, the others to stand void.

[Shippers are requested to read this contract.]

carrier shall cease at the station where delivered or tendered to such consignee, company, or carrier; but the rate of freight for the transportation of said property from place of shipment to _____ is guaranteed not to exceed the rate named herein, and charges advanced, provided contents of packages are correctly stated in railroad receipts (original and duplicate) on which this bill of lading is issued, subject to the following conditions:

Freight carried by the above-named company must be removed from the station during business hours, on the day of its arrival, or it will be stored at the owner's risk and expense, and in the event of its destruction or damage from any cause, while in the depot, it is agreed that said company shall be liable only as warehousemen.

IT IS AGREED, and is a part of the consideration of this contract, that the carrier will not be responsible for loss or injury to packages, the contents of which are unknown, for leakage of liquids, breakage or chafing of vehicles, musical instruments or furniture, the injury or breakage of looking glasses, glass show-cases, picture frames, machinery, stoves or stove furniture, castings or hollow-ware, or any kind of glass or Queensware, or any liquids or articles packed in glass, or for loss or damage of any articles whose bulk renders it necessary to carry in open cars; or for injury to the hidden contents of packages; for the loss of weight or otherwise of grain and coffee in bags, or rice in tierces, or any article caused by bad or insufficient cooorage, or for the decay of or injury to perishable articles; or for damage arising to any article carried, from the effects of heat or cold, or for the loss of nuts in bags, or lemons or oranges in boxes, unless covered by canvas, or losses by damage to goods occasioned by fire, unless such loss is the result of negligence of the carrier; or for chafage, wet or waste occurring to property packed in bags or bales or otherwise, not well and sufficiently packed, or for loss or damage occasioned by delays, by the acts of mobs or rioters, strikers, public enemies, Indians or other hands of marauders, or by the acts of God, or any other unavoidable cause; or for loss or damage on the rivers or seas traversed by the lines of the carrier.

When contents of packages are not correctly represented by shipper, the rates given above will be void, and the published rates of the carriers furnishing the transportation is guaranteed instead. When the words "Owner's Risk" are noted in this bill of lading, the shipper assumes the risk of all damages to the property except those arising from the carelessness or neglect of the carrier, its agents, or employees.

IT IS FURTHER AGREED, that in case of any loss, detriment, or damage done to or sustained by any of the property herein receipted for during such transportation, whereby any legal liability or responsibility shall or may be incurred, that the carrier alone shall be held answerable therefor in whose custody the same may be at the time of the happening of such loss, detriment, or damage, and the carrier so liable shall have the full benefit of any insurance that may have been effected upon or on account of said goods.

IT IS FURTHER AGREED, that in the event of the loss of any property, for which the carriers may be responsible under this bill of lading, the value or cost of the same at the point and time of shipment is to govern the settlement of the same, except shipments under an agreed value, and it is agreed, in consideration of rate hereby given, that in the event of the loss of the whole or any part thereof, the value of same is accepted by consignor, and fixed at the price named in the contract.

The carriers will not be responsible for damages on tobacco, unless it is proved to have occurred during the time of its transit over its line, and of this notice must be given within thirty hours after the arrival of the same.

The term "carrier," as used in this instrument, shall extend to every company or person into whose custody the said property shall pass in process of transportation to the place of consignment; and each and every carrier shall be entitled to the benefit of the stipulations and conditions hereof.

In accepting this bill of lading, the shipper or other agent of the owner of the property carried expressly accepts and agrees to all its stipulations, exceptions and conditions.

THIS BILL OF LADING must be presented without alteration or erasure.

THE ORIGINAL BILL OF LADING only is negotiable. Copies are furnished for the information of those concerned, but are otherwise valueless, except as evidence that a bill of lading has been issued.

CONDITIONS.

1. No carrier or party in possession of all or any of the property herein described shall be liable for any loss thereof or damage thereto, by causes beyond its control; or by floods or by fire; or by quarantine; or by riots, strikes, or stoppage of labor; or by leakage, breakage, chafing, loss in weight, changes in weather, heat, frost, wet, or decay; or from any cause if it be necessary or is usual to carry such property upon open cars.

2. No carrier is bound to carry said property by any particular train or vessel, or in time for any particular market, or otherwise than with as reasonable dispatch as its general business will permit. Every carrier shall have the right, in case of necessity, to forward said property by any railroad or route between the point of shipment and the point to which the rate is given.

3. No carrier shall be liable for loss or damage not occurring on its own road or its portion of the through route, nor after said property is ready for delivery to the next carrier or to consignee. The amount of any loss or damage for which any carrier becomes liable shall be computed at the value of the property at the place and time of shipment under this bill of lading, unless a lower value has been agreed upon or is determined by the classification upon which the rate is based, in either of which events such lower value shall be the maximum price to govern such computation. Claims for loss or damage must be made in writing to the agent at point of delivery promptly after arrival of the property, and if delayed for more than thirty days after the delivery of the property, or after due time for the delivery thereof, no carrier hereunder shall be liable in any event.

4. All property shall be subject to necessary cooerage and baling at owner's cost. Each carrier over whose route cotton is to be carried hereunder shall have the privilege, at its own cost, of compressing the same for greater convenience in handling and forwarding, and shall not be held responsible for deviation or unavoidable delays in procuring such compression. Grain in bulk consigned to a point where there is an elevator may [unless otherwise expressly noted herein, and then if it is not promptly unloaded] be there delivered, and placed with other grain of same kind, without respect to ownership, and if so delivered, shall be subject to a lien for elevator charges in addition to all other charges hereunder. No carrier shall be liable for differences in weights or for shrinkage of any grain or seed carried in bulk.

5. Property not removed by the person or party entitled to receive it within twenty-four hours after its arrival at destination, may be kept in the car, depot, or place of delivery of the carrier, at the sole risk of the owner of said property, or may be, at the option of the carrier, removed and otherwise stored at the owner's risk and cost, and there held subject to lien for all freight and other charges. The delivering carrier may make a reasonable charge per day for the detention of any car and for use of track after the car has been held forty-eight hours for unloading, and may add such charge to all other charges hereunder, and hold said property subject to a lien therefor. Property destined to or taken from a station at which there is no regularly appointed agent, shall be entirely at the risk of owner when unloaded from cars, or until loaded into cars; and when received from or delivered on private or other sidings shall be at owner's risk until the cars are attached to, and after they are detached from, trains.

6. No carrier hereunder will carry, or be liable in any way for, any documents, specie, or for any article of extraordinary value not specifically rated in the published classifications, unless a special agreement to do so, and a stipulated value of the articles, are indorsed hereon.

7. Every party, whether principal or agent, shipping inflammable, explosive or dangerous goods, without previous full written disclosure to the carrier of their nature, shall be liable for all loss or damage caused thereby, and such goods may be warehoused at owner's risk and expense, or destroyed without compensation.

8. Any alteration, addition, or erasure in this bill of lading, which shall be made without the special notation hereon of the agent of the carrier issuing this bill of lading, shall be void.

9. If the word "order" is written hereon immediately before or after the name of the party to whose order the property is consigned, without any condition or limitation other than the name of a party to be notified of the arrival of the property, the surrender of this bill of lading properly indorsed shall be required before the delivery of the property at destination. If any other than the aforesaid form of consignment is used herein, the said property may at the option of the carrier, be delivered without requiring the production or surrender of this bill of lading.

10. Owner or consignee shall pay freight at the rate above stated, and all other charges accruing on said property before delivery, and according to weights as ascertained by any carrier hereunder; and if upon inspection it is ascertained that the articles shipped are not those described in this bill of lading, the freight charges must be paid upon the articles actually shipped, and at the rates and under the rules provided for by published classifications.

11. If all or any part of said property is carried by water over any part of said route, such water carriage shall be performed subject to the conditions, whether printed or written, contained in this bill of lading, including the condition that no carrier or party shall be liable for any loss or damage resulting from the perils of the lakes, sea, or other waters; or from explosion, bursting of boilers, breakage of shafts, or any latent defect in hull, machinery, or appurtenances; or from collision, stranding, or other accidents of navigation; or from the prolongation of the voyage. And any vessel carrying any or all of the property herein described shall have liberty to call at intermediate ports; to tow and be towed, and to assist vessels in distress, and to deviate for the purpose of saving life or property. And any carrier by water liable on account of loss of or damage to any of said property shall have the full benefit of any insurance that may have been effected upon or on account of said property.

CHAPTER XIV.

BILLS OF SALE.

A BILL OF SALE is a formal written conveyance of personal property. If the property is delivered when sold, or if a part of the purchase money is paid, a written instrument is not necessary to make the conveyance binding, but it is convenient evidence of title. Making a bill of sale, however, is not enough, without delivery of the property, to protect the purchaser against the creditors of the seller. If the sale is not accompanied by an actual and continued change of possession, it is void as against creditors, and subsequent purchasers and mortgagees in good faith, unless the buyer can show that his purchase was made in good faith, without any intent to defraud them, and that there was some good reason for leaving the property in the hands of the seller.

CHAPTER XV.

BONDS.

A BOND is a written instrument under seal, by which the maker acknowledges some liability or duty, with a penalty for nonfulfilment. The maker of the bond is called the obligor; the person to whom it is made, the obligee. A seal is generally regarded as essential to the idea of a bond, although in some of the states it is not so. As to what is sufficient to constitute a seal, see the titles of the respective states in the chapter on ACKNOWLEDGMENT OF DEEDS.

No particular form of words is essential to constitute a bond, but any words which declare the intention of the parties, and denote that one is bound to the other, will be sufficient. The apt and appropriate form, however, is, first, a clause declaring that the obligor is bound to the obligee in a specified sum of money, for the payment of which he usually stipulates that he binds his heirs as well as his executors and administrators. The effect of this is to render the heirs liable upon it to the extent of the property which they inherit from him. This first part of the bond, which is termed the penal clause or the obligation, closes with a statement that the instrument is sealed, and of the date thereof. If nothing further is added, the instrument is termed a single bond, or bill penal. Usually, a condition is inserted before the signatures; the object of the condition is to state the acts, a performance of which on the part of the obligor or others will exonerate him from liability for the penalty. If the liability is intended to be limited by the circumstances or object under which the bond is given, they may conveniently be stated in a recital introducing the condition. As to construction of conditions in bonds in New York state, see Code Civ. Pro., § 1915.

The differences between a bond and an undertaking is that a bond is a promise under seal, and an undertaking is a bond without seal. People v. Dando, 20 Abb. N. C. 245, and note.

The chief difference between a bond and an unsealed note are that the seal imports a sufficient consideration to make the instrument binding; that the bond is not usually barred by the Statute of Limitations until the lapse of twenty years; that the remedy may survive against the heirs if they are mentioned; and that a surety joining is not bound beyond the amount of the penalty.

A surety joining in a bond is bound to the obligee in the same sense as the principal, unless the bond is otherwise expressed; but he will be exonerated if the obligee, without his knowledge or consent, alters the obligation of the principal, to the prejudice of the surety. If those first signing a bond desire not to be bound unless all whom they expect to sign do so, they should declare their execution of it to be on this condition; and this should, for convenience, be expressed in the bond.

Where a bond is prescribed by a statute, it will be deemed valid if it conform substantially to the requirements of the statute, and do not vary in any matter to the prejudice of the party from whom it is exacted; and it will be deemed sufficient as towards the party to whom, or for whose benefit, such bond is given, if it do not vary to the prejudice of his rights. But every material requirement must be observed. If the bond contains anything illegal, the whole is void. If it contains anything superfluous, which is not illegal, the excess only is void. If any material thing is omitted, the statute is not complied with.

A bond should be completely written, as to all material parts, before it is delivered. The practice of executing and delivering, with any essential thing omitted to be inserted afterwards by another person than the obligor, is to be avoided. According to the view of the law which obtains in several of the states, such an instrument is wholly void.

As to general provisions relating to bonds in New York state, see Code Civ. Pro., §§ 1880-1892, 1915, etc. Many of the bonds formerly required from various officers in form of bonds are to be found now in the chapter on UNDERTAKINGS.

I. BONDS CONDITIONED FOR THE PAYMENT OF MONEY ONLY.

The penal sum is usually twice the principal intended to be secured. If no place of payment is specified, it will be for the obligor to seek the obligee. If the place is specified, the obligee is not bound to accept payment elsewhere. If no time is specified, the bond is payable forthwith. If the payment is required to be "within" a certain period, or to be "on or before" a certain day, the obligor may pay at any time before the last day has passed. Where successive payments of interest or principal are stipulated for, the condition may provide that, upon default in any one, the obligee may elect to require payment of all; otherwise, he can only proceed for that which is in default.

II. BOTTOMRY AND RESPONDENTIA BONDS.

These are bonds for payment of money, but are presented separately for greater convenience. A bottomry bond is given where money is borrowed for the purposes of a voyage, upon a mortgage of the ship, and its accruing freight, accompanied usually with the personal obligation of the borrower to repay it, but upon condition that the loss of the ship exonerates the borrower. To such a loan the usury laws do not apply, and the lender may stipulate for interest beyond the lawful rate. Such a bond is termed a bottomry bond, because loan is risked on the hull or bottom of the ship. The owner is responsible only to the extent of the fund pledged in his possession.

Respondentia is a contract similar to bottomry, except that the loan is made upon the chance of the safe arrival of the cargo.

433. Bottomry Bond.

KNOW ALL MEN BY THESE PRESENTS, that I, A. B., master [or, owner, or, master and owner] of the ship or vessel called the Mary, now lying at the port of _____, am held and firmly bound unto Y. Z., of, etc.], in the sum of _____ dollars, good and lawful money of the United States [or other currency in which payment is to be made], to be paid to the said Y. Z., his executors, administrators, or assigns [or, to the said W. X. and Y. Z., their executors, administrators, or assigns], for which payment, well and truly to be made, I do bind myself, my heirs, executors, and administrators, and also the said ship or vessel, her tackle, apparel, and furniture [and freight], firmly by these presents.

Sealed with my seal. Dated this _____ day of _____, . . . †

WHEREAS, the above-bounden A. B. has borrowed, taken up, and received of the said Y. Z., the full and just sum of _____ dollars, which sum is to run at bottomry on the body, tackle, apparel, and furniture [and freight] of the said ship or vessel [here state the voyage for which the loan is made—e. g., thus:] from the port or road of M., on a voyage to the port of N., having permission to touch, stay at, and proceed to all ports and places within the limits of the voyage, at the rate or premium of _____ per cent. for the voyage [or, at the rate or premium of _____ per cent. for every calendar month the said ship or vessel shall be out on said voyage, and so in proportion for a less time than a month], in consideration whereof the usual risks of the seas, rivers, enemies, fires, pirates, etc., are to be on account of the said Y. Z.: And WHEREAS for the further security of the said Y. Z., the said A. B. has agreed to and does by these presents mortgage and assign over to the said Y. Z., his executors, administrators, or assigns, the said ship or vessel [and her freight], together with all her tackle, apparel, and furniture; and it is hereby declared that the said ship or vessel and appurtenances [and her freight], are thus assigned over for the security of the bottomry taken up by the said A. B., and shall be delivered to no other use or purpose whatever, until payment of this bond is first made, with the premium that may become due thereon.

NOW THE CONDITION of the above obligation is such, that if the above-bounden A. B., his heirs, executors, and administrators, or either of them, shall and do well and truly pay, or cause to be paid, unto the said Y. III. BONDS FOR THE PERFORMANCE OR NONPERFORMANCE OF VARIOUS ACTS.

A bond conditioned for the performance of a specific act is broken by failure to perform it; but where the condition is to indemnify the obligee from damage from a nonperformance, there is no breach until the obligee has been damaged by being compelled to pay, or otherwise.

In bonds with conditions for the performance of duties preceded by recitals of what the duties are, general terms in the condition are restrained by the recitals. The recitals, therefore, should be carefully drawn, so as to be as general as the condition is intended to be.

IV. BONDS OF INDEMNITY.

An obligation of indemnity against a demand includes, as incidental thereto, indemnity against damages and costs sustained in consequence of the demand, but an obligation of indemnity against costs, charges, and expenses does not extend to damages. An obligation to indemnify against the claims and demands of all persons does not extend to tortious acts.

An obligation to indemnify against "charge or liability" is broken by the existence of a liability, even without payment. But an obligation to indemnify against a "claim," or a "demand," or "damage," or "molestation," or "loss," or "expenses," or "costs," is not broken without actual loss or expense.

An obligation to indemnify one against expenses "which he may incur," is not broken by mere liability, but payment must be shown; but a promise to indemnify him against damages, costs, and charges, "to be imposed on or demandable from him," extends to a legal liability.

CHAPTER XVII.

CHARTER PARTIES.

A CHARTER PARTY is a contract of affreightment in writing, by which the owner of a ship or other vessel lets the whole, or a part of her, to a merchant or other person, for the conveyance of goods, for a particular voyage, or period of time, in consideration of the payment of freight. The instrument ought to contain: 1. The name and tonnage of the vessel. 2. The name of the captain. 3. The names of the charterer and the freighter. 4. The place and time agreed upon for the loading and discharge. 5. The price of the freight. 6. The demurrage or indemnity in case of delay. 7. Such other conditions as the parties may agree upon.

Important differences in reference to the rights and liabilities of the parties, not only as between themselves, but as respects consignors and consignees, and persons furnishing supplies and repairs, depend upon the question whether the charter party reserves to the owner the right of possession and of control, or divests him of it, and gives it to the freighter, so as to make the latter the owner pro hac vice. In the absence of express words on this point, it is to be determined as a question of construction upon the whole instrument, whether the owner intended to part with possession. But the contract may limit or relieve the owner's liability imposed by the passenger laws of the congress. *

Where the owner of a vessel charters her for a voyage, equips her himself, hiring and paying the crew, and furnishing them with provisions, and reserving room for them and the provisions, the hirer is not owner of the vessel pro hac vice, but the original ownership continues. Where, by the terms of the charter, the shipowner appoints the master and mariners, and retains the management and control of the vessel, the charter is rather to be considered as a covenant to carry goods. Where, however, the whole management is given over to the freighter, it is more properly a hiring of the vessel for the voyage; and in such case the hirer is deemed owner pro hac vice. The owner of the vessel is presumed to warrant the vessel's seaworthiness.

486. Charter Party Reserving Possession to the Owner.

THIS CHARTER PARTY, made and concluded upon the day of , in the year one thousand nine hundred and , between A. B., master and part owner [or, agent for the owners, or otherwise, as the fact may be] of the ship [or other vessel, naming it], of , of which is master, of the burden of tons or thereabouts,¹ register measurement, now lying in the harbor of , of the first part, and Y. Z., of , in the state of , merchant, of the second part, WITNESSETH, that the said party of the first part, for and in consideration of the covenants and agreements hereinafter mentioned, to be kept and performed by the said party of the second part, does covenant and agree on the freighting and chartering of the said vessel unto the said party of the second part, for a voyage from [here describe the voyage — e. g., thus:] the port of M. to N., and return to M., and on the terms following — that is to say:

1. The said party of the first part engages that the said vessel, in and during the said voyage, shall be kept tight, staunch, well-fitted, tackled, and provided with every requisite, and with men and provisions necessary for such a voyage.

2. The said party of the first part further engages that the whole of the said vessel (with the exception of the cabin, the deck, and the necessary room for the accommodation of the crew, and the stowage of the sails, cables, and provisions)² shall be at the sole use and disposal of the said party of the second part during the voyage aforesaid; and that no goods or merchandise whatever shall be laden on board, otherwise than from the said party of the second part, or his agent, without his consent, on pain of forfeiture of the amount of freight agreed upon for the same.³

3. The said party of the first part further engages to take and receive on board the said vessel, during the aforesaid voyage, all such lawful goods and merchandise as the said party of the second part, or his agents, may think proper to ship [under and on deck].

4. And the party of the first part agrees to proceed with all dispatch from M. direct to N., and return to M., and there discharge the cargo aforesaid. [Here may be inserted any special stipulations which may be agreed as to the use of the vessel — e. g., the following:] The party of the second part is to have the use of the cabin for passengers, and to carry, if desired, steerage passengers on the between-deck, and to provide for the same himself.

[Or thus:] It is further agreed, that the vessel takes one passenger, free of expense, he furnishing all his extra stores, etc.

² Such a provision as this contemplates no merely accommodations absolutely necessary and literally indispensable, but that the officers and crew are to be accommodated in the mode adapted or fitted to their station, the character of the vessel and the nature of the voyage being taken into consideration. Almgren v. Dutihl, 5 N. Y., 28.

³ Where the charter party contains such provisions as the two foregoing, which are in the usual form, and the owners appoint the master, they are deemed to continue in possession, and may have a lien for their charter money upon all merchandise. Holmes v. Pavenstedt, 5 Sandf. 97 and cases cited; McTaggart v. Henry, 3 E. D. Smith, 390; Williams v. Johnson, 11 Barb. 501.

It is also further agreed, that the vessel takes out, on deck, eight to ten horses, the party of the second part fitting up stalls, and furnishing everything necessary for their accommodation.]

And the said party of the second part, for and in consideration of the covenants and agreements to be kept and performed by the said party of the first part, covenants and agrees, with the said party of the first part, to charter and hire the said vessel as aforesaid, on the terms following — that is to say:

1. The said party of the second part engages to provide and furnish to the said vessel a full cargo of lawful merchandise, or at least sufficient for ballast.

2. The said party of the second part further engages to pay to the said party of the first part, or his agent, for the charter or freight of the said vessel during the voyage aforesaid, in manner following — that is to say: [here set forth the terms agreed on — e. g., thus:] dollars, payable upon delivery of her cargo at M. The party of the first part is to pay all the expenses of the vessel, including port charges and stevedore bills.

[Or thus: dollars per calendar month, and so in proportion for a less time, so long as the said vessel shall be continued in the aforesaid service, such payment to be made in the manner following — that is to say: Charter payable upon termination of the voyage, except so much as the captain may require for his disbursements in foreign ports, which is to be advanced on account of this charter, free of commissions. And the said party of the second part further engages to pay all the foreign port charges on the vessel during the aforesaid voyage, including lighterage, pilotage, and consuls' fees.]

It is further agreed between the parties to this instrument, that the said party of the second part shall be allowed for the loading and discharging of the vessel at the respective ports aforesaid, lay days as follows — that is to say: Dispatch loading and discharging at the port of , and [running¹] days at the port of ; and in case the vessel is detained, the said party of the second part agrees to pay to the said party of the first part, demurrage at the rate of dollars per day, day by day, for every day so detained, provided such detention shall happen by default of the said party of the second part, or his agent.

It is also further understood and agreed, that the cargo or cargoes shall be received and delivered alongside of the vessel, within reach of her tackles, or according to the customs and usages at the ports of loading and discharging.

It is also further understood and agreed, that this charter shall commence² when the vessel is ready to receive cargo at her place of loading, and notice thereof is given to the party of the second part, or to his agent [and terminate on the return of the vessel and the discharge of her cargo at the last port of delivery].

It is also further understood and agreed, that the risks and responsibilities assumed by the party of the first part are solely and only those of his neglects or omissions, and of that of his servants. And that all and every other of the risks, hazards, and contingencies, of the elements and navigation, of all and every class, character, and description, are assumed and to be borne by the party of the second part.

¹ A provision for "running days" is, in effect, a positive stipulation by the freighter that he will load and unload within the time mentioned. An inevitable accident does not excuse him. Field v. Chase, Hill & D. Supp. 50; S. C., N. Y. Leg. Obs. 8.

² If the charter party fixes a day for the vessel to be in readiness, it may be regarded as a condition precedent, if upon the whole instrument such appears to be the clear intent of the parties. Weisser v. Maitland, 3 Sandf. 318.

[Here any special stipulations may be inserted, such as the following:] It is understood that the vessel is to carry out to N., tons measurement of assorted cargo, or more if she can, provided that she is not in any case to draw over feet of water, and to bring back hogshheads of sugar, or its equivalent, or more if she can, provided that she is not in any case to draw more than feet of water.

To the true performance of all and every of the foregoing covenants and agreements, the said parties, each to the other, do hereby bind themselves, their heirs, executors, administrators, and assigns (especially the said party of the first part, the said vessel, her freight, tackle, and appurtenances; and the said party of the second part, the merchandise to be laden on board), each to the other in the penal sum of dollars.

IN WITNESS WHEREOF, the said parties have hereunto interchangeably set their hands and seals, the day and year above written.

Signed, sealed, and delivered, in the presence of [Signatures and seals.]

487. Charter Party Giving Possession to the Hirer.

THESE ARTICLES OF AGREEMENT, made and entered into this day of , A. D. , by and between A. B., of , of the first part, and Y. Z., of the city of , of the second part, WITNESSETH: The said party of the first part has this day chartered and hired unto the said party of the second part the steamboat , of [designating her port], and of the burden of tons, or thereabouts, with all the appurtenances, cables, anchors, chains, etc., which belong to said steamboat, for the term of months, from the day of , to be delivered at the port of . But in case the said A. B. shall deliver the said boat at any time before said day, the said term shall take date from the time of delivery.

For the use of said steamboat, said Y. Z. agrees and binds himself to pay to the said A. B. dollars, the payments to be made as follows: dollars on the delivery of said boat; dollars on the day of , and dollars at the expiration of said months. And it is further understood, that the said Y. Z. shall be at all the expense of manning and furnishing said boat for the time above stated, and shall return the same to the said A. B. at the port of , in as good condition as it now is, with the exception of the ordinary use and wear;¹ and if the said Y. Z. shall at any time refuse to fulfil on his part, the said A. B. shall have the right to take possession of the said boat wherever the same be found.

IN WITNESS [etc., as in preceding form].

CHAPTER XVIII.

CHATTEL MORTGAGES.

A CHATTEL MORTGAGE is a transfer of the title to chattels, with or without possession, as security for a debt or liability, and upon condition that the transfer shall be void if the debt or liability be paid or discharged. If the debt is not paid at the time appointed, the mortgagee becomes absolute owner, and has a right to take the chattels into his own possession if they are not in his possession already, and his creditors have likewise a right to levy on the chattels as his property. But the mortgagor has a right to redeem them from the mortgagee, and this right the mortgagee can only cut off by a sale, applying the proceeds to payment of the debt. But he is not bound to sell, unless the mortgage requires him to do so; he may keep the goods, as owner, subject only to the mortgagee's right to redeem. And if they are of sufficient value to pay the debt, his so doing may be regarded as payment.

Description of Debt and of Chattels.—The true amount of the indebtedness or liability to be secured should be stated in a chattel mortgage; and the goods should be described with sufficient precision to identify them. The goods may be described in a schedule annexed and referred to in the mortgage, and such a schedule is regarded as a part of the mortgage, and both papers are construed together. The goods may be designated in general terms in the mortgage, and an intention to make and annex a schedule subsequently may be expressed. If the schedule is referred to as being annexed, it is essential that it be so annexed, or the instrument is not complete or effectual. But if the goods are designated, and an intention to annex a schedule is expressed, the omission to fulfil the intention is not necessarily fatal, although it may be a suspicious circumstance indicating fraud as against other creditors.

A chattel mortgage cannot, as a general rule, be made effectually to cover property not in existence or which the mortgagor may afterwards acquire, so as to secure it against his other creditors; but in many of the states chattel mortgages upon crops to be grown, and to grow which money or seed is advanced, are very common. It may be made to secure future advances as well as existing indebtedness, if the intent is expressed in the instrument; and it will be effectual to the extent of such advances as are actually made in good faith, before any other creditor or purchaser acquires a lien or title to the property.

Possession.—It has long been a disputed question whether, to constitute a valid mortgage as against other creditors, the mortgagee must, unless the mortgage is filed, take possession of the goods at the time of receiving the mortgage. The rule now generally accepted is, that if the goods, at the time of the mortgage, are in the possession or under the control of the mortgagor, there must be an immediate and continued change of possession; otherwise the transaction will be presumed to be fraudulent as against his creditors or subsequent purchasers in good faith; and the mortgagee or those claiming under him must, in order to sustain the mortgage, prove affirmatively that it was made in good faith and without any intent to defraud.

If the mortgage contains no clause as to the right of possession, the mortgagee is entitled, by virtue of the title it vests in him, to take immediate possession without any default on the part of the mortgagor. Therefore, where the mortgagor is to retain possession until default, as may safely be allowed if good faith can be proved, it is usual to insert a clause securing to him the right to do so. This should be in express terms. A clause authorizing the mortgagee to take possession, in certain circumstances, is not regarded as impliedly excluding his right to do so in other circumstances. Most of these points are now covered by direct legislation in most of the states.

But the mortgagor cannot reserve power to sell the property, unless it be stipulated that he is to apply the proceeds in payment of the mortgage; for to reserve the right to sell for his own benefit would be to attempt to create a trust for his own benefit, contrary to the statute of fraudulent conveyances. So, where the mortgage is a stock of goods in a store, if any such reservation is inserted, the mortgagor should be required by it to sell for cash, and apply the proceeds in payment of the debt. For the same reason, if the mortgage of a stock of goods in a store is expressed to include all others which may be brought in to replace goods sold, this implied power to sell should be accompanied by the same restrictions.

Danger Clause.—Where a clause giving the mortgagee the right to retain possession until default is inserted, it is usual to add a qualification, that if the goods should be removed or disposed of, or a removal or disposal attempted, or if for other reasons the mortgagee's security should become inadequate, he may thereupon take possession. This is termed the danger clause.

Demand.—If a chattel mortgage specifies no time of payment, and does not expressly require a demand, demand is not necessary. If it is payable on demand, a demand, though necessary to put the mortgagor in default, is not necessary to enable the mortgagee to maintain his title as against third persons unlawfully interfering with the property.

Sale.—If a chattel mortgage contains no provision requiring a sale, the mortgagee may sell or not as he chooses; and a sale may be without judicial proceedings, reasonable notice being given. If the goods can be sold in separate parcels, no more should be sold than is necessary to pay the debt and expenses.

Personal Liability.—Giving a chattel mortgage does not necessarily render the mortgagor personally liable for the sum secured; but a promise to pay the sum, or a recital that the mortgage is given to secure an indebtedness, does render the mortgagor personally liable, and, in such case, he may be sued on the mortgage in the first instance without resorting to the property.

Filing.—To prevent imposition upon subsequent purchasers and mortgagees, it is generally required that unless there is an actual and continued change of possession, the chattel mortgage, or a copy, must be filed or recorded in the town or city where the mortgagor resides, or where the property is located. This is not essential to the validity of a mortgage as against the mortgagor, but is absolutely essential as against other creditors, and subsequent purchasers and mortgages in good faith. All the states and territories, as well as some of the outlying dependencies, now have elaborate provisions governing chattel mortgages, which are given at length below. These should be carefully examined in each case. The usual forms of chattel mortgages, conditional bills of sale, crop mortgages and other similar papers in use in the several states are inserted.

Many of the corporate mortgages executed by railroads, etc., cover chattels and chattel interests, and are much more elaborate in their provisions than the earlier forms of chattel mortgages. See chapter on MORTGAGES, under Equipment Mortgage, Collateral Trust Mortgage, etc.

II. STATUTORY PROVISIONS AND FORMS IN COMMON USE IN THE SEVERAL STATES.

A very full digest of the statutory provisions and also of the forms prevalent in the several states is given below.

In most of the states, an affidavit of interest or of "good faith" is required to be attached to a chattel mortgage at the time of its execution, or at some subsequent period.

Such affidavits are to be made by the mortgagee, and, in some states, by both parties.

ALABAMA.

No statutory form. Conveyance of personal property to secure debts or provide indemnity must be recorded in county where grantor resides and in county where property is at date of conveyance, unless property is immediately removed to county of grantor's residence. If property is removed to another county, must be again recorded in the county to which removed within three months after removal. II Code of 1907, § 3376.

If personal property is subject to any lien, encumbrance, mortgage or trust for security of debts when removed to this state, the writing evidencing the lien, encumbrance, mortgage or trust must be recorded in the county into which it is brought and remain within three months after the arrival of such property. Ibid., § 3377.

If tenant for life or years in personal property removes to this state with such property, the conveyance creating such estate must be recorded in the county to which it was brought within twelve months thereafter. If such property is removed to another county, then in such county within four months after its removal thereto, or such property must be taken to vest absolutely in such person as to purchasers or creditors without notice. Ibid., § 3378.

Contracts for conditional sale of railroad equipment or rolling stock, by which vendor retains title until payment of purchase money and the purchaser has possession, are void against judgment creditors of purchaser without notice, or purchasers from him for value without notice, unless such contracts are in writing and recorded within three months in office of the judge of probate of the county where such corporation may have its principal office or place of business and if it has not in this state a principal office or place of business, then in the office of the secretary of state and in addition all cars and engines must have thereon plainly marked the name of the vendor. Ibid., § 3393.

All other contracts for conditional sale of personal property by which vendor retains title until purchase money is paid and purchaser has possession, and all contracts for lease, rent or hire of personal property, by which the property is delivered to another on condition that it shall belong to him whenever the amount paid shall be a certain sum or the value of the property, the title to remain in vendor until such sum or value is paid, are as to such condition void against purchasers for a valuable consideration, mortgagees and judgment creditors without notice thereof, unless in writing and recorded in office of judge of probate of county in which party so obtaining possession resides and also in county in which such property is delivered and remains. If before payment, the property is removed to another county, the contract must be again recorded within three months from time of removal in county to which it is removed. If such property is brought into this state while subject to such condition, the contract must within three months be recorded in county into which the property is brought and remains. Ibid., § 3394.

Such contract, when acknowledged or proved and recorded must be received in evidence without other proof of execution and if original is lost or destroyed or party offering a certified transcript has not the custody or control of original, a certified transcript from record must be received in evidence without further proof of the execution of the original. Ibid., § 3395.

Power of sale usually contained in mortgage. Foreclosure is by action of detinue. Ibid., §§ 3788-3792.

Conveyances of personal property to secure debts or to provide indemnity are inoperative against creditors and purchasers without notice until recorded, unless the property is brought into state subject to such incumbrances, when three months are allowed for registration. If property removed to different county from that in which grantor resides, conveyance must be recorded in such county within three months from removal, or it ceases to have effect after such three months against creditors or purchasers of the grantor without notice. Ibid., § 3386.

This includes absolute conveyances of personal property, defeasible by a defeasance or other instrument and in such case the defeasance must be recorded as above or it will be void as to creditors and purchasers without notice. Ibid., § 3387.

All loans in writing, wills or conveyances, creating estates in personal property on condition, in reversion or remainder or in which the use is separated from the right, other than conveyances above specified, and under which possession is suffered to remain for three years with the party entitled to the estate or use, vest an absolute estate in the person so having possession for such number of years as to creditors and purchasers of such person, unless such loan, will or conveyance is recorded within such time in the county where such property is. Ibid., § 3389.

All loans of personal property not in writing vest an absolute estate in the person in possession under such loan as to purchasers and creditors of such person after three years from the commencement of such loan, unless within that time the lender commences an action at law in good faith for the recovery of the property. Ibid., § 3390.

All conveyances of personal property in favor of minor children, except by will, where the custody, control and visible possession thereof is suffered to remain by the donor with the father or mother of such children vest an absolute estate in such father or mother so in possession in favor of the purchasers from and creditors of such father or mother without notice, unless the conveyance is recorded within three years after such possession commenced in this state, in the county of residence of father or mother. Ibid., § 3391.

Parol gifts of personal property are inoperative, until the custody, control, management and use of the property passes from the donor to the donee and is possessed by such donee or his agent. When donee is a minor living with his parents or either of them the possession of the father or parent with whom he is living must be considered the possession of the child. Ibid., § 3392.

Homestead exemption shall not extend to mortgage, but mortgage or other alienation of homestead by owner, if married man, shall not be valid without voluntary signature and assent of wife. Const., Art. XIV, § 2.

ALASKA.

Chattel mortgage or conveyance intended to operate as such shall be kept by the commissioner in his office upon presentation to him and payment of fees. It becomes invalid against creditors, subsequent purchasers or mortgagees in good faith at end of year, unless within thirty days next preceding the expiration of the year the mortgagee, his agent or attorney, shall make and annex to the instrument, or copy on file as aforesaid, an affidavit setting forth the interest which the mortgagee has by virtue of such mortgage in the property therein mentioned and such affidavit must be renewed each year within thirty days next preceding the time when such mortgage would otherwise cease to be valid. A copy certified by commissioner including the affidavit may be received in evidence to show the receipt and filing according to the endorsement of the commissioner thereon and of any other fact. Code of 1900, p. 378, §§ 125-129, Civil Code.

Chattel mortgage is valid against creditors, subsequent purchasers and incumbrances in good faith for value only if property is delivered to and retained by mortgagee or mortgage provides that the property may remain in the possession of the mortgagor, and be accompanied by an affidavit of all the parties thereto, or in case any party is absent from the precinct where such mortgage is executed at the time of the execution thereof, an affidavit of those present and of the agent or attorney in fact of such absent party that the same is made in good faith to secure the amount named therein and without any design to hinder, delay or defraud creditors and acknowledged and filed as provided. Ibid., p. 420, § 311.

Subject to the provisions of section 311, one member of a firm of general partners may alone execute a mortgage of personal property and make affidavit thereon required on behalf of the firm and, in case of a corporation, the president, secretary or managing agent thereof may make affidavit on its behalf. Ibid., p. 420, § 312.

Such mortgages must be acknowledged like conveyances of real property. Ibid., p. 421, § 313.

Chattel mortgage, with affidavits of parties or copy, certified by person before whom acknowledged, must be filed in office of recorder of precinct where mortgagor resides and of precinct where property is at execution of mortgage, or, if nonresident, then in office of recorder of precinct where property is at execution. A mortgage so filed shall be void as against creditors or subsequent purchasers or mortgagees in good faith, after a year from filing unless within thirty days next preceding the expiration of the year, a copy, with verified statement of the interest of mortgagee at time of renewal is again filed in the same office. Such renewal extends the lien one year as against creditors, purchasers, and encumbrancers. Ibid., p. 421, §§ 314, 315.

Any subsequent mortgagee may at any time during the existence of a prior mortgage which has been so extended or renewed, pay the amount of interest and debt owing and secured thereby, as shown by verified statement and mortgage or deposit the full amount thereof with the recorder of the precinct wherein such verified statement and mortgage are filed, subject to order of mortgagee, his personal representatives or assigns, and the receipt or duplicate for the payment or deposit shall be filed and attached to mortgage and thereby the subsequent mortgagee is subrogated. Ibid., p. 421, § 316.

Mortgaged property may be taken on attachment or execution of mortgagor's creditor, but before taking the property the officer must pay or tender to mortgagee or the assignee thereof the amount of mortgage debt and interest or must deposit the amount thereof with the recorder of the precinct in which mortgage is filed, payable to the order of the mortgagee or assignee. When property thus taken is sold, proceeds of sale go first to the repayment of the sum paid to the mortgagee or assignee, with interest from the date of such payment and the balance, if any, as proceeds of sale under execution are applied in other cases. Ibid., p. 421, § 317.

Certified copy of mortgage by recorder in whose office same is filed may be read in evidence, if original is lost or out of the power of person wishing to use it. Ibid., p. 422, § 318.

Action for foreclosure of mortgage or enforcement of any lien on personal property may be commenced and conducted like foreclosure of mortgages and liens upon real property and the same may be joined in an action for the recovery of the possession of the property mortgaged, but mortgagor may insert in mortgage a clause authorizing the marshal to execute the power of sale therein granted to the mortgagee, his legal representatives and assigns, in which case the marshal at the time of default, at the request of the mortgagee, must advertise and sell the whole or any part of the mortgaged property, wherever it may be and mortgagee, or his representatives or assigns may in good faith purchase the property so sold or any part thereof. The marshal may require an indemnity bond from the mortgagee, or his assigns, before taking possession of or selling the mortgaged property. Ibid., p. 422, § 320.

When debt or obligation paid or discharged, acknowledgment of satisfaction must be indorsed by mortgagee, his representatives or assigns upon the mortgage or copy filed. Ibid., p. 422, § 321.

Any mortgagor selling the property or any part thereof to a third party, for a valuable consideration, without informing him of the existence and effect of such mortgage shall forfeit and pay to the purchaser twice the value of such property so sold. Ibid., p. 422, § 322.

The lien of a mortgage on a growing crop continues on the crop after severance, whether remaining in its original state or converted into another product, so long as the same remains on the land of the mortgagor. Ibid., p. 423, § 323.

ARIZONA.

No chattel mortgage shall have any legal force or effect except between the parties, unless the residence of mortgagor and mortgagee, the sum to be secured, the rate of interest to be paid, when and where payable, shall be set out in the mortgage and the mortgagor and mortgagee must make affidavit to the effect that the mortgage is bona fide and without any design to defraud or delay creditors, which affidavit shall be attached to mortgage. Revised Statutes, 1901, § 3282.

Every mortgage, deed of trust or other form of lien attempted to be given by the owner of any stock of goods, wares or merchandise daily exposed to sale in parcels in the regular course of business of such merchandise and contemplating a continuance of possession of such goods and control of said business by sale of said goods by said owner shall be deemed fraudulent and void. Ibid., § 3283.

Every chattel mortgage, deed of trust or other instrument in writing, intended to operate as a mortgage of or lien upon personal property, not accompanied by immediate delivery and followed by actual and continued change of possession, shall be absolutely void against creditors of mortgagor or person making the same and as against subsequent purchasers and mortgagees or lien holders in good faith, unless such instrument or a copy is forthwith deposited with and filed in office of county recorder of county where property is situated and also, if mortgagor or person making same be resident of territory, in county where he resides. Ibid., § 3284.

Certified copy may be used as evidence. Ibid., § 3286.

Mortgagor cannot remove property pledged from the county or otherwise sell or dispose of same without consent of mortgagee. In case of any violation of this provision, mortgagee is entitled to possession of property and to have same then sold for the payment of his debt, whether same has become due or not. Ibid., § 3289.

If property removed out of county where mortgage recorded, it must be recorded within new county within one month after such removal, or as to property so removed be void so long as not recorded as to all creditors and purchasers thereof for valuable consideration without notice. Ibid., § 3291.

A mortgage of personal property, where the time of payment is therein fixed, may be foreclosed by notice and sale, unless a stipulation in writing to the contrary has been agreed upon by the parties or by action in the proper court. Notice must contain full description of property mortgaged, together with time, place and terms of sale. Ibid., §§ 3292, 3293.

And must be served on the mortgagor and all purchasers from him subsequent to the execution of mortgage, and on all persons having recorded liens upon same property, junior to mortgage. Ibid., § 3294.

After service of notice, it must be posted in three public places in the county at least ten days before date of sale and be published at least once in a newspaper published in the county. The purchaser shall take all the title and interest on which the mortgage operated. Ibid., § 3295.

Attorneys' fees may be collected if provided for in note or mortgage. Ibid., § 3296.

Officer or person conducting the sale shall execute to purchaser bill of sale of property. Ibid., § 3297.

Evidence of service, publication and posting of notice aforesaid and of sale made in accordance therewith, together with any postponement or other material matter shall be perpetuated by affidavits reciting the facts, attached to bill of sale, and shall constitute the return of the officer or person making sale and be receivable in evidence to prove the facts they state. Ibid., § 3298.

Such sales made as above are valid as to property sold to purchaser in good faith. Ibid., § 3299.

The right to foreclosure, as well as the amount due, may be contested by anyone interested in so doing and proceedings may be transferred to the district court, for which purpose an injunction may issue if necessary. Ibid., § 3300.

Where chattel property is pledged as security for an indebtedness, unless provision is made by agreement in writing therefor, property may be sold for nonpayment of indebtedness by giving the pledgor or any purchaser or assignee under him ten days' notice in writing of intention to sell the same and make application of proceeds to satisfaction of debt, and by posting for same time in three public places in the county of pledgor's residence and by publishing at least once in a newspaper published in the county, a notice containing a description of the property to be sold and the time, hour and place of sale. If redemption is not made before day thus fixed, pledgee may sell at public auction to highest bidder the pledged property or so much thereof as necessary to pay debt, interest and all costs of making sale and may be a bidder at such sale. He shall apply proceeds first to payment of costs, second to payment of debt and return surplus if any of proceeds and any unsold property to pledgor or his assigns. Ibid., § 3301.

Such pledgee may commence action for foreclosure of such collaterals or pledges and the court shall determine all issues presented as in other cases and render judgment for amount due from pledgor and award execution for the sale of the collaterals or pledges and execution for any balance, or render any judgment necessary to carry out any written agreement of the parties concerning the subject matter, but in all cases a sale may be ordered, unless there is a written stipulation to the contrary. Ibid., § 3302.

Chattel mortgage may be in substantially the following form:

521. Chattel Mortgage, Statutory Form.

This mortgage, made the _____ day of _____, in the year _____, by A. B., of _____, by occupation a _____, mortgagor, to C. D., of _____, by occupation a _____, mortgagee, witnesseth:

That the mortgagor mortgages to the mortgagee [here describe the property], as security for the payment to him of _____ dollars, on [or before] the day of _____, in the year _____, with interest thereon [or, as security for the payment of a note or obligation, describing it, etc.] A. B. Ibid., § 2956.

Chattel mortgage is void against creditors and subsequent purchasers and encumbrancers in good faith and for value, unless accompanied by affidavit of all parties thereto that it is made in good faith and without any design to hinder, delay, or defraud creditors, and unless acknowledged and recorded like grant of real property. Ibid., §§ 2957, 2963.

Mortgage of vessel or part of it under United States flag is void against any person (other than mortgagor, his heirs and devisees, and persons with actual notice), unless recorded in office of collector of customs where vessel registered or enrolled. Ibid., § 2958.

Chattel mortgage must be recorded in office of county recorder where mortgagor resides, if resident of State, and also in county where property situated or to which it is removed. Ibid., § 2959.

Property in transit from mortgagee to county of mortgagor's residence or to a location for use, is, during a reasonable time for such transportation, deemed situated in county where mortgagor resides or where intended to be used. Ibid., § 2960.

Certified copy of chattel mortgage once recorded may be recorded in any other county with the force and effect of a record of the original. Ibid., § 2964.

When personal property mortgaged is removed from county where situated, lien is not affected for thirty days after removal but, after that period, the property is exempted from mortgage, except as between the parties, unless mortgagee causes it to be recorded in county to which removed or takes possession of it and disposes of it as a pledge for payment of debt, though the debt is not due, and this the mortgagee may do, if the mortgagor voluntarily so removes it or permits its removal. Ibid., §§ 2965, 2966.

Mortgagee of personal property when debt becomes due may foreclose mortgagor's right of redemption by sale of property made in the manner and upon the notice prescribed in case of pledges or by proceedings under the Code of Civil Procedure. Ibid., § 2967.

Chattel mortgages other than those mentioned in section 2955, and mortgages not made in conformity with the above provisions, are valid between the parties, their heirs, legatees, and personal representatives, and persons who, before parting with value, have actual notice thereof. Ibid., § 2973.

A mortgage can be created, renewed, or extended, only by writing, executed with the formalities required in the case of a grant of real property. Ibid., § 2922.

Power of attorney to execute mortgage must be in writing, acknowledged and recorded like powers of attorney for grants of real property. Ibid., § 2933.

Assignment of mortgage may be recorded like a mortgage and the record is notice to persons subsequently deriving title to mortgage from assignor. Ibid., § 2934.

When the mortgage is security for money due or to become due on note, bond, or other instrument designated in mortgage, record of assignment is not notice to mortgagor, heirs or representatives, so as to invalidate any payment to person holding the note, bond, or other instrument. Ibid., § 2935.

Assignment of debt secured by mortgage carries with it the mortgage. Ibid., § 2936.

For provisions as to the discharge of mortgages, see ibid., §§ 2938-2941.

DELAWARE.

A bona fide mortgage of personal property, duly signed, sealed, delivered and acknowledged like a real estate mortgage, shall for three years be a valid lien, if lodged for record in recorder's office of each county where any of the mortgaged property is held within ten days from the time of the acknowledgment thereof. After default of sixty days in payment of a mortgage or an installment thereof, if it be payable by installment, it may be foreclosed by the same process and means as are used in the case of mortgages of real estate, and judgment may be obtained as well for default of appearance or want of affidavit of defense as upon trial. Proceeds of sale shall be paid to liens upon the property in the order of their priority and any surplus to the mortgagor or his executors, administrators or assigns. It shall be no objection to a mortgage of chattels that the same or any of them are already subject to execution or mortgage lien. No such mortgage shall be valid, unless there be endorsed upon it or annexed to it, and to be recorded with it, an affidavit that said mortgage was made for the bona fide purpose of securing the debt or making indemnity as the case may be, and was not made to cover property of mortgagor or to protect it from his creditors, or to hinder or delay them in the collection of their debts. If any mortgagor shall, without consent of mortgagee, remove mortgaged property from county where it is situated or in which it was at the time of making mortgage, he shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, and upon conviction shall be fined in a sum equal to value of property removed and be imprisoned for a term not exceeding one year. Revised Code, 1893, p. 633.

Code of Laws, 1905, § 546.

No conditional sale of chattels, where the property is delivered to purchaser, but by terms of which title is not to pass until price of said chattels is fully paid, where the purchase price exceeds one hundred dollars, shall be valid as to innocent third parties, unless the terms of said sale are reduced to writing and signed by parties and acknowledged by purchaser and recorded like a chattel mortgage, and shall be operative as to third parties without actual notice of it from the time of being so recorded. Ibid., § 547.

All written instruments conveying or selling property to secure payment of money are deemed mortgages. General Statutes of 1906, § 2494.

No chattel mortgage is valid against creditors or subsequent purchasers for valuable consideration without notice, unless recorded or unless property is delivered to mortgagee and remains bona fide in his possession. To entitle it to record, it must be acknowledged like a real property mortgage. Ibid., §§ 2496, 2497.

Any creditor suing to foreclose mortgage on personal property in possession of debtor, may have an attachment against it by filing in the court where the proceedings are being had, an affidavit sworn to by him or his agent, or attorney, that he has reason to believe and does believe the property or part of it will be concealed or disposed of so as not to be forthcoming to answer a judgment, or will be removed beyond jurisdiction of court, or is of perishable character and being used and consumed by the mortgagor or other parties. Such affidavit shall also describe specifically the mortgaged property and state a bill has been filed or other suit brought to foreclose the mortgage, the amount of the debt or demand secured by the mortgage and that the same is actually due. The mortgage or certified copy shall be attached to affidavit. Ibid., §§ 2104, 2105, 2109.

The writ of attachment shall describe the property and command the officer to take and hold it or so much as can be found sufficient to satisfy the debt. Ibid., § 2112.

Property may be restored to any person making affidavit that he is owner of equity of redemption and giving bond with two sureties approved by officer conditioned to pay debt and costs to plaintiff when adjudicated to be so payable. Ibid., § 2117.

In foreclosure, original mortgage or certified copy shall be annexed to and form part of bill of complaint. Ibid., §§ 1868, 2502.

In counties where no county court, justices of peace have jurisdiction in actions to foreclose mortgages on personal property when debt not over $100. Mortgagee upon commencing suit in a justice's court upon the debt may file therewith the mortgage and upon judgment for the debt the same shall operate as foreclosure and lien shall be enforced by execution as in other cases, except that he shall enforce the judgment against the property mortgaged before resorting to other property of defendant. The defendant may defend upon legal and equitable grounds and third persons interpose claims to the property, as in other suits. Ibid., §§ 2073, 2089.

GEORGIA.

A mortgage on personalty must be recorded in county where mortgagor resided at time of its execution, if a resident of the State. If a nonresident, then in county where mortgaged property is. If on personalty not within limits of this state and such property is afterwards brought within the state, mortgage shall be recorded as above within six months after such property is so brought in.

All chattel mortgages of stocks of goods, wares and merchandise or other personal property, shall be recorded; in case the same is upon property or goods located in some other county than that of the mortgagor's residence, in the county where said goods or personal property is located at time of execution of mortgage in addition to record in the county of mortgagor's residence. Where mortgage is not recorded as now provided by law, but said mortgage is renewed or re-executed, it shall act as a lien upon the property of mortgagor, only as against the mortgagor himself and those having actual notice of such mortgage, except from date of record. Code of 1895, § 2726.

Chattel mortgage may embrace all property in possession or to which the mortgagor has the right of possession at the time, or may cover a stock of goods or other things in bulk but changing in specifics, in which case the lien is lost on all articles disposed of by mortgagor up to time of foreclosure and attaches to purchases made to supply their places. A mortgage given by a person or corporation to a trustee or trustees to secure an issue of bonds shall, when expressly so stipulated, embrace and cover after acquired property. Supplement to Code, § 6174, (a).

No particular form is necessary to constitute a mortgage. It must clearly indicate the creation of a lien, specify the debt to secure which it is given and the property upon which it is to take effect. It must be executed in the presence of and attested by or proved before a notary public or justice of any court in this state or a clerk of the Superior Court and recorded. Code of 1895, § 2724.

Mortgages on personal property shall be foreclosed by the mortgagee, or his agent or attorney in fact, or at law, going before some officer of the state authorized to administer oaths or a commissioner for this state residing in some other state and making affidavit of the amount of principal and interest due on such mortgage, which affidavit shall be annexed to such mortgage or to a copy thereof, verified as correct by the affidavit thereon of the owner or his agent or attorney and when such mortgage or sworn copy with such affidavit annexed thereto shall be filed in office of clerk of Superior Court of the county wherein mortgagor resides at date of foreclosure if a resident of the state, or where he resided at date of mortgage, if a nonresident, it shall be duty of such a clerk to issue an execution, directed to all and singular the sheriffs or their lawful deputies and coroners of this state, commanding the sale of the mortgaged property to satisfy the principal and interest, together with the costs of the proceedings to foreclose said mortgage. Supplement to Code of 1901, § 6175.

Wherever process of attachment can be legally sued out against any person, upon any debt or judgment secured by chattel mortgage or whenever the purchaser of mortgaged property is seeking to remove same beyond the limits of county the creditor may foreclose his mortgage as above, except that he need not state that the debt or demand is due, but shall state facts as above and the amount of the debt or demand claimed and when the same will become due. Code of 1895, § 2754.

After a levy of execution on the mortgaged property, the defendant may file his affidavit of illegality, in which he may avail himself of any defense that he could have set up in ordinary suit upon the demand secured by the mortgage and show that he is not justly indebted to the plaintiff in the sum claimed in said affidavit of foreclosure. Code of 1895, § 2756.

Officer to whom execution delivered must levy on mortgaged property and advertise it in one or more public gazettes of state weekly for four weeks before day of sale and expose the property to sale at the time and place and in same manner as govern at sheriffs' sales. Ibid., § 2757.

Mortgagee in mortgage on personal property to secure not over $100 principal or his agent or attorney may make affidavit of principal and interest due and annex it to mortgage and when mortgage or verified copy with the affidavit annexed is filed with justice of peace in county where mortgagor resides, if resident of state, or, if nonresident, then in county where mortgaged property may be, such magistrate must issue execution to the constables of state, commanding sale of property to satisfy principal and interest and costs of foreclosure. Constable to whom such execution is delivered must levy on the mortgaged property wherever found and after advertising it by written advertisements, giving full description of property and the process under which he is proceeding, at three or more public places in district where property found, for ten days next preceding sale, he shall expose it to sale. If the sale is within the legal hours of sale on regular court day and at usual place of holding justice courts for said district, he shall expose it to sale at the time and place, and in the same manner, as govern at constables' sales. Mortgagor may avail himself of any defense to such foreclosure in same manner and on same conditions as on foreclosure in superior courts, and when the defense is filed, the magistrate issuing the execution has jurisdiction to hear and determine the issues. It shall be the duty of the justice of the peace or notary public ex officio such a justice, with whom affidavit and mortgage are filed, to give notice to mortgagor of proceedings at time of issuing execution. Code of 1895, §§ 2760-2763.

Due record of mortgage, though not in time prescribed, is notice from time of record to all the world. Code of 1895, § 2730.

The creditor may avail himself of the mortgage, though note or other evidence of debt is barred. Ibid., § 2735.

Mortgagor having paid off mortgage may present it with order of mortgagee or transferee, directing cancellation and recording of order on record, to clerk of superior court of county or counties where mortgage recorded, and such clerk shall write across the record the word "satisfied" and the date of entry and sign name officially. Ibid., § 2737.

If mortgage is to secure several debts due at different times, mortgagee may foreclose when first becomes due, and court will control surplus so as to protect lien for debts not due. Ibid., § 2739.

So, if several mortgages of equal date or in same mortgage and one forecloses, court will control proceeds to distribute to mortgagees according to their claims. Ibid., § 2740.

Property mortgaged may be sold under other process, subject to lien of mortgage. If mortgage foreclosed, mortgagee may place his execution in hands of officer of law making sale and cause the title unencumbered to be sold and claim proceeds according to date of his lien. Ibid., § 2741.

Purchasers at public sales of property subject to lien of mortgage, shall give bond in double the value to officer making sale, conditioned not to remove property out of state and for its forthcoming to answer to lien, provided mortgagee or his agent files with the officer before sale an affidavit of amount due and that he apprehends loss of property unless bond be taken. On failure to give bond, property shall be resold at risk of purchaser. Ibid., § 2742.

When execution issues upon foreclosure of personal property mortgage, mortgagor or his special agent may file affidavit of illegality to such execution, setting up any defense he might set up, according to law, in ordinary suit on demand secured by mortgage which goes to show amount claimed is not due. Ibid., § 2755.

When such affidavit of illegality is filed and the mortgagor or his special agent or attorney gives bond to plaintiff, with good security, in sum not larger than twice the amount of the execution or, when the property levied on is of less value than the execution, double the value of property levied on, at reasonable valuation to be judged by levying officer, conditioned for return of property when called for by the officer, the officer shall postpone sale and return papers to court from which execution issued, where issue shall be tried as other cases of illegality, and jury shall be sworn to give at least 25% damages to plaintiff on principal sum, if it appear affidavit made for delay only. When mortgagor unable from poverty to give bond and makes affidavit of the fact, stating also therein that he has been advised and believes his grounds of illegality will be sustained, the affidavit shall be accepted in lieu of the bond but the property shall remain in hands of officer, unless sold under special order of court, as in cases of perishable property, or because expensive to keep or liable to deteriorate. Ibid., § 2766.

If mortgagor fails to set up and sustain defense, the property shall be sold and proceeds applied to judgment of said mortgage execution, unless claimed by another lien in hands of officer, entitled in law to priority of payment; and if, after satisfaction of such fi. fa. or other lien, there is surplus, same shall be paid to mortgagor or his agent. Ibid., § 2767.

If creditor of mortgagor, whether his debt be in judgment or not, desires to contest validity or fairness of mortgage lien or debt, he may make affidavit of the grounds relied on to defeat the mortgage, and on filing it with the levying officer, with bond and good security, payable to mortgagee, conditioned to pay costs and damages incurred by delay, if issue be found against contestant, the officer must return the same to the court to which the mortgage fi. fa. is made returnable, to be tried in manner prescribed for affidavit of illegality by mortgagor. Ibid., § 2769.

Holder of mortgage of personal property may foreclose it in equity according to practice of courts in equitable proceedings as well as by methods prescribed in Code. Ibid., § 2770.

When personal property is sold and delivered with the condition that the title is to remain in vendor until purchase price paid, every such conditional sale, in order to make the reservation of title valid against third parties must be evidenced in writing, executed and attested like mortgages on personal property. As between the parties the contract is valid and enforceable, whether evidenced in writing or not. Ibid., § 2776.

Conditional bills of sale must be recorded within thirty days from their date and in other respects are governed by laws relating to registration of mortgages. Ibid., § 2777.

Where contract to purchase personal property has been made or purchase money partly paid, and purchase money or secured debt has been reduced to judgment by payee, assignee or holder of debt, the holder of legal title or his executor or administrator shall, without order of court, execute to said defendant in fi. fa. or his executor or administrator a quitclaim to such personal property and file and have it recorded in the clerk's office, and thereupon it may be levied upon and sold as other property of defendant, and proceeds applied to payment of judgment or, if there be conflicting claims, applied as determined in proceedings for that purpose. Ibid., § 5432.

HAWAII.

All chattel mortgages must be recorded in the office of the registrar of conveyances, in default of which no such instrument shall be binding to the detriment of third parties, nor conclusive upon their rights and interest.

Foreclosure may be by sale under a power of sale or by suit before a judge without the intervention of a jury. Revised Laws of 1905, §§ 2381 and 2169, and § 2161, as amended in 1907.

IDAHO.

Otherwise, it is void against creditors and subsequent purchasers and incumbrancers in good faith and for value. Revised Code 1908, § 3408.

The recorder of mortgages shall cancel and erase, on the simple application in writing to that effect, by owner, creditor of owner, or other interested party, all inscriptions of mortgages which have existed or may exist on the record for a period exceeding ten years, without a renewal of such inscription, but this shall not apply to some special classes of mortgages designated. Ibid., § 2399.

MAINE.

Whoever, with fraudulent intent to place mortgaged personal property beyond control of mortgagee, removes or conceals or aids or abets in removing or concealing it, and any mortgagor who assents to such removal or concealment, is punishable by fine not exceeding $1,000 or imprisonment not exceeding one year. Revised Statutes of 1903, p. 941, § 4.

Personal property mortgaged, of which the debtor has the right of redemption, may be attached and sold, as if unencumbered, if attaching creditor first tenders or pays to mortgagee amount unpaid on the demand secured. When the personal property is claimed by virtue of the mortgage, the claimant shall not bring action against attaching officer, until he gives him at least forty-eight hours' written notice of claim and amount, and officer or creditor may, within that time, discharge claim by paying or tendering amount due, or he may restore the property. Officer may give claimant written notice of attachment; and if he does not, within ten days thereafter, deliver to officer a true account of amount due on claim, he waives right to hold the property thereon; and if account false, he forfeits to creditor double amount of excess, to be recovered in action on case. Ibid., p. 726, §§ 44-46.

No mortgage of household furniture made to secure a loan for less than two hundred dollars shall be valid unless it states with substantial accuracy amount of loan, time for which it is made, rate of interest, and the actual expense, not exceeding three dollars, of making and securing it. Ibid., p. 432, §§ 4 and 2.

When a loan for less than two hundred dollars is secured by chattel mortgage, the creditor shall discharge it upon payment or tender to him of sum actually borrowed and the specified interest, not exceeding three per cent a month for not exceeding three months, and then not exceeding fifteen per cent a year, and a sum not exceeding three dollars for actual expense of making loan and securing it; and such payment or tender may be made by debtor or any person having an interest in the property. Ibid., p. 432, §§ 3 and 2.

Whoever knowingly and with intent to defraud, sells, conveys, mortgages, or pledges to another, personal property already mortgaged or to which he has no title without notice to purchaser of such mortgage or want of title, is guilty of cheating by false pretenses. Ibid., p. 941, § 1.

No chattel mortgage is valid against anyone except the parties, unless possession of property is delivered to and retained by mortgagee, or mortgage is recorded by clerk of city, town, or plantation organized for any purpose, where mortgagor resides when mortgage given. When all mortgagors reside without State, it shall be recorded in city, town, or plantation where property is when mortgage made; but, if some of mortgagors reside in State, then in cities, towns, or plantations where they reside, when mortgage given. Mortgage by corporation shall be recorded in town where it has its established place of business. If any mortgagor resides in unorganized place, mortgage shall be recorded in the oldest adjoining town or plantation, organized as aforesaid, in the county. The clerk shall record mortgage in a book kept for that purpose and it shall be considered recorded when received. No consent by the mortgagee to mortgagor for the sale or exchange of the property shall be valid unless in writing and signed by mortgagee or his assigns. Ibid., p. 802, §§ 1 and 2, chap. 93.

When condition of chattel mortgage broken, mortgagor or person claiming under him may redeem the property before it is sold by virtue of contract between parties or execution against mortgagor, or before right of redemption foreclosed, by paying or tendering to mortgagee or person holding the mortgage by assignment thereof recorded where mortgage is recorded, the sum due, or by performing or offering to perform the conditions thereof, when not for payment of money, with all reasonable charges incurred; and the property, if not immediately restored, may be replevied, or damages for withholding it may be recovered in action on the case. Ibid., p. 802, § 3.

Mortgagee or assignee, after condition broken, may give to mortgagor or assignee, when his assignment is recorded where mortgage recorded, written notice of intention to foreclose by leaving a copy with mortgagor or such assignee, or if mortgagor cannot be found by reasonable diligence or is out of State, though resident therein, by leaving the copy at his last and usual place of abode or publishing it once a week, for three successive weeks, in one of principal newspapers published in town where mortgage recorded. When mortgagor or assignee of record is not a resident of State and no newspaper is published in such town, the notice may be published in any newspaper printed in county where mortgage recorded. Ibid., pp. 802, 803, § 4.

The notice with affidavit of service, or a copy of last publication, with name and date of paper, shall be recorded where mortgage recorded, and the copy of such record is evidence that the notice has been given. If mortgagee or assignee is not resident of State, he shall, at time of recording the notice, record therewith his appointment of an agent resident in same town, to receive satisfaction of mortgage; and payment or tender may be made to him. If he does not appoint such agent, the right to redeem is not forfeited. Ibid., p. 803, § 5.

The right to redeem is forfeited, except as above provided, if the money to be paid or other thing to be done is not paid or performed, or tender made, within sixty days after the notice is recorded; but a contract of bottomry, respondentia, transfer, assignment or hypothecation of a vessel or goods, at sea or abroad, is not defeated, if possession taken as soon as may be after arrival in State. Ibid., p. 803, § 6.

No agreement that personal property bargained and delivered to another shall remain property of seller till paid for is valid unless in writing, signed by person to be bound thereby; and when so made and signed, whether it is or is called a note, lease, conditional sale, purchase on instalments, or by any other name, and in whatever form it may be, it shall not be valid, except between original parties, unless recorded in office of clerk of town where purchaser resides at time of purchase. All such property, whether agreements recorded or not, shall be subject to redemption and to trustee process as provided in section fifty of chapter eighty-eight (Revised Statutes of 1903, p. 777, § 50), but the title may be foreclosed in manner provided for chattel mortgages. Ibid., p. 872, § 5, chap. 113.

In contract for sale of equipment or rolling-stock for railroad, it may be agreed that the title to the property sold or contracted to be sold, although possession delivered immediately or subsequently, shall not vest in purchaser until purchase price paid, or that the seller shall have lien for unpaid purchase money. In contract for leasing or hiring such property, it may be stipulated that there be a conditional sale at the termination of the contract, and the rentals or amounts to be received under it may, as paid, be treated as purchase money, and the title shall not vest in lessee or bailee until purchase price paid and terms of contract fully performed, notwithstanding delivery to and possession by lessee or bailee; but no such contract is valid against subsequent judgment creditor or subsequent bona fide purchaser for value without notice, unless evidenced by instrument executed by parties and acknowledged by vendee or lessee or bailee or duly proved, like deeds, and filed for record in office of secretary of state, and each locomotive engine or car so sold, leased or hired, or contracted to be sold, leased or hired, shall have name of vendor, lessor or bailor plainly marked on each side, followed by word "owner" or "lessor" or "bailor," as the case may be. These contracts shall be recorded in a book of records to be kept for that purpose; and on payment of purchase money and performance of terms and conditions stipulated, a written declaration to that effect may be made by vendor, lessor or bailor, or his or its assignee, on margin of record, duly attested, or by separate instrument acknowledged by vendor, lessor or bailor, or assignee, and recorded as aforesaid. The provisions of section five of chapter one hundred and thirteen (Revised Statutes of 1903, p. 872, § 5, supra) shall not apply to any such contract nor shall any such contract be construed a mortgage or an instrument under chapter ninety-three (Revised Statutes of 1903, pp. 802-816), requiring foreclosure and entitling holder of property to equity of redemption, but any personal property held under any such contract shall be subject to trustee process as provided in section fifty of chapter eighty-eight. Ibid., pp. 541, 542, §§ 95-97.

A mortgage of personal property shall be executed, acknowledged and recorded as bills of sale. Ibid., p. 516, § 46.

The acknowledgment of a chattel mortgage is the same as in the case of deeds. Ibid., p. 515, §§ 43, 44.

Chattel mortgage is deemed to contain implied covenant by mortgagor to pay debt and interest specified in mortgage, unless contrary is expressed. Ibid., p. 516, § 47.

Chattel mortgages are valid and take effect, except as between the parties, only from time of recording. Ibid., p. 516, § 48.

Chattel mortgages may be assigned and released in same manner as mortgages of real property. Ibid., p. 516, § 49.

The assignment of a mortgage may be made in the following form or to the like effect:

548. Assignment of Chattel Mortgage, Statutory Form.

"I hereby assign the within mortgage to the assignee.

[SEAL]"

Such assignment shall be recorded at or near foot of mortgage in blank to be left by clerk who records mortgage. Ibid., p. 512, § 32.

Every assignment in above form, or the same in substance, endorsed upon the original mortgage, shall be sufficient to convey to assignee every right of the assignor under the mortgage at time of assignment, as fully as any written instrument could do, but no assignment of any mortgage executed since March 27, 1902, except for the purpose of foreclosure, shall be valid, except between the parties, unless there be endorsed thereon the following oath or affirmation, to-wit:

549. Oath of Assignee of Chattel Mortgage, Statutory Form.

"That the assignee has not required the mortgagor, his agent or attorney, or any person for the said mortgagor, to pay the tax levied upon the interest covenanted to be paid in advance, nor will he require any tax levied thereon to be paid by the mortgagor or any person for him during the existence of this mortgage."

This oath or affirmation may be made by any agent or attorney of assignee who shall also make oath or affirmation that he is the agent or attorney, and shall be recorded with the assignment. Ibid., pp. 512, 513, § 33.

Provisions as to release of mortgage. Ibid., pp. 513, 514, §§ 34-38.

Release or assignment may be made by executor or assignee, and this applies to every assignee, whether he claims by direct assignment from mortgagee or his executor or under a series of assignments. Ibid., p. 514, § 39.

If assignment or release of mortgage is by a separate deed or in any other mode than that prescribed in said sections 32, 34, 35 and 36, or if any proceeding to foreclose mortgage is had, it shall be duty of the clerks of the circuit courts of the counties to enter in margin of the record of original paper a memorandum of place where deed of assignment or release or proceeding of foreclosure is recorded. This section shall not apply to Baltimore city. Ibid., p. 514, § 40.

No chattel mortgage shall be valid, except between the parties, unless the mortgagees or some one of them, or agent of some one of them, shall make affidavit that the consideration in the mortgage is true and bona fide as therein set forth, and no chattel mortgage executed since March 27, 1902, shall be valid, except between the parties, unless in addition to the above affidavit the mortgagees or some one of them or agent of some one of them shall make the further oath or affirmation prescribed by section 30, and such affidavit may be made at any time before recording and before any person authorized to take the acknowledgment of the mortgage. Ibid., pp. 516, 517, § 50.

No mortgage shall be valid except between the parties, unless there be endorsed thereon an oath or affirmation of mortgagee that the consideration in the mortgage is true and bone fide as therein set forth; and unless there be endorsed on all mortgages executed since March 27, 1902, the following additional oath or affirmation, to-wit:

550. Oath by Mortgagee, Statutory Form.

"That the mortgagee has not required the mortgagor, his agent or attorney, or any person for the said mortgagor to pay the tax levied upon the interest covenanted to be paid in advance, nor will he require any tax levied thereon to be paid by the mortgagor or any person for him during the existence of this mortgage."

This affidavit may be made at any time before mortgage is recorded, before any one authorized to take acknowledgment of a mortgage, and affidavit shall be recorded with mortgage. Ibid., p. 511, § 30.

The said affidavit may be made by one of several mortgagees or any agent of a mortgagee, but the agent must also make affidavit, to be endorsed upon the mortgage, that he is agent of the mortgagee or mortgagees, or some one of them; which affidavit shall be sufficient proof of each agency; and the president or other officer of a corporation, or the executor of the mortgagee may make such affidavit. Ibid., p. 512, § 31.

Where bills of sale are, according to the intent of the parties, chattel mortgages, upon payment or discharge of the debts named in said bills of sale by the vendors, the vendee must release the bills of sale or retransfer the property to vendors, which release or retransfer may be made upon the original bills of sale, which may be returned to the record office, and said release or retransfers entered upon the record book where bill of sale is recorded, at end of record thereof, or said release or retransfer may be made in presence of clerk, with his attestation thereto, in record book in which bill of sale is recorded, at end of record thereof. Ibid., p. 517, § 51.

WITNESS MY HAND AND SEAL, this _____ day of _____.

[SEAL.]

Ibid., pp. 520, 521, § 62.

The foregoing form is sufficient to convey personal property and the said form, or forms to like effect, shall be sufficient, and any covenant, limitation, restriction or proviso allowed by law may be added, annexed to or introduced with the said form. Any other form conforming to the rules hereinbefore laid down or to the rules of law shall be sufficient. Ibid., pp. 517, 521, §§ 52, 64, 65.

Mortgagor of personal property in possession of same, or purchaser under unrecorded conditional, written contract, in possession, who, in case of mortgaged personal property, without consent of mortgagee or his assigns first had and obtained in writing, or who, in case of purchaser of personal property under unrecorded conditional, written contract, without consent first had and obtained in writing of conditional vendor or assigns, and with intent to defraud mortgagee or assigns and to defeat his or their lien under mortgage, or with intent to defraud the said conditional vendor, shall remove any of the property so mortgaged or purchased, as the case may be, beyond limits of city or county where located when so mortgaged or purchased, or who, with intent as aforesaid, removes, secretes, hypothecates, destroys or sells the same, shall be guilty of misdemeanor. Ibid., Art. 27, pp. 834, 835, § 166.

Where railroad equipment and rolling stock, or other personal property to be used in or about operation of railroad, shall be sold to any person, firm or corporation, to be paid for in whole or part by installments, or shall be leased, rented, hired or delivered on condition that the same shall be used by person, firm, or corporation purchasing, leasing, renting, hiring or receiving same, the title to remain in vendor, lessor, renter, hirer or deliverer until agreed-upon price paid, such condition in regard to title so remaining notwithstanding delivery to and possession by other party shall be valid as to subsequent purchasers in good faith and creditors; but the term during which the rent or installments are to be paid shall not exceed ten years. Such contracts shall be in writing and acknowledged and recorded as deeds in county where vendor or lessor has principal office in state. Ibid., Art. 21, pp. 526, 527, § 87.

Every deed conveying real estate or chattels, which by any other instrument or writing shall appear to have been intended only as security in nature of mortgage, though absolute in terms shall be considered a mortgage, and the person for whose benefit it is made shall have no benefit or advantage from the recording, unless every instrument and writing operating as defeasance or explanatory of its being mortgage or conditional deed, be recorded therewith. Ibid., Art. 66, p. 1543, § 1.

No mortgage or deed in nature of mortgage shall be a lien or charge for any other principal sums than appear on its face and are specified and recited therein and particularly mentioned and expressed to be secured thereby at time of executing, nor for any sums to be loaned or advanced after the same is executed, except from time loan or advance is actually made; and no mortgage to secure future loans or advances shall be valid unless amounts and times when to be made, specifically stated in mortgage; this not to apply to mortgages to indemnify mortgagee against loss from being endorser or security nor to mortgages by brewers to maltsters to secure payment to latter of debts by former for malt and other material used in making malt liquors. Ibid., pp. 1543, 1544, § 2.

In Baltimore and Prince George's counties no mortgage or deed in nature of mortgage shall be lien or charge for any other principal sums than appear on its face and are specified and recited therein and particularly mentioned and expressed to be secured thereby at time of executing; this not to apply to mortgages to indemnify mortgagee against loss from being endorser or security. Ibid., p. 1544, § 3.

In all mortgages there may be inserted a clause authorizing mortgagee or any other person to be named therein to sell the mortgaged premises, whether lands or goods and chattels, upon such terms and on such contingencies as may be expressed therein, and where interests in any mortgage are held under one or more assignments, or otherwise, the power of sale shall be held divisible, and he or they holding any such interest who shall first institute proceedings to execute such power shall thereby acquire exclusive right to sell the mortgaged premises; and any sale made and set aside on the ground that the power is indivisible may, by the court that set it aside, be reviewed on petition of person who made the same or any other person interested therein, and said court may annul its former decree or order; and thereupon the same proceedings shall be had and the said court shall have the same power as if sale not set aside, and the said court may confirm or set aside such sale for any other sufficient reason; provided, there has been no change of title or interest in mortgaged premises since such sale. Ibid., p. 1545, § 6.

Before any person so authorized shall make any such sale, he shall give bond to the State in such penalty and with such security as shall be approved by judge or clerk of court of equity of city or county where mortgaged premises lie or, in case of goods and chattels, where the same may be, to abide by and fulfill any order or decree which shall be made by any court of equity in relation to sale of such mortgaged property or the proceeds thereof; and such bonds shall be as an indemnity to and for the security of all persons interested in the mortgaged property or the proceeds and be subject to be sued as other bonds taken in name of State and subject to same limitations and disabilities. Ibid., p. 1546, § 7.

In all sales made in pursuance of such authority, the notice stated in mortgage shall be given, or, if no agreement as to notice, then the party offering for sale shall give twenty days' notice of time, place, and terms by advertisement in newspaper printed in county where premises lie, if there be one so published, and, if not, in newspaper having a large circulation in said county, and also by advertisement set up at court-house door of said county. Ibid., p. 1546, § 8.

Such sales shall be reported under oath to court having chancery jurisdiction where sale made, and there shall be same proceedings on report as if made by a trustee under a decree of said court, and the court shall have full power to hear and determine any objections which may be filed against such sale by any person interested in property and may confirm or set aside sale. If set aside, a resale may be ordered to be made by party who made previous sale or court may, if justice requires, appoint a trustee to sell. Such sales, when confirmed and purchase money paid, shall pass all the title which the mortgagor had in the premises at time of recording mortgage. Ibid., pp. 1546, 1547, §§ 9, 10, 11.

No title to mortgaged premises derived from any sale made in virtue of such power and confirmed as aforesaid shall be questioned, impeached or defeated, either at law or in equity, because the premises were purchased in by mortgagee or his assignee or legal representative, or for his benefit or account. Ibid., p. 1548, § 14.

All mortgage sales shall be made in county or city where mortgaged premises situated; and where situated in more than one county, the sale may be in either. Ibid., p. 1548, § 15.

The title to all promissory notes, other instruments and debts, secured by mortgages or deeds in nature of a mortgage shall from and after maturity of such notes, instruments or debts be conclusively presumed to be vested in the person, persons or body corporate holding the record title to such mortgage or deed and, if the mortgage or deed is released of record, the said note, instrument or debt shall, after such maturity, be conclusively presumed to be paid so far as any lien upon the mortgaged property is concerned. Ibid., p. 1552, § 25.

When suit instituted to foreclose mortgage, the court may decree that, unless debt and costs be paid by a day fixed by the decree, the property or so much thereof as may be necessary for satisfaction of said debt and costs shall be sold; and such sale shall be for cash, unless plaintiff consent to sale on credit; and if upon the sale, under such decree, of whole mortgaged property, net proceeds, after costs allowed by court are satisfied, shall not suffice to satisfy the mortgage debt and accrued interest, as this shall be found by judgment of court upon report of auditor, court may, on motion of plaintiff, enter decree in personam against mortgagor or other party to suit, who is liable for the payment thereof; provided, mortgagee could sue at law on covenants in mortgage for residue of mortgage debt unsatisfied by proceeds of sale; which decree shall have same effect as judgment at law and may be enforced only in like manner. Ibid., Art. 16, p. 441, § 202.

There is another similar section as to a deficiency judgment, but said other section provides that upon motion of plaintiff the mortgagee or his legal or equitable assignee, after due notice by summons or otherwise as the court may direct, the court may enter the decree in personam against mortgagor or other party to suit or proceeding who is liable for payment for amount of deficiency. Ibid., Art. 66, p. 1551, § 24.

No corporation incorporated under laws of State nor any foreign corporation doing business in State shall offer to procure or act as agent for any person in procuring or making loan of money or other valuable thing on security of any chattels, nor make loan of money or other valuable thing on security of chattels or otherwise, except in its own proper corporate name and for its own behalf or benefit, and every security taken by any such corporation for any such loan shall express plainly the period for which the loan is made and the entire interest agreed to be paid for said loan for the term of such loan, not to exceed the rate of six per centum per annum on money or other thing loaned for the term of such loan; and any contract or security for any such loan, or providing for renewal or continuance of such loan, made in violation of this section, is void. Section does not apply to home-stead, building and loan associations of State. Ibid., Art. 23, pp. 578, 579, § 112.

MASSACHUSETTS.

Mortgages of personal property shall, within fifteen days from date written in mortgage, be recorded on records of city or town where mortgagor resides when made and on records of city or town where he then principally transacts business or follows trade or calling. If mortgagor resides out of commonwealth, and property mortgaged is within commonwealth when made, mortgage shall be recorded on records of city or town where property then is. If a record in two different places is required and mortgage is recorded in one within said fifteen days, it may be recorded in other within ten days after date of first record. Unless property has been delivered to and retained by mortgagee, mortgage shall not be valid against any one except the parties, until recorded, and a record made subsequently to time limited shall be void. Revised Laws, 1902, chap. 198, p. 1706, § 1.

The above provisions shall not apply to mortgage of, or other instrument relative to, ship or vessel of United States, or to goods at sea or abroad if mortgagee takes possession of such goods as soon as may be after their arrival in commonwealth. Ibid., p. 1707, § 2.

Mortgagor or person lawfully claiming under him may, after breach of condition, redeem property at any time before it is sold in pursuance of contract between parties or before right of redemption is foreclosed. The person entitled to redeem shall pay or tender to mortgagee or person claiming under him amount due or shall perform or offer to perform the condition and shall pay all reasonable and lawful charges and expenses incurred in care and custody of property or otherwise arising from mortgage; and if then property is not forthwith restored, may recover it in an action of replevin, or damages for its conversion in any appropriate action. Ibid., p. 1707, § 4.

Mortgagee or assigns may, after breach of condition and subject to the provisions of section fifty-four of chapter one hundred and two, give to mortgagor or person in possession claiming the property, written notice of intention to foreclose for breach of condition, served by leaving copy with mortgagor or person so in possession or by publishing at least once in each of three successive weeks in one of principal newspapers, if any, published in city or town where mortgage properly recorded or property situated; otherwise, in one of principal newspapers published in such county. Ibid., p. 1707, § 5.

The notice, with affidavit of service, shall be recorded where mortgage recorded, and the notice and affidavit, if so recorded, or a copy of record thereof shall be evidence of giving of notice. Ibid., p. 1707, § 6.

If condition is not performed or tender of performance made within sixty days after notice is so recorded, right to redeem is foreclosed. Ibid., p. 1707, § 7.

A notice of intention to foreclose mortgage of personal property, which is given to secure loans of less than one thousand dollars, under the provisions of said section five of chapter one hundred and ninety-eight, shall not be valid unless it expressly states where notice is to be recorded and that the right of redemption will be foreclosed sixty days after such recording. Ibid., chap. 102, p. 869, § 54.

Loan of less than one thousand dollars shall be discharged upon payment or tender by debtor of principal sum borrowed and interest at rate of eighteen per cent per annum from time it was borrowed and a sum not exceeding five dollars for actual expense of making and securing loan; but lender shall be entitled to interest for six months at said rate if debt paid before expiration of that period. Payments in excess of said rate shall be applied in discharge of principal, and borrower must pay or tender only balance of principal and interest, at said rate, due after such application. The provisions of this section shall not affect any loan at a less rate than eighteen per cent per annum nor shall it affect so much of section three of chapter seventy-three as provides that, if no agreement for different rate, interest shall be at rate of six dollars upon each hundred dollars for a year. Ibid., p. 869, § 51.

If loan of less than one thousand dollars is secured by mortgage, mortgagee shall discharge mortgage on payment or tender to him of amount legally due under provisions of sections fifty-one to fifty-five, inclusive, and such payment or tender may be made by debtor or a person having an interest in property mortgaged. Ibid., p. 869, § 52.

Mortgage of household furniture on which interest charged at rate of eighteen per cent or more per annum, made to secure loan of less than one thousand dollars, shall not be valid, unless it states with substantial accuracy amount of loan, time for which it was made, rate of interest to be paid and actual expense of making and securing loan, nor unless it contains a provision that the debtor shall be notified in manner provided in section five of chapter one hundred and ninety-eight, of time and place of any sale to be made in foreclosure proceedings at least seven days before such sale. Ibid., p. 869, § 53.

Whoever refuses or neglects after request to discharge a mortgage as provided in section fifty-two, shall be liable in action of tort to borrower for all damages resulting to him from any violation of said section. Ibid., p. 869, § 55.

The provisions of sections fifty-one to fifty-five shall not apply to loan of less than two hundred dollars made by person holding license under sections fifty-seven to sixty-seven, nor to licensed pawnbrokers, nor affect section thirty-five of this chapter or section four of chapter one hundred and ninety-eight. Ibid., pp. 869, 870, § 56.

The rate of interest which licensed pawnbrokers may receive on loans may be fixed by the licensing board. Ibid., p. 866, § 35.

No person, corporation or partnership shall engage in the business of making loans secured by mortgage of household furniture or other personal property exempt from attachment for less than two hundred dollars nor at rate of interest greater than twelve per cent without first obtaining license for carrying on such business in city or town where business to be transacted. Ibid., p. 870, § 57.

If contract for sale of personal property is made on condition that the title thereto shall not pass until purchase money paid and vendor on default takes from vendee possession of property, vendee may, within fifteen days after such taking, redeem property by paying to vendor full amount then unpaid, with interest and all lawful charges and expenses due to vendor. Ibid., chap. 198, p. 1708, § 11.

Such contracts for sale of furniture or other household effects in form of a lease or otherwise shall be in writing and a copy shall be furnished to vendee by vendor at time of such sale; and all payments made by or in behalf of vendee and all charges in nature of interest or otherwise, as they accrue, shall, if vendee so requests, be indorsed by vendor or agent on such copy. Failure of vendor through negligence to comply with any provision of this section suspends his rights under contract while failure continues. His refusal or wilful or fraudulent failure so to comply shall be waiver by him of condition of sale. Ibid., p. 1708, § 12.

Thirty days at least before taking possession of said furniture or effects for default of vendee, vendor shall demand in writing of vendee or other person in charge of furniture or effects balance then due, and furnish to said vendee or other person itemized statement of account showing amount due. If said vendee or other person can by exercise of reasonable care and diligence be found by vendor, the fifteen days during which right of exemption exists under said section eleven shall not begin to run until said demand has been made, said statement furnished and said thirty days have expired. If seventy-five per cent or more of contract price has been paid by vendee whose right of exemption has expired, furniture or effects shall, if vendee or legal representative in writing so requests vendor, be sold by public auction after due advertisement, which shall be published at least three days prior to sale in one of principal newspapers, if any, published in city or town, otherwise in one of principal newspapers published in county, where furniture or effects situated. If vendor refuses or neglects to make the sale as provided herein, the right of redemption shall not be foreclosed. If a balance of the proceeds of sale remains after deducting actual expenses of sale by auction and paying from proceeds to vendor balance of contract price due him, it shall be paid to vendee or his legal representative. Ibid., pp. 1708, 1709, § 13.

Whoever, with fraudulent intent to place mortgaged personal property beyond control of mortgagee, removes or conceals or aids or abets in removing or concealing same, and a mortgagor assenting to such removal or concealment, shall be punished by fine or imprisonment. Ibid., chap. 208, p. 1759, § 68.

A mortgagor of personal property who sells or conveys same or any part without consent of mortgagee in writing, and without informing vendee or grantee that same is mortgaged, shall be punished by fine or imprisonment. Ibid., p. 1759, § 69.

Any corporation organized under laws of commonwealth and authorized to erect and maintain poles, wires or other fixtures in, over or under streets and highways for purpose of furnishing electricity for light or power may secure payment of bonds issued by it by mortgage of franchise in connection with its corporeal property, so that all persons acquiring poles, wires or fixtures by virtue of mortgage shall have same rights and be subject to same obligations relative to their erection, care and maintenance as corporation would have had or been subject to if mortgage not made. Rate of interest on such bonds shall not exceed six per cent per annum. Ibid., chap. 121, p. 1185, § 12.

Contract for sale of railroad or street railway rolling stock may stipulate that the title to property sold or contracted to be sold shall not vest in purchaser until purchase price paid, or that the vendor shall have lien for unpaid purchase money, although possession delivered immediately or at any subsequent time, and a contract for leasing or hiring of such property may stipulate that there be a conditional sale at termination of contract, and rentals or amounts to be received thereunder may, as paid, be treated as purchase money and title shall not vest in lessee or bailee until purchase price paid in full and terms of contract fully performed, notwithstanding delivery to and possession by lessee or bailee. No such contract is valid against subsequent attaching creditor or subsequent bona fide purchaser for value without notice, unless in writing executed by parties and acknowledged by vendee, lessee or bailee before magistrate authorized to take acknowledgment of deeds and in same manner as deeds, and recorded in office of secretary of commonwealth; nor unless each locomotive, engine or car so sold, leased or hired, or contracted to be sold, leased or hired, shall have name of vendor, lessor or bailor plainly marked on each side, followed by the word "owner," "lessor" or "bailor," as the case may be. The provisions of chapter one hundred and ninety-eight shall not apply to such contracts. Upon payment in full of the purchase money and performance of terms and conditions stipulated in contract, a declaration in writing thereof may be made by vendor, lessor or bailor or assignee on margin of record of contract, duly attested, or by separate instrument acknowledged by vendor, lessor or bailor or his assignee, and recorded as aforesaid. Ibid., chap. 111, p. 995, §§ 75, 76.

Personal property of debtor which is subject to mortgage, and of which debtor has right of redemption, may be attached and held as if unencumbered, if attaching creditor pays or tenders to mortgagee amount for which it is so liable within ten days after demand. The mortgagee, when demanding payment of the money due him, shall state in writing a just and true account of the debt or demand for which the property is liable to him and deliver it to attaching creditor or officer. If same is not paid or tendered to him within ten days thereafter, attachment is dissolved, property restored to him, and attaching creditor liable to him for damages sustained by attachment. If he demands and receives more than amount due him, he is liable in action by attaching creditor for money had and received for excess, with interest at rate of twelve per cent a year. Ibid., chap. 157, pp. 1507, 1508, §§ 69-71.

Personal property, subject to a mortgage and in possession of mortgagor, may be attached as if unencumbered; and mortgagee or his assigns may be summoned in action in which the property is attached as trustee of mortgagor or his assigns to answer such questions as may be put to him or them by court or by its order relative to consideration of mortgage and amount due thereon. If on such examination or upon verdict of a jury as hereinafter provided, it appears the mortgage is valid, court, having first ascertained amount due upon it, may direct attaching creditor to pay same to mortgagee or his assigns within such time as it orders; and if he does not pay or tender it within said time, attachment shall be void and property shall be restored. If attaching creditor denies validity of mortgage and moves that the validity be tried by jury, court shall order such trial on issue framed under its direction, and if, upon such examination or verdict, mortgage is adjudged valid, mortgagee or his assigns shall recover his costs. Ibid., p. 1508, §§ 74-76.

Chattel mortgage is void against creditors and subsequent purchasers and incumbrancers in good faith, unless it appears such mortgage was executed in good faith and not for purpose of hindering, delaying or defrauding any creditor of mortgagor and unless accompanied by immediate delivery and followed by continued change of possession of the property, or the mortgage is filed as hereinafter provided. Revised Laws of 1905, § 3461.

Every such mortgage, when executed in presence of two attesting witnesses and acknowledged, may be filed with clerk or recorder of town or municipality where mortgagor resided at time of its execution, if resident of State, or where property situated, if non-resident. If such place be in unorganized town, filing may be with register of deeds of county. Duplicates or certified copies may be filed in other places wherein any part of such property was situated when same was made. Ibid., § 3462.

Chattel mortgage so filed shall be notice to all persons of the existence and terms thereof. The lien of any mortgage so filed shall continue until the debt secured thereby is paid or barred by statute; but against creditors and purchasers or mortgagees in good faith it shall not continue more than six years from date of filing, unless indebtedness not then due and payable by its terms, in which case it shall so continue for two years after maturity of debt and no longer. Ibid., § 3464.

No mortgage of following personal property, to wit, the family bible, family pictures, school books or library and musical instruments for use of family; wearing apparel of debtor and family, beds, bedsteads and bedding kept and used by debtor and family, stoves and appendages put up or kept for use of debtor and family, cooking utensils, and other household furniture not exceeding five hundred dollars in value, and one sewing machine, given or made by a married man or woman is valid as to such exempt property, unless by written instrument, jointly executed and acknowledged by husband and wife, if both are living. Ibid., § 3465.

When conditions of chattel mortgage fully performed, mortgagee, his representatives or assigns, shall give duplicate satisfactions, one of which he shall deliver to owner of mortgaged property, and the other he shall file at his own expense, with officer having custody of mortgage, who shall note satisfaction in his index and surrender mortgage. Such satisfactions need not be witnessed or acknowledged. Failure to file such satisfaction within sixty days after condition performed shall subject its holder to treble damages at suit of person injured by such neglect. Ibid., § 3466.

When condition of such mortgage broken, mortgagor or any person lawfully claiming under him, may redeem at any time before right of redemption is foreclosed, by paying or tendering to holder, his authorized agent or attorney, sum due on debt secured, or by offering performance of thing to be done, with all lawful charges and expenses incurred in care of property. Such payment, or tender if kept good, when made by owner, shall discharge lien of mortgage; and when made by subsequent purchaser, mortgagee, or creditor having lien it shall subrogate him to all rights of holder of mortgage. Ibid., § 3467.

No mortgagee, nor anyone claiming under him, shall arbitrarily, or without just and sufficient cause, declare any condition or stipulation of mortgage broken prior to default in performance, but when such mortgage authorizes sale in case of default, upon condition broken, mortgage may be foreclosed and property sold, at public sale and in public view, at some convenient place in county where same or some portion thereof is situated at time of commencement of foreclosure proceedings, or in which mortgage is filed. Ibid., § 3468.

At least ten days before sale a notice containing names of mortgagor and mortgagee and assignee, if any, date of mortgage, nature of default and amount then due, description of property, time and place of sale, name of party, agent, or attorney foreclosing, and, when an attorney, for whom — shall be served upon person from whose possession property was taken, and upon mortgagor, if he resides or can be found in county where foreclosure is had, in the manner provided for service of district court summons, and ten days' posted notice shall also be given. At time and place of sale the person conducting same shall sell property or so much thereof as shall satisfy the debt secured, with costs and expenses, and deliver remainder, if any, to owner. Ibid., § 3469.

Within five days after sale, person making same shall file in office where mortgage was filed a verified or, if an officer, a certified report of his proceedings, specifying property sold and that returned, if any, and amount received, and itemized statement of all costs and expenses, amount applied on mortgage, and amount, if any, returned to owner. When so filed, such report or a certified copy shall be prima facie evidence of facts therein stated. Ibid., § 3470.

When attorney's foreclosure fee provided for in mortgage, amount thereof may be deducted and paid only when attorney, within ten days after sale, shall file in office where mortgage filed his affidavit that he is regularly admitted attorney of State, that he foreclosed mortgage, and has received or is entitled to said fee. Ibid., § 3471.

At any time within two days after sale any of parties entitled to redeem before sale may redeem property sold or any part which has been sold separately and for separate price, by paying to purchaser or assigns amount for which sold, with costs and expenses of keeping during time allowed for redemption. Such purchaser shall deliver property to person so redeeming and execute release to him, and, if notice of intention to redeem be given at or before sale, person selling shall retain possession during such time, unless sooner redeemed. Ibid., § 3472.

Mortgagee, representatives or assigns may fairly and in good faith purchase any property so sold, when sale conducted by sheriff, deputy, or any constable of county. Ibid., § 3473.

Interest of mortgagor or assigns in such property may be subjected to garnishment, attachment, or execution, and when levied upon officer may take it into possession; but he or creditor shall forthwith cause written demand to be served upon owner of mortgage or agent for statement of amount remaining due. Within three days thereafter such owner shall furnish verified statement of original amount secured, rate of interest, amount and date of all payments, balance then due, and all costs and expenses incurred. Such creditor, within twenty-four hours after receipt of such statement, shall pay to person entitled thereto amount then due, and in default thereof his levy shall be released and property returned; but upon payment of such amount creditor shall be subrogated to all the rights of the owner of mortgage, and entitled to the evidence of the indebtedness secured thereby. If mortgage debt not then due, and owner refuse to receive payment, with interest to date, property may be held under levy and sold subject to mortgage lien. But if creditor desires to contest validity or amount of mortgage he shall deliver to said officer, within said twenty-four hours, his affidavit, or that of his agent or attorney, that affiant believes mortgage is invalid or illegal, or amount claimed thereunder is in excess of sum then due, upon receipt whereof officer shall retain property. And in any case he shall hold it for said twenty-four hours after receipt of such statement, to allow creditor to make such affidavit. Nothing herein shall preclude mortgagee from asserting his rights under mortgage in any independent proceeding. Ibid., § 3474.

Every chattel mortgage, with affidavit of parties, or copy, certified by county clerk or person before whom acknowledged, must be filed in office of county clerk of county where mortgagor resides, or, if not a resident of state, then in office of county clerk where property is at time mortgage executed; and county clerk must, on receipt of mortgage or copy, indorse thereon time of receiving same, and file and keep same in his office for inspection of all persons, and shall enter in book properly ruled and kept for that purpose, names of all the parties, names of mortgagors to be alphabetically arranged, the consideration thereof, date of maturity, and time of filing. Ibid., § 5761.

Every chattel mortgage, made, acknowledged and filed, as provided by laws of State, is thereupon, if made in good faith, good and valid against creditors of mortgagor or subsequent purchaser, or incumbrancers, from time so filed until maturity of entire debt or obligation secured thereby and for period of sixty days thereafter. The entire period of time such mortgages are valid and binding against creditors and subsequent purchasers and incumbrancers must not exceed one year and sixty days, except by a compliance with provisions of next section. Ibid., § 5762.

Every chattel mortgage made, acknowledged and filed as provided by laws of State, may be renewed at any time within sixty days after maturity of debt or obligation secured, in case such debt or obligation or any part thereof, be unpaid or unfulfilled, by filing an affidavit showing date of mortgage, name of mortgagor and mortgagee, date of filing same, amount of debt or obligation secured, amount of debt justly owing at time of filing such affidavit, or the conditions of the obligations unfulfilled, and that the debt or obligation was neither made nor renewed to hinder, delay or defraud creditors or subsequent incumbrancers; which affidavit must be subscribed and sworn to by mortgagee or his assignee. In case of absence of mortgagee or assignee from city or township where affidavit executed, it may be made by agent or attorney in fact of mortgagee or assignee. It must be made before officer authorized to administer oaths, filed in office where mortgage filed, and thereupon county clerk of such county must attach such affidavit to mortgage and note date of filing thereof opposite entry of mortgage, in book provided for entry of chattel mortgages; and the original mortgage shall then continue to be in full force and virtue for period of one year after expiration of term for which originally given; and a like affidavit may be filed within sixty days after expiration of said period of one year last aforesaid, and original mortgage shall then continue in full force for period of one year and in addition to the first year's renewal, and under same conditions and within same limitations a like affidavit may be filed to renew the mortgage for each succeeding year thereafter until debt secured fully paid; but if debt for which any mortgage is security, is payable in two or more installments any one or more of which are to become due and payable after one year from date thereof, then in such event the affidavit of extension of such mortgage must be made and filed within sixty days after first installment of said debt falls due, whether such installment be paid or not, and must be made and filed within sixty days after each subsequent installment falls due whether same be paid or not, until entire debt secured fully paid; provided such installments shall become due and payable not more than one year apart, and the first of said installments shall fall due not more than one year from date of mortgage. Ibid., § 5763.

Filing of affidavit provided in the next preceding section shall not extend time of maturity of any debt or execution of an obligation secured by such mortgage, but same may be enforced according to the conditions thereof, and mortgage foreclosed according to law, at any time within period for which mortgage so renewed, unless agreement be made between mortgagee and mortgagor extending time of payment of such debt or fulfillment of such obligation to time stated in such affidavit. Ibid., § 5764.

Any subsequent mortgagee of personal property, upon which prior mortgage exists, which has been extended or renewed as provided in § 5763, may, at any time during existence of such mortgage, pay amount of debt and interest owing and secured, as shown by such affidavit and mortgage, or deposit full amount thereof with county clerk of county where affidavit and mortgage filed, subject to order of mortgagee, legal representatives or assigns, and receipt or duplicate receipt for such payment or deposit shall be filed in said office and attached to mortgage, and thereby such subsequent mortgagee shall be subrogated to all rights of prior mortgagee under such mortgage. Ibid., § 5765.

Personal property mortgaged may be taken on attachment or execution issued at suit of creditor of mortgagor, but, before property so taken, officer must pay or tender to mortgagee, amount of mortgage debt and interest, or must deposit amount thereof with county treasurer of county where mortgage filed, payable to order of mortgagee. Ibid., § 5766.

Certified copy of chattel mortgage, made, acknowledged and filed as above provided, may be read in evidence in any court of state, without further proof of execution of original, if original lost or out of power of person wishing to use it. Ibid., § 5767.

The foregoing sections shall extend to all such bills of sale, deeds of trust, and other conveyances of goods, chattels, or personal property, as shall have effect of a mortgage or lien upon such property. Ibid., § 5768.

Action for foreclosure of mortgage of personal property, or enforcement of any lien thereon, may be commenced and conducted in same manner as provided by law for foreclosure of mortgages and liens upon real property, and the same may be joined in action for recovery of possession of the property mortgaged; but the mortgagor of personal property may insert in his mortgage a clause authorizing sheriff of county where property, or any part thereof, may be, to execute power of sale therein granted to mortgagee, legal representatives or assigns, in which case sheriff of such county, at time of default, at request of mortgagee, must advertise and sell whole or any part of the mortgaged property, wherever it may be, in manner provided in mortgage; and, at such sale, so made, mortgagee, or representative or assigns, may, in good faith, purchase property so sold or any part. Sheriff may require indemnity bond from mortgagee or assigns before taking possession of or selling the mortgaged property. Ibid., § 5769.

The Code of Civil Procedure provides the method of taking possession of range stock under mortgage, between the first day of November and the next succeeding fifteenth day of May. Ibid., § 5770.

In all cases where it is necessary under laws of state for party to mortgage, assignment, bill of sale, or other contract, between first day of November and the next succeeding fifteenth day of May, to take possession of any cattle or horses running at large and commonly known as range stock, in order to preserve his rights under such mortgage or other instrument, it is sufficient for him to file a copy of the instrument under which he claims, with a notice of such claim appended thereto, with county clerk of county wherein such property is running at large, within five days after it becomes necessary for him to so take custody and possession of same. Ibid., § 6694 (Code of Civil Procedure, § 941).

When the copy of the instrument, with the proper notice appended, is filed as above provided, it has same effect as if actual possession of said cattle and horses had been taken by the party required under said instrument to take the same, and shall continue to have such effect until actual possession of such property has been taken or had by the party aforesaid; provided such actual possession be had or taken prior to the first day of August next succeeding. Ibid., § 6695.

Whenever debt or obligation secured by chattel mortgage, filed in office of county clerk as above provided, shall be paid or discharged, acknowledgment of satisfaction, signed by mortgagee, legal representatives or assigns, must be indorsed upon mortgage or copy, so filed, and fact of discharge or satisfaction noted by county clerk in book kept by him, as provided in § 5761, opposite names of parties to mortgage. Ibid., § 5771 (Civil Code, § 3874).

Mortgagor of chattels who shall, during lien or title created by the mortgage, sell the property, or any part, to third person for valuable consideration, without informing him of existence and effect of such mortgage, shall forfeit to purchaser twice value of property so sold, which forfeiture may be recovered in action of debt, in any court having jurisdiction thereof. Ibid., § 5772.

Lien of mortgage on growing crop continues on crop after severance, whether remaining in original state or converted into another product, so long as same remains on land of mortgagor. Ibid., § 5773.

Mortgagee may foreclose right of redemption of mortgagor in manner prescribed by Code of Civil Procedure. Ibid., § 5741.

Power of sale may be conferred by mortgage upon mortgagee or any other person, to be exercised after breach of obligation for which the mortgage is security. Ibid., § 5742.

Mortgage does not entitle mortgagee to possession, unless authorized by express terms of mortgage; but after execution of mortgage, mortgagor may agree to such change of possession without new consideration. Ibid., § 5737.

Assignment of mortgage may be recorded like a mortgage, and such record is notice to all persons subsequently deriving title to mortgage from assignor. Ibid., § 5744.

When mortgage executed as security for money due, or to become due, on promissory note, bond, or other instrument, designated in mortgage, the record of assignment of mortgage is not, of itself, notice to mortgagee, heirs or personal representatives, so as to invalidate any payment made by them, or either of them, to persons holding such note, bond, or other instrument. Ibid., § 5745.

Assignment of debt secured by mortgage carries with it the security. Ibid., § 5746.

All contracts, notes and instruments for transfer or sale of personal property where title is stipulated to remain in vendor until payment of purchase price, or part thereof, shall be in writing, and original or a true copy certified by the county clerk and recorder shall be filed with county clerk and recorder of county where property is situate. Otherwise any such contract, note or instrument is void as to a purchaser or mortgagee prior to filing. Ibid., § 5092.

Provisions as to satisfaction. Ibid., §§ 5093, 5094.

In all cases, where railroad equipment and rolling stock may have been, or shall be sold, to any person, firm or corporation, to be paid for, in whole or in part, in installments, or shall be leased, rented, hired, or delivered, on condition that the same may be used by the person, firm or corporation purchasing, leasing, renting, hiring, or receiving same, and that the title shall remain in vendor, lessor, renter, hirer, or deliverer of same until the agreed upon price, or rent for such property is paid, such condition in regard to title so remaining shall be valid as to subsequent purchasers in good faith and creditors, provided the term during which the installments or rent are to be paid, shall not exceed ten years, and such contract shall be in writing, duly executed, acknowledged, and recorded, as hereafter provided. Ibid., § 4301.

Such contract shall be recorded in office of secretary of state, and in office of county clerk of county where is located the principal office or place of business of vendee or lessee, and on each locomotive or car so sold or leased, name of vendor, or lessor, or assignee, shall be marked, followed by word "Owner" or "Lessor," as the case may be. Ibid., § 4302.

Mortgage of personal property which constitutes equipment, or part thereof, of railroad company, may be recorded as provided in § 4302, and if same is bona fide the lien credited shall be good, for such length of time as therein provided, not exceeding said period of ten years. Ibid., § 4303.

Upon payment of purchase price and performance of terms and conditions stipulated in any such contract, a declaration to that effect shall be made by vendor, or assignee, which declaration may be made on margin of record of contract, attested by secretary of state, or county clerk, as the case may be, or the satisfaction may be made by separate instrument, acknowledged and recorded in offices where original recorded, and thereupon secretary of state and county clerk shall write in margin of record the word "Satisfied," together with date of satisfaction, and the page, and book of record of declaration of satisfaction. Ibid., § 4304.

In any contract for sale of railroad or street railway equipment or rolling stock, it may be agreed that the title to the property sold or contracted to be sold, although possession delivered immediately or subsequently, shall not vest in purchaser until price paid, or that the seller shall have lien for unpaid purchase-money, and in any contract for leasing or hiring such property, it may be stipulated that there be a conditional sale at termination of contract, and rentals or amounts to be received under such contract, may, as paid, be treated as purchase money and that the title shall not vest in lessee or bailee until purchase-price paid and until terms of contract fully performed, notwithstanding delivery to and possession by lessee or bailee; but no such contract shall be valid against any subsequent judgment creditor, or any subsequent bona fide purchaser for value without notice unless, first, it is evidenced by instrument executed by parties and acknowledged by vendee or lessee or bailee, as the case may be, or duly proved, like deeds, and, second, it is filed for record in office of secretary of state of this state and in office of county clerk and recorder in each county of state in which the line of such railroad or street railway company extends, and, third, each locomotive-engine, or car so sold, leased or hired, or contracted to be sold, leased or hired, shall have name of vendor, lessor or bailor plainly marked on each side followed by word "Owner" or "Lessor" or "Bailor," as the case may be. Ibid., § 4305.

Contracts herein authorized shall be recorded by secretary of state in book of records to be kept for that purpose, and on payment in full of purchase-money, and performance of terms and conditions stipulated in any such contract, a declaration in writing to that effect may be made by vendor, lessor, or bailor, or assignee, on margin of record of contract, duly attested, or by separate instrument acknowledged by vendor, lessor, or bailor, or assignee, and recorded as aforesaid. Ibid., § 4306.

Any railroad corporation whose line is wholly or partly within state may issue bonds, securities or obligations not exceeding authorized capital stock, and, to secure their payment, may make, execute and deliver such mortgages or deeds of trust upon all or any of its property, income and franchises, as board of directors may determine or direct; and if any such mortgage or deed of trust shall so provide, and to the extent it shall provide, it shall be a valid lien upon the property, rights and franchises of the corporation of whatever nature or kind afterwards acquired, as well as upon property, rights and franchises owned or possessed by corporation at time of execution, irrespective of law relating to chattel mortgages, and any such mortgage or deed of trust shall be taken, held and enforced in same manner as mortgages of real estate; and the record thereof in office of secretary of state shall be notice of its existence and contents to all persons, without any further record thereof, and it shall be duty of secretary to record in his office any such mortgage or deed of trust, when presented for that purpose. Ibid., § 4294.

Every person who, after mortgaging any personal property, except locomotives, engines, rolling stock of a railroad, steamboat machinery in actual use and vessels, voluntarily removes, or permits removal of such mortgaged property from county where situated when mortgaged, without written consent of mortgagee, with intent to deprive mortgagee of his claim thereto and interest therein, is guilty of larceny. Ibid., § 8689 (Penal Code).

There is but one action for recovery of debt, or enforcement of any right secured by mortgage upon real estate or personal property. In such action court may, by its judgment, direct sale of encumbered property (or so much as may be necessary), and application of proceeds, and payment of costs of court and expenses of sale, and amount due plaintiff; and if it appear from sheriff's return that the proceeds are insufficient, and a balance still due, judgment can then be docketed for such balance against defendant or defendants personally liable for debt. No person holding a conveyance from or under mortgagor of, property mortgaged, or having lien thereon, which conveyance or lien is not of record in proper office at time of commencement of action, need be made a party; and judgment and proceedings had are as conclusive against party holding such unrecorded conveyance or lien as if he had been made a party to action. Ibid., § 6861 (Code of Civil Procedure, § 1290).

If debt for which the mortgage, lien or incumbrance is held is not all due, as soon as sufficient of the property has been sold to pay amount due, with costs, the sale must cease; and afterward, as often as more becomes due, for principal or interest, court may, on motion, order more to be sold. But if the property cannot be sold in portions, without injury to the parties, whole may be ordered sold in first instance and entire debt and costs paid, there being a rebate of interest where rebate proper. Ibid., § 6863.

When mortgage confers a power of sale, either upon mortgagee or any other person, to be executed after breach of obligation for which the mortgage is security, either an action may be maintained as above provided to foreclose, or proceedings may be had under provisions of the mortgage. Ibid., § 6864.

Every sale by vendor of goods and chattels in his possession or under his control, and every assignment of goods and chattels, by way of mortgage or security, or upon any condition whatever, unless accompanied by immediate delivery and followed by continued change of possession, of things sold, mortgaged, or assigned, shall be presumed fraudulent and void against creditors of vendor or of person making such assignment, or subsequent purchasers in good faith, and be conclusive evidence of fraud, unless persons claiming under sale or assignment make it appear that the same was made in good faith and without intent to defraud such creditors or purchasers. Annotated Statutes of 1907, § 6030.

Sections 6030 and 6031 do not apply to contracts of bottomry or respondentia, nor to assignments or hypothecations of vessels or goods at sea, or in foreign ports, or upon waters of a navigable stream, if assignee or mortgagee take possession of vessel or goods as soon as may be after arrival. Ibid., § 6032.

Mortgage or conveyance intended to operate as mortgage of goods and chattels, not accompanied by immediate delivery and followed by continued change of possession, shall be absolutely void against the creditor of mortgagor and subsequent purchasers and mortgagees in good faith, unless mortgage or copy is filed in office of county clerk of county where mortgagor executing same resides, or, if a non-resident of state, then in office of clerk of county where property may be at time of executing, and clerk shall endorse time of receiving same; and it may be so filed, although not acknowledged, and shall be valid, as if spread at large upon records of county; but any conveyance either by way of mortgage or otherwise, or any sale or transfer of household goods, or any interest therein owned by husband or wife, or by both, and used by them in their dwelling house, or purchased or held by them, or either of them, for use in their family, shall be void unless such conveyance, mortgage, sale or transfer shall be executed and acknowledged by both husband and wife in same manner as conveyances of real estate. Ibid., § 6033.

Such mortgage when satisfied shall be discharged by an entry by mortgagee, agent or assignee, on margin of index, which shall be attested by the clerk without fee; but county clerk may discharge mortgage on presentation or receipt of order in writing, signed by mortgagee and attested by justice of peace or some officer with a seal. Any mortgagee, assignee or their legal personal representatives, after full performance of conditions of mortgage, who for space of ten days after being requested shall refuse or neglect to discharge same as provided in this section, shall be liable to mortgagor, heirs or assigns in sum of fifty dollars damages and also for all actual damages sustained by mortgagor, occasioned by such neglect or refusal. Ibid., § 6034.

Every such mortgage shall cease to be valid against creditors or subsequent purchasers or mortgagees in good faith, after expiration of five years from the filing of the same* copy thereof. Ibid., § 6035.

No sale, contract or lease, wherein transfer of title or ownership of personal property is made to depend on any condition, is valid against any purchaser or judgment creditor of the vendee or lessee in actual possession, obtained in pursuance of such sale, contract or lease without notice, unless same be in writing, signed by vendee or lessee, and copy filed in office of clerk of county where vendee or lessee resides; said copy shall have attached thereto an affidavit of vendor or lessor or agent or attorney, setting forth names of vendor and vendee or lessor and lessee, or description of property transferred and full and true interest of vendor or lessor therein. Such sales and transfers shall cease to be valid against purchasers in good faith or judgment or attaching creditors without notice at expiration of five years, unless such vendor or lessor shall, within thirty days, prior to expiration of the five years from date of such sale or transfer, file copy, verified as aforesaid, in office of said clerk, and said vendor or lessor may preserve validity of said sale or transfer of personal property by an annual refiling in manner aforesaid of such copy. Ibid., § 6045.

County clerk, on presentation, shall file such copy in his office, and index same in same manner as chattel mortgages. Ibid., § 6046.

Where any personal property sold and delivered upon contract of conditional sale, to be paid for in installments, with ownership thereof remaining in vendor as security for payment of purchase price, shall be taken possession of by vendor upon rescinding of contract of sale by him because of default in payment by vendee; and where vendee has paid thereon sum equal to one-third of entire purchase price, such vendor shall at any time within twenty days after taking of such property by him, redeliver same to vendee upon payment by vendee of balance of purchase price, with reasonable cost of taking and keeping same; but, if vendee shall in first instance surrender property to vendor without legal process no costs shall be chargeable to vendee upon redemption of property. Ibid., § 3919.

Upon refusal of any such vendor to redeliver any such property after payment or tender of balance of purchase price and costs according to the preceding section, vendee may thereupon recover from any such vendor whole of purchase money paid on contract of sale. Ibid., § 3920.

Every railroad company may mortgage or execute deeds of trust of whole or any part of their property and franchises, including lands or other property granted to company by United States, to secure money borrowed by them for construction and equipment of their roads. Ibid., § 10636.

* So in original.

Any mortgage or deed of trust made upon lands, road or other property of any railroad company, shall bind and be valid lien upon all the property mentioned in such deed or mortgage, including rolling stock; and purchaser under foreclosure of mortgage or trust deed shall have all the rights of purchaser on execution sale. Ibid., § 10638.

Such mortgages or deeds of trust may by their terms include and cover not only property of companies making them at time of their date, but property both real and personal, thereafter acquired by them, together with all the material and property necessary for use and operation of said road, and shall be as valid and effectual as if property were in possession at time of execution thereof. Ibid., § 10639.

Said mortgages or deeds of trust shall be recorded in office of register of deeds of each organized county through which said road mortgaged or deeded may run in this state, or wherever it may hold lands included in said mortgages or deeds of trust, and shall be notice to all the world of rights of all parties under same, and for this purpose, and to secure rights of mortgagees or parties interested under the deeds of trust so executed and recorded, the rolling stock, personal property, and material necessary for operating the road of said company, belonging to said road, and appertaining thereto, shall be deemed part of the road, and said mortgages and deeds so recorded shall have the same effect both as to notice and otherwise, as to the real estate covered by them. Ibid., § 10640.

Every mortgage of personal property giving to mortgagee or other person a power to sell the property upon default being made in any condition of such mortgage may be foreclosed in the cases and manner hereinafter specified. To entitle any person so to foreclose, it is requisite that default in a condition shall have occurred whereby power to sell became operative, that no suit or proceeding instituted at law to recover debt then remaining secured or any part, or, if instituted, the same has been discontinued, or an execution on judgment rendered thereon returned unsatisfied in whole or part, and that the mortgage duly recorded. Notice that the mortgage will be foreclosed by sale of property or part shall be given by advertisement published in newspaper printed in county where sale to take place, or, if no newspapers printed therein, by posting up notices in at least five public places in said county, two of which shall be in precinct where property to be offered for sale, and such notice shall be given at least twenty days prior to day of sale. Such notice shall specify date of mortgage and where recorded, names of mortgagor and mortgagee and assignee, if any, amount claimed to be due at time of first publication or posting of such notice, a description of property, substantially as in mortgage, and time and place of sale. Such sale may be postponed from time to time by inserting notice of such postponement, as soon as practicable, in newspaper in which the original advertisement published, and continuing such publication until time to which sale postponed; or, if no newspaper published in county where sale to be had, by posting notice of such adjournment in some conspicuous place at place designated in original notice posted for such sale to be had. Such sale shall be at public auction, in day time, between hours of ten a. m. and four p. m., in county where mortgage first recorded, or in any county where property may have been removed by consent of parties, and in which mortgage duly recorded, and in view of property. Ibid., §§ 3900-3905.

Mortgagee, assignee and legal representatives may fairly and in good faith purchase any of the property offered at such sale. Ibid., § 3906.

When mortgage foreclosed as above provided, any and all right of equity of redemption is extinguished. Ibid., § 3907.

Any person who, after having conveyed any article of personal property to another by mortgage, shall, during existence of lien or title created by such mortgage, sell, transfer, or dispose of said personal property or any part, to any person or body corporate, without first procuring consent, in writing, of owner and holder of debt secured by said mortgage, to any such sale, transfer, or disposal, shall be guilty of felony. Ibid., § 3908.

Any person who after having conveyed any article of personal property to another by mortgage, shall, during existence of lien or title created by such mortgage, remove, permit, or cause to be removed, said property or any part out of county where it was situated at time mortgage given, with intent to deprive owner or owners of said mortgage of his security, is guilty of felony. Ibid., § 3909.

No mortgage of personal property is valid against any other person than the parties, unless possession delivered to and retained by mortgagee, or unless mortgage recorded in office of county recorder of county where property situated, and also in county where mortgagor resides. Mortgage upon personal property, including growing crops, executed, acknowledged and recorded, shall be valid against all third parties without such delivery of possession, but not unless there be appended or annexed thereto the affidavits of mortgagor and mortgagee, or some person in their behalf, setting forth that mortgage is made in good faith and given for debt actually owing from mortgagor, stating amount and character of debt and that same not made to hinder, delay or defraud any creditor of mortgagor. Any personal property so mortgaged may be seized under attachment or execution, and surplus, over and above mortgage debt, secured to any other creditor of mortgagor by serving upon mortgagor and mortgagee, or, in his absence from county upon his or their agent or other person in charge or possession of such personal property, a copy of attachment or execution, or, in case no such person can be found in county in charge or possession thereof, then by filing a copy of writ of attachment or execution in office of county recorder of county where property is situate, with notice endorsed thereon by officer executing same, to the effect that the property is so attached. But possession of the property shall not be taken from mortgagor or mortgagee unless full payment of mortgagee's demand be first made, which, if done by attaching or executing creditor of mortgagor, shall entitle him to hold such property and the possession thereof, under his levy for repayment to him of amount so paid in addition to his own individual demand; and any officer executing execution may sell such property for amount of such mortgage demand, in addition to amount of execution, and out of proceeds of sale first satisfy such mortgage demand. In case of such levy of attachment or execution upon such mortgaged personal property, when amount of mortgage demand not paid to mortgagee, officer may expose property for sale, and may sell same subject to rights of mortgagee under mortgage, and purchaser shall take property subject to such rights and to possession of parties to mortgage. Lien of mortgagee on a growing crop shall continue until after crop harvested and threshed or baled, or otherwise prepared for market, and delivered to mortgagee or his order; but chattel mortgage upon a growing crop may be executed as well before as after crop planted, and when executed before crop planted, it shall be expressed in mortgage that the parties intend it shall take effect upon crops when planted. All chattel mortgages shall be recorded in indexed books marked "Records of Chattel Mortgages," and the mortgages therein recorded shall be canceled and discharged in same manner as mortgages on real property. No chattel mortgage shall be given or be valid for a less sum than one hundred dollars. Compiled Laws to 1900, § 2705.

Nothing in the above section shall apply to contracts of bottomry, respondentia, or assignments or hypothecations of vessels, or goods at sea or in foreign states, or without Nevada, in case assignee, or mortgagee, shall take possession of such goods as soon as may be, after their arrival within Nevada. Ibid., § 2706.

Mortgagor of personal property shall not sell or dispose of it or remove it from county where mortgage recorded, during time mortgage in force, with intent to hinder, delay, or defraud mortgagee, without written consent of mortgagee first had and obtained. Any person violating any of these provisions is guilty of misdemeanor. Ibid., §§ 4306, 4307.

Any mortgage shall also be discharged upon the record thereof by recorder in whose custody it shall be, whenever there shall be presented to him a certificate executed by mortgagee, his personal representative or assignee, acknowledged, or approved and certified, as prescribed, to entitle conveyances to be recorded, specifying that such mortgage is paid or otherwise satisfied or discharged. Ibid., § 2675.

If mortgagee or personal representative or assignee, as case may be, after full performance of conditions of mortgage, whether before or after breach, shall, for space of seven days after being thereto requested, and after tender of his reasonable charges, refuse or neglect to execute and acknowledge certificate of discharge or release, he is liable to mortgagor, heirs or assigns, in sum of one hundred dollars, and also for all actual damages occasioned by such neglect or refusal. Ibid., § 2677.

There shall be but one action for recovery of debt, or enforcement of any right secured by mortgage or lien upon real estate or personal property. In such action, judgment shall be rendered for amount found due plaintiff, and court may, by its decree or judgment, direct a sale of the incumbered property (or such part as is necessary), and application of proceeds of sale to payment of costs and expenses of sale, costs of suit, and amount due plaintiff. If it appear from sheriff's return there is a deficiency of such proceeds and a balance still due plaintiff, judgment shall then be docketed for such balance against defendant or defendants personally liable for the debt, and shall, from time of such docketing, be lien upon the real estate of judgment debtor, and an execution may thereupon be issued by the clerk of the court, in like manner and form as upon other judgments, to collect such balance or deficiency from the property of judgment debtor. Ibid., § 3343.

If there be surplus after payment of amount due on mortgage, lien or incumbrance, with costs, court may cause same to be paid to person entitled to it, and in meantime may direct it to be deposited in court. Ibid., § 3344.

If debt for which mortgage, lien or incumbrance is held be not all due, as soon as sufficient of property has been sold to pay amount due, with costs, sale shall cease; and afterwards, as often as more becomes due for principal or interest, court may, on motion, order more to be sold. But if property cannot be sold in portions without injury to parties, the whole may be ordered sold in first instance, and entire debt and costs paid, there being a rebate of interest where such rebate is proper. Ibid., § 3345.

A mortgage for a good and valuable consideration upon possessory claims to public lands, all buildings and improvements upon such lands, all quartz and mining claims, and all such personal property as shall be fixed in its structure to the soil, acknowledged like mortgages upon real estate and recorded in office of recorder in county where property situated, shall have same effect against third persons as mortgages upon real estate. This Act shall not interfere or conflict with the lawful mining rules, regulations, or customs in regard to locating, holding, or forfeiture of claims, but, in all cases of mortgages of mining interests under this Act, mortgagee shall have right to perform same acts mortgagor might have performed for purpose of preventing forfeiture of same under said rules, regulations, or customs of mines, and shall be allowed such compensation therefor as shall be deemed just and equitable by court ordering the sale upon a foreclosure; but such compensation shall, in no case, exceed amount realized from the claim by a foreclosure and sale. Ibid., §§ 2715, 2716.

Any person having conveyed to another any personal property by chattel mortgage or other instrument of writing having effect of mortgage or lien upon such property, who during existence of mortgage or lien, shall sell, transfer, conceal, take, drive or carry away, or in any manner dispose of property or any part, or cause or suffer same to be done, without written consent of holder of such mortgage or lien, is guilty of misdemeanor. Ibid., § 2370.

NEW YORK.

Every mortgage or conveyance intended to operate as mortgage of goods and chattels or of canal boat, steam tug, scow or other craft, or appurtenances thereto, navigating the canals of state, not accompanied by immediate delivery, and followed by continued change of possession, is void against creditors of mortgagor, and subsequent purchasers and mortgagees in good faith, unless mortgage, or copy, filed as directed in this article. Lien Law, § 230, Birdseye, C. & G. Cons. Laws, p. 3241.

Mortgages creating lien upon real and personal property, executed by corporation as security for payment of bonds issued by such corporation, or by telegraph, telephone or electric light corporation, and recorded as mortgage of real property in each county where property located or through which line of such telegraph, telephone or electric light corporation runs, need not be filed or refiled as chattel mortgages. Ibid., § 231, p. 3247.

An instrument, or copy, if intended to operate as mortgage of canal boat, steam tug, scow or other craft, or of appurtenances, navigating canals of state, must be filed in office of comptroller, and need not be filed elsewhere. Every other chattel mortgage, or an instrument intended to operate as such, or copy, must be filed in town or city where mortgagor, if resident of state, resides at time of execution thereof, and if not resident, in city or town where property mortgaged is at time of execution of mortgage. If more than one mortgagor, mortgage, or certified copy, must be filed in each city or town within state where each mortgagor resides at time of execution thereof. In city of New York, such instrument must be filed as follows, namely: In Borough of Brooklyn, in office of register of county of Kings; in borough of Queens, in office of clerk of Queens county; in borough of Richmond, in office of clerk of county of Richmond, and in borough of Manhattan and borough of Bronx, in office of register of the city and county of New York. In every other city or town of state, in office of city or town clerk, unless there is a county clerk's office in such city or town, in which case it must be filed therein. If the chattels mortgaged are in city of New York at time of execution of mortgage, mortgage or copy must be filed in county where mortgagor alleges to reside at time of execution of mortgage, and in county where property is situated. Ibid., § 232, p. 3247.

Such officers shall file every such instrument presented to them for that purpose, and indorse thereon its number and time of its receipt. They shall enter in book, provided for that purpose, in separate columns, names of all parties to each mortgage so filed, arranged in alphabetical order, under head of "mortgagors" and "mortgagees," number of such mortgage or copy and date of filing thereof; and, if mortgage be upon a craft navigating the canals, and filed in office of comptroller, name of the craft shall also be inserted. In city of New York such officers shall in addition to entry aforesaid enter in another book provided for that purpose a statement of premises in which chattels mortgaged are contained, arranged in alphabetical order, under name of street or avenue where premises situated and giving number of such mortgage or copy and date of filing. In case no street or avenue is mentioned in description, in mortgage or copy, of premises in which chattels are contained, then a statement of such premises shall be entered under title "miscellaneous." Except in city of New York such officers at time of filing of such instrument shall upon request issue to person filing same a receipt in writing, which shall contain names of parties to mortgage, its date, amount and date and time of filing. Ibid., § 233, p. 3249.

Chattel mortgage, except as otherwise provided in this article, shall be invalid against creditors of mortgagor, and subsequent purchasers or mortgagees in good faith, after expiration of first or any succeeding term of one year, reckoning from time of first filing, unless,

1. Within thirty days next preceding expiration of each such term, statement containing description of mortgage, names of parties, time when and place where filed, interest of mortgagee or any person who has succeeded to his interest in property claimed by virtue thereof, or

2. A copy of mortgage and indorsements, with statement attached or indorsed, showing interest of mortgagee or person who has succeeded to his interest in mortgage, is filed in proper office in city or town where mortgagor then resided, if then a resident of town or city where mortgage or a copy of such a statement last filed; if not such resident, but resident of state, copy of mortgage, with such statement, shall be filed in proper office of town or city where he then resides; and if not resident of state, then in proper office of city or town where property so mortgaged was at time of execution of mortgage. Where chattels mortgaged were located in city of New York at time of execution of mortgage, copy of mortgage and indorsements with a statement attached, or indorsed, showing interest of mortgagee or person who has succeeded to his interest in mortgage, must be filed in same office where original mortgage or copy was filed at time of execution of same. Except in city of New York officer with whom such a renewal statement or copy of a mortgage is filed shall upon request issue to person filing same a receipt in writing, which shall contain names of parties to instrument filed, its date, amount and date and time of filing. Ibid., § 235, p. 3250.

Every mortgage upon canal boat or other craft navigating canals of state, filed as provided in this article, shall be valid against creditors of mortgagor and subsequent purchasers or mortgagees in good faith, as long as debt which mortgage secures is enforceable. From time of filing, every such mortgage shall have preference and priority over all other claims and liens, not existing at time of filing. Ibid., § 236, p. 3255.

A copy of original instrument, or of a copy thereof, including any statement relating thereto, certified by officer with whom same is filed, may be received in evidence, but only of fact that such instrument, or copy, or statement was received and filed according to indorsement thereon; and original indorsement upon instrument or copy may be received in evidence only of facts stated in such indorsement. Ibid., § 237, p. 3255.

Upon payment or satisfaction of a chattel mortgage, mortgagee, his assignee or legal representative, upon request of mortgagor or of any person interested in mortgaged property, must sign and acknowledge certificate setting forth such payment or satisfaction. The officer with whom mortgage or copy is filed must, on receipt of such certificate, file same in his office, and write word "discharged" in book where mortgage entered, opposite entry thereof, and mortgage is thereby discharged. Ibid., § 238, p. 3256.

Every sale of goods and chattels in possession or under control of vendor, and every assignment of goods and chattels by way of security or on any condition, but not constituting a mortgage nor intended to operate as mortgage, unless accompanied by immediate delivery followed by continued change of possession, is presumed to be fraudulent and void against all persons who are creditors of vendor or person making sale or assignment, including all persons who are his creditors at any time while such goods or chattels remain in his possession or under his control or subsequent purchasers of such goods and chattels in good faith; and is conclusive evidence of such fraud, unless it appear, on part of person claiming, under the sale or assignment, that it was made in good faith, and without intent to defraud such creditors or purchasers. But this section does not apply to contracts of bottomry or respondentia, or to assignment of vessel or goods at sea or in foreign port. Personal Property Law, § 36, Birdseye, C. & G., p. 4206.

Term "conditional vendor," when used in this article, means person contracting to sell goods and chattels upon condition that ownership thereof is to remain in such person, until such goods and chattels are paid for or until the occurrence of any future event or contingency; term "conditional vendee," when so used, means person to whom such goods and chattels are so sold. Ibid., § 60, p. 4217.

Whenever railroad equipment and rolling stock is sold, leased or loaned under contract, which provides that title to property, notwithstanding use and possession by vendee, lessee or bailee, shall remain in vendor, lessor or bailor, until terms of contract as to payment of installments, amounts or rentals payable, or performance of other obligations thereunder, are fully complied with, and that title to such property shall pass to vendee, lessee or other bailee on full payment therefor, such contract shall be invalid as to any subsequent judgment creditor of or purchaser from such vendee, lessee or bailee for valuable consideration, without notice, unless

1. Such contract is in writing, duly acknowledged and recorded in book in which real estate mortgages are recorded in office of county clerk or register of county in which is located principal office or place of business of vendee, lessee or bailee; and unless

2. Each locomotive or car so sold, leased or loaned, has name of vendor, lessor or bailor, or of assignee of vendor, lessor or bailor, plainly marked upon both sides, followed by word owner, lessor, bailor or assignee, as case may be. Ibid., § 61, p. 4217.

Except as otherwise provided in this article, all conditions and reservations in contract for conditional sale of goods and chattels, accompanied by delivery of thing contracted to be sold, to effect that ownership of such goods and chattels is to remain in conditional vendor or in a person other than conditional vendee, until paid for, or until occurrence of a future event or contingency, shall be void as against subsequent purchasers, pledgees or mortgagees, in good faith, and as to them sale shall be deemed absolute, unless contract of sale, containing such conditions and reservations, or copy, be filed as directed in this article, and unless the other provisions of Lien Law applicable to such contracts are duly complied with. Every such contract for conditional sale of any goods and chattels attached, or to be attached, to a building, shall be void against subsequent bona fide purchasers or incumbrancers of premises on which said building stands, and as to them the sale shall be deemed absolute, unless, on or before date of delivery of such goods or chattels at such building, such contract shall have been duly and properly filed and indexed as directed in this article and unless said contract shall contain brief description, sufficient for identification, of premises which said building occupies, or upon which said building stands, and if in city or village its location by street number, if known, and if in city or county where block system of recording and indexing conveyances is in use, section and block within which located. Ibid., § 62, p. 4218.

Such contracts, except contracts for conditional sale of goods and chattels supplied for a building and attached or to be attached thereto, shall be filed in city or town where conditional vendee resides, if he resides within state at time of execution thereof, and if not, in city or town where such property is at such time. Such contract shall be filed in city of New York, as follows, namely: in borough of Brooklyn in said city, such instrument shall be filed in office of register of the county of Kings; in borough of Queens in said city, in office of clerk of Queens county; in borough of Richmond in said city, in office of clerk of county of Richmond, and in borough of Manhattan and borough of Bronx in said city, in office of register of county of New York; in every other city or town of state, in office of city or town clerk, unless there is a county clerk's office in such city or town, in which case it shall be filed in such office. But all such contracts for conditional sale of goods and chattels, attached or to be attached to a building, shall be filed with register of city or county or with county clerk of county, in case there is no register of such county, in which the premises whereon the said building stands are located. Ibid., § 63, p. 4220.

The provisions of article ten, (§§ 230-238) of the Lien Law relating to chattel mortgages apply to the indorsement, entry, refileing and discharge of contracts for conditional sale of goods and chattels, except contracts for conditional sale of goods and chattels attached or to be attached to a building. The officers with whom such first mentioned contracts are filed shall enter future contingency or event required to occur before ownership of goods and chattels shall pass from vendor to vendee, amount due upon contract and time when due. Name of conditional vendor shall be entered in column of "mortgagees," and name of conditional vendee in column of "mortgagors." Where such contracts are for goods and chattels, attached or to be attached to a building, the following provisions apply to indorsement, entry, refileing and discharge. The above named officers with whom such contracts are directed to be filed shall enter the future contingency or event required to occur before ownership of said goods and chattels shall pass from vendor to vendee, amount due upon contract, and time when due, and shall file contract presented to them for that purpose, and indorse thereon its number and time of receipt; they shall enter in book provided for that purpose, in separate columns, names of all parties to each contract so filed, arranged in alphabetical order, under head of "vendees" and "vendors," number of such contract and date of filing thereof, and under column headed "property," they shall enter brief description sufficient for identification of land upon which said building stands, and if in city or village, its location by street and number, if known, and if in city or county where block system of recording and indexing conveyances is in use, section and block in which said land is situated. The said officers shall also keep index so as to afford correct and easy reference to books containing entries in regard to such last named contracts. In all cities and counties where block system of recording and indexing conveyances is in use, index shall be arranged according to block numbers. A contract for conditional sale of goods and chattels, attached or to be attached to a building, shall be invalid against creditors of conditional vendee and against subsequent purchasers or mortgagees in good faith of such goods and chattels or of premises upon which said building stands, after expiration of first or any succeeding term of one year, reckoning from time of first filing, unless: (1) within thirty days preceding expiration of such term a statement containing description of contract, names of parties, time when and place where filed, interest of conditional vendor or of person who has succeeded to his interest in property, claimed by virtue thereof; or (2) a copy of contract and indorsements, with statement attached or indorsed on, showing interest of conditional vendor or person who has succeeded to his interest in contract, is filed in office where contract originally required to be filed; and officer with whom contract originally filed shall enter, in separate column, in book above provided for, in column headed "date of refiling," date of refiling of contract. The officers performing services under this article are entitled to receive the same fees as for like services relating to chattel mortgages. Upon the title to goods and chattels affected by any such last mentioned contract becoming absolute in conditional vendee or his successor in interest by payment of full consideration for which contract made, conditional vendor, his assignee or legal representative, upon request of conditional vendee or of any person interested in property covered by contract, must sign and acknowledge certificate setting forth such payment. The officer with whom contract is filed must, on receipt of such certificate, file same in his office and write word "discharged" in book where contract entered, opposite the entry thereof, and contract is thereby discharged. Ibid., § 64, p. 4221.

Whenever articles are sold upon condition that title shall remain in vendor, or in other person than vendee, until payment of purchase price, or occurrence of a future event or contingency, and same are retaken by vendor or successor in interest, they shall be retained for period of thirty days from time of retaking, and during such period vendee or successor in interest may comply with terms of contract, and thereupon receive property. After expiration of such period, if such terms are not complied with, vendor, or successor in interest, may cause articles to be sold at public auction. Unless so sold within thirty days after expiration of such period, vendee or successor in interest may recover of vendor amount paid on articles by vendee or successor in interest under contract for conditional sale thereof. Ibid., § 65, p. 4222.

Not less than fifteen days before sale, printed or written notice shall be served personally upon vendee, or his successor in interest, if he is within county where sale is to be held; and if not within such county, or he can not be found therein, such notice must be mailed to him at his last known place of residence.

Such notice shall state terms of contract, amount unpaid thereon, amount of expenses of storage, and time and place of sale, unless amounts sooner paid. Ibid., § 66, p. 4224.

Of proceeds of sale, vendor or successor in interest may retain amount due upon contract, and expenses of storage and of sale; balance shall be held by vendor or successor in interest, subject to demand of vendee or successor in interest, and notice that such balance is so held shall be served personally or by mail upon vendee or his successor in interest. If balance not called for within thirty days from time of sale, it shall be deposited with treasurer or chamberlain of city or village, or supervisor of town where sale held, and there shall be filed therewith copy of notice served upon vendee or his successor in interest and a verified statement of amount unpaid upon contract, expenses of storage and sale and amount of balance. The officer with whom such balance was deposited shall credit vendee or his successor in interest with amount thereof and pay same to him on demand after sufficient proof of identity. If balance remains in possession of such officer for period of five years unclaimed by person legally entitled thereto, it shall be transferred to funds of town, village or city, and be applied and used as other moneys belonging to such town, village or city. Ibid., § 67, p. 4224.

An action may be maintained to foreclose lien upon chattel, for sum of money, in any case where such lien exists at commencement of action. The action may be brought in any court, of record or not of record, which would have jurisdiction to render judgment, in action founded upon contract for sum equal to amount of lien. Lien Law, § 206, Birdseye, C. & G. Cons. L., p. 3239.

Where action brought in supreme court, city court of city of New York, or a county court, if plaintiff is not in possession of chattel, a warrant may be granted by court, or a judge thereof, commanding sheriff to seize chattel and safely keep it to abide final judgment in action. The provisions of title third of chapter seven of code of civil procedure apply to such warrant, and to proceedings to procure it, and after it has been issued, as if it was a warrant of attachment, except as otherwise expressly prescribed in this article. Ibid., § 207, p. 3239.

In action brought in court specified in last section, final judgment, in favor of plaintiff, must specify amount of lien, and direct sale of chattel to satisfy same and costs, if any, by a referee appointed thereby, or an officer designated therein, in like manner as where sheriff sells personal property by virtue of execution; and application by him of proceeds of sale, less his fees and expenses, to payment of amount of lien, and costs of action. It must also provide for payment of surplus to owner of chattel, and for safe keeping of surplus, if necessary, until claimed by him. If a defendant, upon whom summons personally served, is liable for amount of lien, or part thereof, it may also award payment accordingly. Ibid., § 208, p. 3240.

Where action is brought in a court, other than one of those specified in section two hundred and seven, if plaintiff is not in possession of chattel, a warrant, commanding proper officer to seize chattel, and safely keep it to abide judgment, may be issued, in like manner as warrant of attachment may be issued in action founded upon a contract brought in same court; and the provisions of law, applicable to warrant of attachment, issued out of that court, apply to warrant, issued as prescribed in this section, and to proceedings to procure it, and after it has been issued; except as otherwise specified in judgment. A judgment in favor of plaintiff, in such action, must correspond to judgment, rendered as prescribed in last section, except that it must direct sale of chattel by an officer to whom an execution, issued out of the court, may be directed; and payment of surplus, if its safekeeping is necessary, to county treasurer, for benefit of owner. Ibid., § 209, p. 3240.

Sections two hundred and six to two hundred and nine inclusive do not affect any existing right or remedy to foreclose or satisfy lien upon a chattel, without action; and they do not apply to a case, where another mode of enforcing lien upon a chattel is specially prescribed by law. Ibid., § 210, p. 3241.

For forms usual in New York, see Nos. 488-515, supra.

NORTH CAROLINA.

Any person indebted to another in a sum to be secured not exceeding at the time of executing the instrument herein provided for the sum of three hundred dollars, may execute a chattel mortgage in form substantially that which follows:

570. Chattel Mortgage, Statutory Form.

D. 19____, then he may sell said property, or so much thereof as may be necessary, by public auction for cash, first giving twenty days' notice at three public places, and apply the proceeds of such sale to the discharge of said debt and interest on the same, and pay any surplus to me. Given under my hand and seal, this day of , A.D. 19 .

(SEAL.)

Revisal of 1908, § 1039.

Such chattel mortgage shall be good to all intents and purposes when the same shall be duly registered according to law, but no sale thereunder shall be made without giving at least twenty days' public notice of time and place of such sale. Ibid., § 1040.

All conveyances of household and kitchen furniture by a married man made to secure payment of money or other thing of value shall be void, unless the wife join and is privately examined as in the case of a real estate deed. Ibid., § 1041.

Sale under the terms of any mortgage or other contract, express or implied, whether advertised in some newspaper or otherwise shall be advertised by posting a notice at some conspicuous place at the court house door in the county where the property is situated, at least twenty days before the sale, unless a shorter time be expressed in the contract. Ibid., § 1042.

All conditional sales of personal property, in which the title is retained by the bargainor, shall be reduced to writing and registered in same manner and for same fees and with same legal effect as is provided for chattel mortgages in the county where the purchaser resides, or in case the purchaser shall reside out of the state, then in the county where the personal estate or some part thereof is situated, or in case of choses in action where the donee, bargainee or mortgagee resides. Ibid., § 983.

The sale in bulk of a large part* the whole of a stock of merchandise, otherwise than in the ordinary course of trade and in regular and usual prosecution of the seller's business shall be prima facie evidence of fraud and void as against the creditors of the seller, unless the seller at least seven days before the same make an inventory showing the quantity and so far as possible the cost price to the seller of such goods included in the sale and shall within said time notify the creditors of the proposed sale and the price, terms and conditions thereof. But if the owner of said goods at any time before the sale execute a good and sufficient bond to a trustee therein named to an amount equal to the actual cash value of said stock of goods, with the condition that the seller of said stock will apply the proceeds of such sale, subject to the right of the owner or owners to retain therefrom the personal property exemption or exemptions allowed by law, so far as it will go in payment of debts actually owing by said owner or owners, then the above provisions hereof shall not apply. This shall not, however, prevent voluntary assignments or deeds of trust for the benefit of creditors, or apply to sales by executors, administrators, receivers or assignees under a voluntary assignment for the benefit of creditors, trustees in bankruptcy, or by any public officers under judicial process. Ibid., § 964a.

Whenever railroad equipment and rolling stock shall be sold, leased or loaned on condition that title, notwithstanding possession and use by vendee, lessee, or bailee, shall remain in vendor, lessor or bailor until terms of contract, as to payment of installments, amounts or rentals payable, or performance of other obligations thereunder, are complied with, contract is invalid as to subsequent judgment creditor or subsequent purchaser for valuable consideration without notice unless evidenced by writing acknowledged like a deed and registered as mortgages are registered in office of register of deeds in at least one county where vendee, lessee or bailee does business, and unless each locomotive or car so sold, leased or loaned shall have name of vendor, lessor or bailor or assignee of vendor, lessor or bailor plainly marked on both sides, followed by word owner, lessor, bailor or assignee, as case may be. Ibid., § 984.

* So in original.

This mortgage made the _____ day of _____ in the year _____ by
A. B., of _____ by occupation _____ mortgagor, to C. D.
of _____ by occupation a _____ mortgagee, witnesseth:

A. B.

Revised Codes of 1905, § 6180.

All reservations of title to personal property, as security for purchase money thereof, shall, when possession delivered to vendee, be void as to subsequent creditors without notice and purchasers and incumbrancers in good faith and for value, unless such reservation is in writing and filed and indexed the same as mortgage of personal property. In indexing such instruments register of deeds shall treat purchaser as mortgagor and vendor as mortgagee. Ibid., § 6181.

Mortgage of personal property is void against creditors of mortgagor and subsequent incumbrancers in good faith for value, unless original or authenticated copy filed by depositing same in office of register of deeds of county where property or any part is then situated. The filing of mortgage of personal property in conformity with the provisions of this article (on Mortgage of Personal Property, sections 6180-6192) is notice thereof to all subsequent purchasers and incumbrancers of so much property as is then situated in county or counties where mortgage or authenticated copy filed. Ibid., §§ 6182, 6183.

For purposes of this article, property in transit from possession of mortgagee to county of residence of mortgagor or to location for use is during reasonable time for transportation to be taken as situated in county where mortgagor resides, or where intended to be used. For like purpose personal property used in conducting business of common carrier is to be taken as situated in county where principal office or place of business of carrier is located. Ibid., § 6184.

Single mortgage of personal property embracing several things of such character, or so situated, that by the provisions of this article, separate mortgages upon them would be required to be filed in different counties is only valid in respect to things as to which it is duly filed; but copy of original mortgage may be authenticated by register of deeds in whose office filed, and such copy be filed in any other county with same effect as to property therein that the original could have been. Ibid., § 6185.

Mortgage of personal property ceases to be valid against creditors of mortgagor and subsequent purchasers or incumbrancers in good faith after expiration of three years from filing thereof, except as hereinafter provided, unless within ninety days next preceding the expiration of such term a copy of mortgage and a statement of amount of existing debt for which mortgage or assignee claims lien, sworn to and subscribed by him, his agent or attorney, are filed anew in office of register of deeds in county where mortgage originally filed, and in like manner mortgage and statement of debt must be again filed every three years or it ceases to be valid against parties above mentioned; but mortgages of personal property belonging to street car companies, telephone companies, and telegraph companies need not be renewed. Ibid., § 6186.

Mortgage of personal property must be signed by mortgagor in presence of two persons who must sign same as witnesses or acknowledge execution of same before some officer qualified to take acknowledgments, and no further proof is required to admit it to be filed. Ibid., § 6187.

Register of deeds of each county must receive and file all such instruments offered to him and must not permit any of them to be removed from his office until canceled. Every such mortgage may be canceled by register of deeds upon presentation to him of receipt for the sum, money or property secured, or acknowledgment of satisfaction thereof signed by mortgagee. Ibid., § 6188.

Mortgage is not to be deemed defectively filed by reason of any errors in copy filed which do not tend to mislead a party interested; and negligence of officer with whom mortgage filed does not prejudice rights of mortgagee. Ibid., § 6189.

If mortgagor voluntarily removes or permits removal of mortgaged property from county where situated at time it was mortgaged, mortgagee may take possession and dispose of property as a pledge for payment of debt, though debt not due. Ibid., § 6190.

No mortgage of ship or vessel, or part thereof, of United States is valid against any person other than mortgagor, his heirs and devisees and persons having actual notice thereof, unless mortgage recorded in office of collector of customs where vessel registered or enrolled. Ibid., § 6191.

Sections 6182 to 6190 inclusive do not apply to mortgage of ship or vessel, or any part thereof, which is required as above by act of Congress to be recorded in a particular place or manner. Ibid., § 6192.

It is unlawful for insurance company, or any agent or solicitor therefor within state, to take or procure to be taken upon property to be insured, or any other property, a chattel mortgage, securing payment of premium due or to become due, including policy fees, or any part thereof, unless such chattel mortgage is printed or written upon a separate and distinct paper from application, and no mortgage given in violation of the provisions of this section shall be valid or binding upon party executing same, but shall be void. Ibid., § 4506.

In all cases where railroad equipment and rolling-stock may have been or shall be sold to any person, firm or corporation to be paid for in whole or in part in installments, or shall be leased, rented, hired or delivered on condition that the same may be used by person, firm or corporation purchasing, leasing, renting, hiring or receiving same, and that the title to same shall remain in vendor, lessor, renter, hirer or deliverer of same until price agreed upon or rent for such property is paid, such condition in regard to the title shall be valid as to subsequent purchasers in good faith, and creditors; but the term during which the installments or rents are to be paid shall not exceed ten years and such contract shall be in writing and acknowledged. Such contract shall be recorded in office of secretary of state and on each locomotive or car that may have been or may be sold or leased the name of vendor, or lessor, or assignee of vendor or lessor shall be marked in conspicuous place followed by word "owner" or "lessor," as case may be. Ibid., §§ 4278, 4279.

When property is mortgaged for payment of money or performance of any contract or agreement, right and interest of mortgagor may be attached and sold on execution, and purchaser acquires all the right and interest of defendant. Ibid., § 6949.

Right and interest of execution debtor in property mortgaged for payment of money or performance of any obligation may be sold on execution without taking possession or removing property to place of sale, but entire right and interest of debtor in all property covered by each separate mortgage shall be sold together as distinct parcel or thing and purchaser at sale shall acquire all right and interest of debtor. Ibid., § 7107.

Every person having in his possession, or under his control, any personal property upon which there is known to him to be a subsisting lien, either by operation of law or by contract, who wilfully destroys, removes from the county, conceals, sells or in any manner disposes of, otherwise than as prescribed by law, or materially injures such property or any part, without written consent of the then holder of lien, is guilty of misdemeanor, if value of property does not exceed one hundred dollars, or of felony, if it does. Ibid., § 9442.

Any provision contained in any note, bond, mortgage or other evidence of debt for payment of an attorney fee in case of default in payment or of proceedings had to collect note, bond, or evidence of debt or to foreclose mortgage, is void. Ibid., § 7175.

Mortgage of personal property containing power of sale upon default being made in condition of mortgage, authorizing exercise of such power, may be foreclosed in manner and upon notice provided in this article (on Foreclosure of Mortgages upon Personal Property, sections 7498 to 7511). Ibid., § 7498.

When mortgagee or his assignee has commenced foreclosure by advertisement and it shall be made to appear by affidavit of mortgagor, agent or attorney, to satisfaction of judge of district court of county where mortgaged property situated that the mortgagee* has legal counterclaim or any other valid defense against collection of whole or any part of amount claimed to be due on mortgage, such judge may by order to that effect enjoin mortgagee or assignee from foreclosing mortgage by advertisement and direct that all further proceedings for foreclosure be had in district court properly having jurisdiction of subject matter; and for purpose of carrying out provisions of this section service may be made upon attorney or agent of mortgagee or assignee. Ibid., § 7499.

Notice that mortgage will be foreclosed by sale of mortgaged property shall be published once and at least six days prior to sale in newspaper published at place of sale, if there is one, otherwise in any newspaper published in county where sale is to be made; and if no newspaper published in the county, notice shall be given by posting same in five public places in such county for at least ten days prior to sale. If mortgagor or his agent shall notify mortgagee or his agent in writing of time of seizure of property of his election that notice be given by posting instead of by publication, it shall be given accordingly as hereinbefore provided. Ibid., § 7500.

Such notice must specify names of mortgagor and mortgagee and of assignee, if any; date of mortgage; nature of default and amount claimed to be due thereon at date of notice; description of mortgaged property, conforming substantially to that contained in mortgage; time and place of sale and name of party, agent or attorney foreclosing mortgage. Ibid., § 7501.

All sales under this article shall be commenced between hours of twelve o'clock noon and four o'clock in afternoon of day specified in notice within thirty days after seizure of property, unless sale postponed. Any sale may be postponed one week by public announcement at time of postponement when no bidders, or when amount offered grossly inadequate, or upon request of mortgagor; but when mortgage on crops contains stipulation to that effect, it may be foreclosed by sale of crop, when harvested, in any usual market therefor, at any time, in usual manner, at market price thereof, in such market and without the notice hereinbefore provided; and usual and reasonable charges for such sale and for transportation of such grain to such market are proper expenses in such foreclosure. Ibid., § 7502.

Within ten days after sale of mortgaged property as herein provided person making sale shall make out in writing full report under oath of all proceedings in foreclosure, specifying particularly property sold, amount received therefor, amount of costs and expenses itemized, and disposition made by him of proceeds of sale and shall file same in office of register of deeds of county where mortgage filed, which report shall be received in all courts as prima facie evidence of facts therein stated. Ibid., § 7503.

* So in original.

Out of proceeds of sale person making sale shall pay (1) costs and expenses of foreclosure, (2) amount of mortgage debt to person entitled thereto, and (3) balance, if any, to owner of mortgaged property. Ibid., § 7504.

Mortgagee, his assigns, or any other person may in good faith purchase property sold. Ibid., § 7505.

Stipulation or agreement in chattel mortgage waiving provisions of this article is void. Ibid., § 7506.

Fees for publication of notice under provisions of this article shall in no case exceed three dollars. No greater charge shall be valid for keeping live stock between date of seizure and date of sale or redemption than is now provided by law for keeping live stock when impounded. Ibid., § 7507.

Boards of county commissioners of several counties shall at their regular quarterly meeting in April each year designate not less than five public places in their respective counties, which shall be the only market places for sale of chattels under provisions of this article, unless mortgagor and mortgagee agree upon and designate in writing another place in county as place of sale, in which case sale shall be made at place so designated, which written agreement or designation shall be attached to and filed with report of sale. Growing or harvested crops, grain in bulk, lumber, cord wood, buildings or other like articles may be sold under provisions of this article without moving same to one of market places herein provided for. Ibid., § 7508.

Mortgagor of personal property, or his assignee, may redeem same from sale upon foreclosure of mortgage within five days after sale, exclusive of day of sale, by paying or tendering to owner of mortgage at time of sale, his agent or attorney, or person making sale, amount for which property sold with costs of sale and interest at rate of seven per cent per annum from date of sale. Mortgagor or his assignee, desiring to redeem property shall at time of sale give written notice to person making sale of his desire to make such redemption; otherwise he shall be deemed to have waived his right to do so. In case such notice served, person making sale shall retain possession of property sold until expiration of said five days and shall be entitled to reasonable expenses in caring for same. In case part only of property sold is redeemed the redemptioner shall pay or tender in addition to price for which such part was sold such proportion of costs of sale as said price bears to entire price of all the property sold and also the reasonable expense of caring for property redeemed and interest. Ibid., § 7509.

When written notice of desire to redeem personal property as provided in last section is given, any person removing property from county where sold, prior to period herein provided for redemption without written consent of owner of property at time of sale is guilty of misdemeanor. Ibid., § 7510.

Upon payment or tender of amount necessary to redeem mortgage, mortgagee, or person to whom same is paid or tendered, shall execute and deliver to redemptioner a certificate of such redemption, particularly describing property redeemed and mortgage under which same was sold, which certificate may be filed in office of register of deeds of county where mortgage filed and shall operate as a release of property from mortgage. Ibid., § 7511.

An action may be maintained in district court to foreclose any lien upon personal property. Ibid., § 7512.

If plaintiff not in possession of property, warrant may at time of issuing summons, or any time before judgment, be issued by clerk of court where action commenced, commanding sheriff to seize and safely keep same to abide final judgment in action. Such warrant may be issued upon filing verified complaint with clerk, setting forth cause of action in favor of plaintiff and against defendant for foreclosure of lien upon the property of which possession is sought. Sheriff must immediately execute warrant by seizing property and holding same until disposed of according to law. Ibid., § 7513.

The warrant mentioned in the last section shall be attested and sealed in same manner as warrant of attachment, and shall be in substantially the form prescribed in this section. Ibid., § 7514.

Before issuing warrant the clerk must require written undertaking on part of plaintiff with sufficient surety to effect that if defendant recovers judgment, plaintiff will pay all costs awarded to defendant, and all damages he may sustain by reason of any seizure under warrant, not exceeding sum named in undertaking, which must be at least the amount claimed in complaint and in no case less than one hundred dollars. Ibid., § 7515.

In such action judgment for plaintiff must specify amount due on lien and direct sale of property to satisfy same and costs, by person appointed thereby, or officer designated therein, in manner provided for sale of personal property under execution; and the application by him of proceeds of sale, less his fees and expenses, to payment of judgment and costs. It may also provide for payment of surplus to owner of chattel and for safe-keeping of surplus, if necessary, until claimed by him. If defendant upon whom summons is personally served is liable for amount of lien, or for any part thereof, judgment may be entered against him accordingly. Ibid., § 7516.

Provisions of chapter on attachment relative to rebonding, sale of perishable property and proceedings in case judgment is for defendant shall apply to proceedings under this article (on Actions to Foreclose Liens on Personal Property, §§ 7512-7518) so far as applicable. Ibid., 7517.

This article does not affect any existing right or remedy to foreclose or satisfy lien upon personal property without action. Ibid., § 7518.

OHIO.

A mortgage or conveyance intended to operate as a mortgage of goods and chattels, which is not accompanied by an immediate delivery and followed by an actual and continued change of possession of goods mortgaged shall be void as against creditors of the mortgagor, subsequent purchasers, and mortgagees in good faith, unless the mortgage, or a true copy thereof, be forthwith deposited with the county recorder where mortgagor resides at the time of the execution thereof, if a resident of the state, and if not such resident then with the county recorder of the county in which property so mortgaged is situated, at the time of execution of instrument. Annotated Statutes of 1908, §§ 4150, 4151.

The mortgagee, his agent or attorney, shall, before the instrument is filed, state therein under oath the amount of the claim and that it is just and unpaid, if given to secure the payment of a sum of money only, and if given to indemnify the mortgagee against a liability as surety for the mortgagor, such sworn statement shall set forth such liability and that the instrument was taken in good faith to indemnify against loss that may result therefrom. Ibid., § 4154.

Chattel mortgages must be renewed within thirty days next preceding the expiration of term of one year, by filing in office where original was filed a true copy of such mortgage, together with a statement, verified as provided in Section 4154, together with a statement exhibiting the interest of the mortgagee in property at time last aforesaid, claimed by virtue of such mortgage. Ibid., § 4155.

No chattel mortgage on the necessary household goods, wearing apparel or mechanic's tools of any person or family, except purchase money mortgages thereof, shall be foreclosed except in a court of record, and no such household goods, wearing apparel or mechanic's tools, covered by a chattel mortgage, shall be seized or taken out of the possession of the mortgagor before foreclosure, except by sheriff or constable, and then only after the mortgagee or his agent has presented an affidavit to the clerk of some court of record or justice of the peace, setting forth that the mortgage is due, or that the mortgagee is in danger of losing his security, giving the facts upon which he relies and after obtaining an order from such judge or justice of the peace, directing such sheriff or constable to seize such personal property and goods and hold them subject to the order of the court; any stipulation of such mortgage to the contrary notwithstanding. But this does not apply to the sale of furniture or other household goods by regular dealers. If the mortgagee fails to recover the full amount on his petition, the court shall adjudge the costs against him. Ibid., § 4155-1.

In all cases where personal property is sold to be paid for in whole or in part in installments, or shall be leased, rented, hired or delivered to another on condition that the same shall belong to the person purchasing, leasing, renting, hiring or receiving the same whenever the amount paid shall be a certain sum, or the value of such property, title to remain in the vendor &c., until consideration paid &c., the contract to be valid against subsequent purchasers and mortgagees in good faith and creditors must be in writing, signed by the purchaser, lessor, renter, hirer or receiver, with a statement thereon under oath by person so selling, leasing or delivering such property, his agent or attorney, of the amount of the claim, or a true copy thereof, with an affidavit that same is a copy deposited with county recorder of county where person signing the instrument resides at time of the execution thereof, if a resident, and if a non-resident then with county recorder of county in which said property is situated at time of the execution. Ibid., § 4155-2.

Whenever such property, except machinery, equipment and supplies for railroads and contractors, and for manufacturing brick, cement and tiling, and for quarrying and mining purposes, is so sold, leased, rented, hired or delivered, the persons selling, leasing, renting, hiring or delivering, or their assigns or agents or servants, cannot take possession of the property without tendering or refunding to the purchaser, lessee, renter or hirer, or any party receiving the same from the vendor, the sum or sums of money so paid, after deducting therefrom a reasonable compensation for the use of such property, not exceeding fifty per cent. of the amount so paid, anything in the contract to the contrary notwithstanding, and whether such condition be expressed in such contract or not, unless such property has been broken or actually damaged, and then a reasonable compensation for such breakage or damage shall be allowed, provided that vendor shall not be required to tender or refund any part of the amount so paid, unless said amount so paid to the vendor exceeds twenty-five per cent. of the contract price. Ibid., § 4155-3.

In 1902 an act was passed declaring disposition of entire stock of merchandise in bulk &c. fraudulent and void, but this act has been held unconstitutional.

No contract of, or for sale of railroad equipment, rolling stock, or other personal property (to be used in or about operation of any railroad), by terms of which the purchase money, in whole or part, is to be paid in future, and wherein it is stipulated or conditioned that the title to property so sold shall not vest in vendee, but shall remain in vendor until purchase money paid, shall be valid against creditors or innocent purchasers for value, unless recorded in office of secretary of state, or copy filed in said office and when contract so recorded, or copy so filed, title to property so sold, or contracted to be sold, shall not vest in vendee, but shall remain in vendor until purchase money paid, and such stipulation or condition shall be valid, notwithstanding delivery of property to and its possession by vendee. Ibid., § 3378a.

In written contract for renting, leasing, or hiring of such property (to be used as aforesaid), it may be stipulated that there be a conditional sale of property at termination of renting, leasing, or hiring, and that rental reserved shall, as paid, or when paid in full, be treated as purchase money; and in such contract it may be stipulated that the title to such property shall remain in lessor or vendor until purchase money paid, notwithstanding delivery to and possession by the other party; subject, however, to requirement as to recording or filing contained in foregoing section. Ibid., § 3378b.

Secretary of state, when so requested, and upon being paid the proper fees, shall record any such contract, and shall file in his office a copy, when same delivered to him for that purpose. Ibid., § 3378c.

The provisions of sections 3378(a), 3378(b), and 3378(c), shall extend and apply, not only to contracts made with a railroad company, as vendee or lessee, but also to all contracts which may be made with any corporation, company or person, as vendee or lessee, by which any such corporation, company, or person shall undertake to purchase, rent, lease, or hire any railroad equipment, cars, rolling stock, or other personal property, designed for use on, or in connection with, a railroad or railroads, in this or other states. Ibid., § 3378d.

That the mortgagor mortgages to the mortgagee [here describe the property], as security for the payment to him of dollars, on [or, before], the day of in year , with interest thereon [or, security for the payment of a note or obligation, describing it, etc.]

A. B.

Compiled Laws 1909, § 4415.

Mortgagee of personal property, when debt which mortgage executed to secure is due may foreclose mortgagor's right of redemption by sale of property, made in manner and upon notice prescribed by article on pledge, or by proceedings under civil procedure; but when mortgagee, agent or assignee has commenced foreclosure by advertisement, and it is made to appear by affidavit of mortgagor, agent or attorney, to satisfaction of judge of district court of county where property situated that mortgagor has legal counterclaim or other valid defense against collection of whole or part of amount claimed to be due on mortgage, such judge may, by order to that effect, enjoin mortgagee, agent or assignee, from foreclosing mortgage by advertisement, and direct that all further proceedings for foreclosure of mortgage be had in court properly having jurisdiction of subject-matter. Ibid., § 4416.

Chattel mortgage, when conditions of same broken, may be foreclosed by sale of property mortgaged upon the notice and in the manner following. The notice shall contain names of mortgagor and mortgagee, and assignor,* if any; date of mortgage; nature of default and amount claimed to be due thereon to date of notice; description of property, conforming substantially to that in mortgage; time and place of sale; name of party, agent or attorney foreclosing mortgage. Ibid., § 4417.

Such notice shall be posted in five public places in county where property is to be sold, at least ten days before time therein specified for sale. Ibid., § 4418.

Mortgagee, assigns or any other person may in good faith purchase property sold. Ibid., § 4419.

Attorney fee specified in mortgage may be taxed and made part of costs of foreclosure, in case mortgage foreclosed by attorney of record of state, and name of such attorney appear as attorney on notice of sale. Ibid., § 4420.

Sections 4417 to 4420 shall not be construed to affect the provisions relating to foreclosures of chattel mortgages by action. Ibid., § 4421.

Mortgage of personal property is void against creditors of mortgagor, subsequent purchasers, and incumbrancers of property in good faith, for value, unless original or authenticated copy be filed by depositing same in office of register of deeds of county where property, or part thereof, is then situated; and mortgage of personal property situated in portions of State attached to organized county for judicial purposes, is void against creditors of mortgagor, subsequent purchaser, or incumbrancers of property in good faith for value, unless original or authenticated copy deposited and filed in office of register of deeds to which territory where property situated is attached for judicial purposes. Ibid., § 4422.

Filing of mortgage of personal property in conformity to provisions of this article (on Mortgages, §§ 4405-4434) is notice thereof to all subsequent purchasers and incumbrancers of so much of property as is at time mentioned in preceding section stated* in county or counties where mortgage or authenticated copy filed. Ibid., § 4423.

For purposes of this article property in transit from possession of mortgagee to county of residence of mortgagor, or to a location for use, is, during reasonable time for transportation, to be taken as situated in county where mortgagor resides, or where it is intended to be used. For like purpose personal property used in conducting business of common carrier is to be taken as situated in county where principal office or place of business of carrier is located. Ibid., § 4424.

A single mortgage of personal property, embracing several things of such character or so situated that by provisions of this article, separate mortgages would be required to be filed in different counties, is only valid in respect to things as to which duly filed; but copy of original mortgage may be authenticated by register of deeds in whose office filed, and such copy may be filed in any other county with same effect as to property therein that the original could have been. Ibid., § 4425.

Mortgage of personal property ceases to be valid against creditors of mortgagor, and subsequent purchasers or incumbrancers in good faith after expiration of three years from filing, unless within thirty days next preceding expiration of such term, copy of mortgage and statement of amount of existing debt for which mortgagee or assignee claims lien, sworn to and subscribed by him, his agent or attorney, are filed anew in office of register of deeds in county where mortgagor then resides, and in like manner mortgage and statement of debt must be again filed every three years, or it ceases to be valid against parties above mentioned. Ibid., § 4426.

Mortgage of personal property must be signed by mortgagor. Signatures may either be attested by acknowledgment before person authorized to take acknowledgment of deeds, or it may be signed and validated by signature of two persons not interested therein. Mortgages signed in presence of two witnesses or acknowledged before officer as herein provided, shall be duly admitted of record. Ibid., § 4427.

* So in original.

Register of deeds of each county must receive and file all such instruments as are offered to him and must not permit any of them to be removed from his office until canceled. Every such mortgage may be canceled by register of deeds upon presentation to him of receipt for the sum, money or property secured, or an acknowledgment of satisfaction thereof, signed by mortgagee. Ibid., § 4428.

Mortgage is not to be deemed defectively filed by reason of errors in copy filed, which do not tend to mislead party interested; and negligence of officer with whom mortgage filed does not prejudice rights of mortgagee. Ibid., § 4429.

If mortgagor voluntarily removes or permits removal of mortgaged property from county where situated when mortgaged, mortgagee may take possession and dispose of property as pledge for payment of debt, though not due. Ibid., § 4430.

Personal property mortgaged may be taken under attachment or execution issued at suit of creditor of mortgagor. Ibid., § 4431.

Before property so taken officer, on execution, or attachment creditor, must pay or tender to mortgagee, amount of mortgage debt and interest, or must deposit amount thereof with county treasurer, payable to order of mortgagee. Ibid., § 4432.

Any person in State indebted to other persons may prefer one or more of such creditors in good faith to secure a valid debt, which preference may be by mortgages, either real or chattel, and if received by creditor in good faith, such mortgage is valid in hands of mortgagee and is a preference to extent thereof, subject to laws relating to filing and recording of mortgages. Ibid., § 4434.

Any and all instruments in writing, or promissory notes, evidencing the conditional sale of personal property and retaining the title in vendor until purchase price paid, are void against innocent purchasers, or creditors of vendee, unless original or copy deposited in office of register of deeds in county where property kept, and when so deposited are subject to law applicable to filing of chattel mortgages; and any conditional, verbal sale of personal property reserving to vendor any title in property sold is void as to creditors and innocent purchasers for value. Ibid., § 7911.

In any contract for sale of railroad or street railway equipment or rolling stock, it may be agreed that the title to the property sold or contracted to be sold, although possession delivered immediately or subsequently, shall not vest in purchaser until purchase price paid, or that seller shall have lien for purchase money. And in any contract for leasing or hiring such property, it may be stipulated that there be a conditional sale at termination of contract, and rentals or amounts to be received under contract may, as paid, be treated as purchase money and title shall not vest in lessee or bailee until purchase money paid and terms of contract fully performed, notwithstanding delivery to and possession by lessee or bailee; Provided, That such contract shall be valid* as against any subsequent bona fide purchaser for value and without notice, unless evidenced by an instrument executed by parties and acknowledged by vendee or lessee or bailee as case may be, or proved like deeds, which instrument shall be filed for record in office of secretary of state, and unless each locomotive engine or cars so sold, leased or hired or contracted to be sold, leased or hired as aforesaid have name of vendor, lessor or bailor plainly marked on each side, followed by word "owner" or "lessor" or "bailor" as case may be. These contracts shall be recorded by secretary of state in book of records to be kept for that purpose. And on payment of purchase money and performance of terms and conditions stipulated in contract a declaration in writing to that effect may be made by vendor or lessor or bailor or assignee, on margin of record of contract duly attested, or by separate instrument acknowledged by vendor, lessor or bailor or assignee, and recorded as aforesaid. Ibid., §§ 7913, 7914.

Contracts of mortgages, pledge, bottomry, or respondentia, are subject to all the provisions of this chapter (on Liens, chap. 60, §§ 4112 to 4155). Ibid., § 4116.

Notwithstanding agreement to contrary, a lien or contract for lien transfers no title to property subject to the lien. Ibid., § 4121.

All contracts for forfeiture of property subject to lien, in satisfaction of obligation secured thereby, and all contracts in restraint of right of redemption from lien, are void, except in case specified in section 3023 (which permits owner of thing found to exonerate himself from claims of finder by surrendering it to him in satisfaction thereof). Ibid., § 4122.

One who holds property by virtue of lien thereon, is not entitled to compensation from owner for trouble or expense which he incurs respecting it, except to same extent as borrower, under sections 3034 and 3035. Ibid., § 4125.

Borrower of thing for use must bear all its expenses during loan, except such as are necessarily incurred by him to preserve it from unexpected and unusual injury. For such expense he is entitled to compensation from lender, who may exonerate himself by surrendering the thing to borrower. Ibid., § 3034.

Lender of thing for use must indemnify borrower for damages caused by defects or vices in it, which he knew at time of lending, and concealed from borrower. Ibid., § 3035.

Other things being equal, different liens upon same property have priority according to time of creation, except in cases of bottomry and respondentia. Ibid., § 4126.

Where one has lien upon several things, and other persons have subordinate liens upon or interests in, some but not all of same things, person having prior lien, if he can do so without risk of loss to himself, or injustice to other persons, must resort to property in following order, on demand of any party interested:

1. To things upon which he has exclusive lien.
2. To things subject to fewest subordinate liens.
3. In like manner inversely to number of subordinate liens upon same thing; and,
4. When several things are within one of foregoing classes, and subject to same number of liens, resort must be had,
 - (a) To things not transferred since prior lien created.
 - (b) To things so transferred without valuable consideration; and,
 - (c) To things so transferred for valuable consideration. Ibid., § 4128.

Every person having interest in property subject to lien, has right to redeem it from lien, at any time after claim due, and before right of redemption foreclosed. Ibid., § 4129.

One who has lien, inferior to another upon same property, has right: 1. To redeem property in same manner as owner might, from superior lien; 2. To be subrogated to all benefits of superior lien when necessary for protection of his interests, upon satisfying claim secured thereby. Ibid., § 4130.

Redemption from lien is made by performing, or offering to perform, act for whose performance it is security, and paying, or offering to pay, damages, if any, to which holder of lien is entitled for delay. Ibid., § 4131.

Sale of any property on which there is lien, in satisfaction of claim secured thereby, or, in case of personal property, its wrongful conversion by person holding lien, extinguishes lien thereon. Ibid., § 4133.

Lien is extinguished by mere lapse of time within which, under provisions of civil procedure, action can be brought upon principal obligation. Ibid., § 4134.

Partial performance of act secured by lien does not extinguish lien upon any part of property subject thereto, even if divisible. Ibid., § 4135.

An agreement may be made to create lien upon property not yet acquired by party agreeing to give lien, or not yet in existence. In such case the lien agreed for attaches from time when party agreeing to give it acquires interest in thing to extent of such interest. Ibid., § 4119.

Lien may be created by contract, to take immediate effect, as security for performance of obligation not then in existence. Ibid., § 4120.

A special lien is one which the holder can enforce only as security for performance of particular act or obligation, and of such obligations as may be incidental thereto. Where holder of special lien is compelled to satisfy prior lien for his own protection, he may enforce payment of amount so paid by him, as part of claim for which his own lien exists. Ibid., § 4115.

In action to enforce a mortgage, deed of trust, or other lien or charge, a personal judgment or judgments shall be rendered for amount or amounts due, as well to plaintiff as other parties to action having liens upon the mortgaged premises by mortgage or otherwise, with interest thereon, and for sale of property charged and application of proceeds, or such application may be reserved for further order of court; and court shall tax the costs, attorney's fees, and expenses which may accrue in the action, and apportion same among parties according to respective interests, to be collected on the order of sale or sales issued thereon. Ibid., § 5921.

OREGON.

Every sale of personal property, capable of immediate delivery to purchaser, and every assignment of such property, by way of mortgage or security, or upon any condition whatever, unless same accompanied by immediate delivery, and followed by continued change of possession, creates presumption of fraud, as against creditors of seller or assignor, during his possession, or as against subsequent purchasers in good faith and for valuable consideration, disputable only by making it appear on part of person claiming under such sale or assignment that same made in good faith, for sufficient consideration, and without intent to defraud such creditors or purchasers; but presumption herein specified does not exist in case of mortgage duly filed or recorded as provided by law. Annotated Codes and Statutes to 1902, § 788, subd. 40.

If bailee, with or without hire, shall embezzle or wrongfully convert to his use, or shall secrete, with intent to convert to his use, or shall fail, neglect, or refuse to deliver, keep, or account for, according to nature of his trust, any money or property of another delivered or intrusted to his care or control, and which may be the subject of larceny, such bailee, upon conviction thereof, is guilty of larceny; and if such bailee receive grain of any kind from different bailors, and mix same and store it together in bulk, in such case, in an indictment charging bailee so mixing and storing grain with committing, with reference to said grain, the crime defined and made penal in this section, it shall not be necessary to charge in said indictment or prove on the trial that the ownership of said grain is in more than one of said bailors; and every mortgagor of personal property having possession of property mortgaged shall be deemed a bailee within the provisions of this section. Ibid., § 1806.

If any person shall, by false pretenses or any privy or false token, and with intent to defraud, obtain, or attempt to obtain from any other person, any money or property, or shall obtain or attempt to obtain with like intent the signature of any person to any writing the false making whereof would be punishable as forgery, such person, upon conviction thereof, shall be punished by imprisonment in penitentiary. The making of bill of sale, or assignment, or mortgage of personal property by any person not the owner thereof, for purpose of obtaining money or credit, or to secure an existing indebtedness, shall be deemed a false pretense within meaning of this section. Ibid., § 1812.

Any mortgage, deed of trust, conveyance, or other instrument of writing intended to operate as mortgage of personal property alone, or with real property, shall be executed, witnessed, and acknowledged, or certified or proved, in same manner as conveyance of real property. Ibid., § 5630.

Such instrument may be recorded in office of recorder of conveyances in counties where such office established by law (and in other counties in office of county clerk) of county where the mortgaged property situated, and of such other county or counties as mortgagee may elect, in book of record kept exclusively for that purpose; but in case the instrument be intended to operate as mortgage of real property, as well as a mortgage of personal property, it may be recorded in records of mortgages of real property, and such county clerk or recorder of conveyances, in whose office same is recorded, shall index same in the general index of mortgages of personal property or chattel mortgages as well as in general index of mortgages of real property, and same need not be recorded in records of mortgages of personal property. Ibid., § 5631.

When mortgaged personal property is removed from county or counties where mortgage recorded, lien of mortgage is suspended as to subsequent purchasers and mortgagees thereof in good faith and for valuable consideration from and after thirty days from time of such removal, unless within said thirty days mortgage is recorded (as provided in section 5631) in county to which property is removed, or mortgagee has taken possession of property; when such mortgage lien shall remain so suspended until mortgage recorded in county to which property removed, or until property returned to county in which mortgage recorded, or until mortgagee takes possession of property: but mortgagee of personal property may have his mortgage recorded in one or more counties, as he may elect, and mortgage shall be lien upon mortgaged property while same is in any county in which same recorded, and mortgage of or on vessel or boat, or any part, over twenty tons burden, shall be recorded in office of collector of customs where registered, enrolled, or licensed, and need not be recorded elsewhere, and such mortgage shall be and continue a lien on same. Ibid., § 5632.

Every mortgage, deed of trust, conveyance, or instrument of writing intended to operate as mortgage of personal property, either alone or with real property, not accompanied with immediate delivery and followed by continued change of possession of personal property mortgaged, or not recorded as provided in section 5631, is void as against subsequent purchasers and mortgagees in good faith and for valuable consideration of same personal property, or any portion thereof. Ibid., § 5633.

The provisions of sections 5357, 5360, 5366, 5369, 5367, 5362, 5363, and 5368 shall apply to mortgages, deeds of trust, conveyances, or other instruments of writing intended to operate as a mortgage of personal property alone, or with real property. Ibid., § 5634.

Mortgages may be assigned or transferred by instrument in writing, executed and acknowledged like deeds and mortgages of real estate, and recorded in records of mortgages of county where land situated. Ibid., § 5362.

Assignment of mortgage shall be recorded at full length, and a reference made to book and page containing such assignment upon margin of record of mortgage. Ibid., § 5363.

Mortgage shall be discharged upon record thereof, by county clerk in whose custody it shall be, whenever certificate is presented to him executed by mortgagee, personal representatives or assigns, acknowledged or proved and certified as prescribed to entitle conveyances to be recorded, specifying such mortgage paid or otherwise satisfied or discharged. Such certificate, and the proof or acknowledgment, shall be recorded at full length, and reference made to book and page containing such record, in the minute of discharge of such mortgage by county clerk upon record thereof. Ibid., § 5366.

When promissory note secured by mortgage on real property is transferred by indorsement without formal assignment of mortgage, and mortgage duly recorded, the same, upon payments* of note, may be discharged of record by owner and holder of note making and filing with recorder of conveyances or county clerk in whose custody record of mortgage may be, a certificate, verified by his oath, declaring, in substance, that he is owner and holder of note secured by said mortgage by indorsement of mortgagee, and that such note fully paid, and proving fact to satisfaction of recorder of conveyances or county clerk, and also delivering original note to such officer. Upon receiving certificate and note, recorder of conveyances or county clerk shall enter them in full length upon record book of mortgages, and a reference shall be made to book and page containing such record in the minute of discharge of mortgage made upon record thereof, and note in index of mortgages the discharge thereof, and such entry shall have same effect as deed of release of mortgagee duly acknowledged and recorded. Holder and owner of note shall be deemed and held to be personal representative of mortgagee under provisions of section 5369. Ibid., § 5367.

No mortgage upon real estate in any county in state shall be satisfied or released so as to free property from lien of mortgage, except by person appearing upon records of county where mortgage is recorded to be owner thereof, and satisfaction or release of mortgage by party appearing upon record to be owner and holder of mortgage shall operate to free land described in mortgage from lien of mortgage, so far as regards all subsequent purchasers and incumbrances* for value, and without notice. Ibid., § 5368.

If mortgagee, or personal representative or assignee, as case may be, after full performance of condition of mortgage, whether before or after breach, shall, for space of ten days after being thereto requested, and after tender of reasonable charges, refuse or neglect to discharge same as provided in this chapter (of Deeds and other Instruments affecting Real Property, §§ 5333-5386), or to execute and acknowledge certificate of discharge or release thereof, he shall be liable to mortgagor, heirs or assigns, in sum of one hundred dollars damages, and also for all actual damages occasioned by such neglect or refusal, to be recovered in action at law. Ibid., § 5369.

Whenever condition of mortgage of goods and chattels shall be broken, mortgagee shall be entitled to immediate possession, and when after breach of condition possession of the property is not delivered up to mortgagee upon demand by him or by any person duly authorized by him to make such demand of person or persons having such property in possession, mortgagee may recover possession of property in manner provided by chapter II of title IV of Code of Civil Procedure (chapter on Claim and Delivery). Ibid., § 5636.

Whenever in any mortgage of goods and chattels parties to mortgage have provided manner in which it may be foreclosed, such mortgage, upon breach of the conditions thereof, may be foreclosed in manner therein provided, and not otherwise; and if in such mortgage the manner in which same may be foreclosed shall not be provided, then upon breach of the conditions thereof, in case the consideration of mortgage shall not exceed sum of five hundred dollars, the same may be foreclosed, and the property sold by sheriff or any constable of county where mortgage filed, upon written request of mortgagee, agent, or attorney, upon such notice, and in manner provided by law for sale of personal property upon execution; and if the consideration of mortgage shall exceed sum of five hundred dollars, same may be foreclosed by action at law in circuit court of county where mortgage filed. Ibid., § 5637.

Upon sale of any mortgaged property as provided by section 5637, sheriff or constable making same shall forthwith make his return of his proceedings to clerk of county where sale shall have been had, and after deducting costs and expenses of sale, and satisfying mortgage in full, he shall deposit balance of proceeds, if any, with such clerk, subject to order of mortgagor. Ibid., § 5638.

* So in original.

Lien upon real or personal property, other than that of a judgment or decree, whether created by mortgage or otherwise, shall be foreclosed, and property adjudged to be sold to satisfy debt secured thereby by a suit. In such suit, in addition to decree of foreclosure and sale, if it appear a promissory note or other personal obligation for payment of debt has been given by mortgagor or other lien debtor, or by any other person as principal or otherwise, court shall also decree a recovery of amount of such debt against such person or persons, as case may be, as in case of ordinary decree for recovery of money. Ibid., § 423.

Any person having lien subsequent to plaintiff upon same property or part thereof, or who has given a promissory note or other personal obligation for payment of debt or part thereof, secured by mortgage or other lien which is the subject of the suit, shall be made a defendant in suit, and any person having a prior lien may be made defendant at option of plaintiff, or by order of court when deemed necessary. Ibid., § 424.

When it is adjudged that any of defendants have lien upon property, court shall make like decree in relation thereto, and debt secured thereby, as if such defendant were a plaintiff in suit; and when decree is given foreclosing two or more liens upon same property or any portion thereof in favor of different persons not united in interest, such decree shall determine and specify order of time, according to their priority, in which the debts secured by such liens shall be satisfied out of proceeds of sale of property. Ibid., § 425.

Decree may be enforced by execution as ordinary decree for recovery of money, except as in this section otherwise or specially provided:—

1. When decree of foreclosure and sale is given, execution may issue thereon against property adjudged to be sold. If decree in favor of plaintiff only, execution may issue as in ordinary cases, but if in favor of different persons, not united in interest, it shall issue upon joint request of such persons or upon order of court or judge thereof on motion of either of them;

2. When decree is also against defendants or any one of them in person, and proceeds of sale of property upon which lien foreclosed not sufficient to satisfy decrees as to sum remaining unsatisfied, decree may be enforced by execution as in ordinary cases. When in such case decree is in favor of different persons not united in interest, it shall be deemed a separate decree as to such person, and may be enforced accordingly. Ibid., § 426.

Decree of foreclosure shall have effect to bar equity of redemption, and property sold on execution issued upon decree may be redeemed in like manner and with like effect as property sold on execution issued on judgment, and not otherwise. Ibid., § 427.

Upon a sale of real property on execution, when the estate is less than a leasehold of two years unexpired term, the sale shall be absolute. In all other cases such property shall be subject to redemption, as hereinafter provided in this chapter (on Redemption, chap. V of title III). Ibid., § 245.

When any of proceeds of sale remains with clerk unclaimed by person entitled to same for period of two months, court or judge thereof shall direct that same be put at interest by clerk, subject to order of court, for benefit of such person, his representatives or assigns. Ibid., § 428.

During pendency of action at law for recovery of debt secured by lien mentioned in section 423, suit can not be maintained for foreclosure of such lien, nor thereafter, unless judgment be given in such action that the plaintiff recover such debt or part thereof, and an execution thereon against property of defendant in judgment is returned unsatisfied in whole or in part. Ibid., § 429.

When suit is commenced to foreclose lien, by which debt is secured, which debt is payable in installments of interest or principal, and any of such installments is not then due, court shall decree foreclosure of lien, and may also decree sale of property for satisfaction of whole of such debt, or so much thereof as may be necessary to satisfy the installment then due, with costs of suit; and in latter case, decree of foreclosure as to remainder of property may be enforced by order of sale, in whole or in part, whenever default made in payment of installments not then due. Ibid., § 430.

If, before decree is given, amount then due with costs of suit is brought into court and paid to clerk, suit shall be dismissed, and if same be done after decree and before sale, effect of decree as to amount then due and paid shall be terminated, and execution, if any have issued, be recalled by clerk. When an installment not due is adjudged to be paid, court shall determine and specify in decree what sum shall be received in satisfaction thereof which sum may be equal to such installment, or otherwise, according to present value thereof. The provisions of this chapter (on the Foreclosure of Liens upon Real or Personal Property, §§ 423-434) are not to be construed so as to exclude a person having such a lien from any other remedy or right in regard to such property. Ibid., § 431.

In contract of or for sale of railroad equipment or rolling stock, it may be agreed that title to property sold or contracted to be sold, although deliverable immediately or subsequently, shall not vest in purchaser until purchase price fully paid, or that seller shall have lien thereon for unpaid purchase money; and in any contract of or for leasing such property, it may be stipulated that there be a conditional sale at termination of lease and rentals received may, as paid, be treated as purchase money, and title shall not vest in lessee or vendee until purchase price paid in full, notwithstanding delivery to and possession by lessee or vendee, but no such contract shall be valid against subsequent judgment creditor, or subsequent bona fide purchaser for value and without notice, unless evidenced by instrument duly acknowledged like deeds and filed for record in office of county clerk of county where at time of execution thereof is situated principal office of vendee or lessee within state, and unless each locomotive, engine, or car so sold, or constructed* to be sold, or leased as aforesaid, shall have name of vendor or lessor plainly marked on each side, followed by word "owner" or "lessor," as case may be. These contracts shall be recorded by county clerk in book of records of mortgages of real estate in said county; and on payment in full of purchase money, and performance of terms and condition stipulated in any such contract, a declaration in writing to that effect shall be made by vendor or assignee, on margin of record of contract, attested by county clerk, or by separate instrument acknowledged and recorded as aforesaid. Ibid., §§ 5137, 5138.

All reservations of title to or property in chattels as security for purchase-money, are chattel mortgages and, when possession delivered to vendee, are void as to creditors and bona fide purchasers, unless the reservations are in writing and registered as required of chattel mortgages; but nothing in this law shall be construed to contravene landlord and tenant act. Sayles' Civil Statutes (edition of 1897), article 2549, repeated as art. 3327.

Every chattel mortgage, deed of trust, or other instrument of writing, intended to operate as mortgage of or lien upon personal property, not accompanied by immediate delivery and followed by continued change of possession, is void against creditors of mortgagor or person making same, and subsequent purchasers and mortgagees or lienholders in good faith, unless instrument or copy is forthwith deposited with and filed in office of county clerk of county where property then situated, or if mortgagor or person making same be resident of state, then of county of which he is at that time resident; but written contracts for conditional sale, lease or hire of railroad equipments and rolling-stock, by which purchase money is agreed to be paid at any time or times after date of contract, with reservation of title or lien in vendor, lessor or bailor until same fully paid, shall be recorded in office of secretary of state, in book of records to be kept for that purpose; and on payment of purchase-money and performance of terms and conditions stipulated in contract, a declaration in writing to that effect may be made by vendor, lessor or bailor, or assignee, on margin of record of contract, duly attested, or by a separate instrument acknowledged by lessor, vendor or bailor, or assignee, and recorded as aforesaid. Ibid., art. 3328.

Upon receipt of such instruments clerk shall indorse thereon day and hour when deposited in his office for record, and shall keep same on file in office for inspection of all parties interested until satisfaction thereof shall be entered, as provided in article 3332; but if copy be presented to clerk for filing, instead of original instrument, he shall carefully compare copy with original, and same shall not be filed unless it is a true copy thereof, and a copy can be filed only when original has been witnessed by two subscribing witnesses or acknowledged or proven for record and certified as required in case of other instrument for purpose of being recorded. Ibid., art. 3329.

Certified copy of instrument so filed is evidence in like manner as original, unless execution of original denied under oath by party sought to be charged thereby; but party desiring to use such instrument shall file same in papers of cause before announcing ready for trial, and not afterwards; and such certified copy shall in all cases be received as evidence of filing and entry thereof in chattel mortgage record according to indorsement of clerk thereon. Ibid., art. 3330.

County clerk shall keep book in which shall be entered a minute of all such instruments, which shall be ruled off into separate columns, with heads as follows: Time of reception, name of mortgagor, name of mortgagee or trustee and cestui que trust, date of instrument, amount secured, when due, property mortgaged, and remarks; and the proper entry shall be made under each of such heads. Under head of property mortgaged it will be sufficient to enter general description of property pledged and particular place where located, and index shall be kept in manner as required for other records. Ibid., art. 3331.

When debt secured by such instrument is paid or satisfied, it is duty of mortgagee, assignee, attorney or legal representative to enter or cause to be entered and attested by clerk, as aforesaid, satisfaction thereof, in record book in which instrument entered, which may be done under head of "remarks," and any instrument acknowledging payment or satisfaction need not be recorded at length, but entry as above provided showing same has been paid shall be sufficient, and original instrument or copy on file shall then be delivered to mortgagor or maker upon demand, or clerk may mail same to him. Ibid., art. 3332.

Person making such instrument shall not remove property pledged from county, nor otherwise sell or dispose of same without consent of mortgagee; and in case of any violation of provisions of this article mortgagee shall be entitled to possession of property, and to have same then sold for payment of his debt, whether the same has become due or not. Ibid., art. 3333.

Chattel mortgages and other instruments intended to operate as mortgages of or liens upon personal property shall not be recorded at length, and when deposited and filed in accordance with provisions of this law shall have the force and effect heretofore given to a full registration thereof, and all persons shall be thereby charged with notice thereof, and of rights of mortgage, assignee or representative thereunder. Ibid., art. 3334.

Every deed, mortgage, or other writing respecting title of personal property, which by law ought to be recorded, shall be recorded in clerk's office of county court of that county in which property shall remain; and if afterwards person claiming title under such deed, mortgage or other writing shall permit any other person in whose possession property may be to remove with same or any part thereof out of county in which same recorded, and shall not, within four months after removal, cause same to be recorded in county to which such property removed, such deed, mortgage, or other writing, for so long as it shall not be recorded in such last-mentioned county, and for so much of property as shall have been removed, shall be void as to all creditors and purchasers for valuable consideration without notice; but written contracts for conditional sale, lease, or hire of railroad rolling-stock and equipments by which purchase money is agreed to be paid at any time or times after date of such contract, with reservation of title or lien in vendor, lessor or bailor until same fully paid shall be recorded in office of secretary of state in book of records to be kept for that purpose, and on payment in full of purchase money and performance of terms and conditions stipulated in contract a declaration in writing to that effect may be made by vendor, lessor or bailor, or assignee, on margin of record of contract, duly attested, or by a separate instrument acknowledged by lessor, vendor, or bailor, or assignee, and recorded as aforesaid. Ibid., art. 4651.

Every mortgage, deed of trust or other form of lien attempted to be given by owner of any stock of goods, wares or merchandise daily exposed to sale, in parcels, in the regular course of the business of such merchandise, and contemplating a continuance of possession of said goods and control of said business, by sale of said goods by said owner, shall be deemed fraudulent and void. Ibid., art. 2548.

Judgments for the foreclosure of mortgages and other liens shall be that the plaintiff recover his debt, damages and costs, with foreclosure of plaintiff's lien on property subject thereto, and (except in judgments against executors, administrators and guardians) that an order of sale shall issue to sheriff or any constable of county where such property may be, directing him to seize and sell same as under execution, in satisfaction of judgment; and if the property cannot be found, or if proceeds of sale be insufficient to satisfy judgment, then to make the money, or any balance thereof remaining unpaid, out of any other property of defendant, as in case of ordinary executions. Ibid., art. 1340.

Receivers may be appointed by any judge of court of competent jurisdiction in state, in following cases:

2. In action by mortgagee for foreclosure of mortgage and sale of mortgaged property when it appears that the property is in danger of being lost, removed or materially injured, or that the condition of mortgage has not been performed, and property is probably insufficient to discharge mortgage debt. Ibid., art. 1465.

A defendant in execution cannot point out property which he has sold, mortgaged or conveyed in trust, or property exempt from forced sale. Ibid., art. 2346.

Property which judgment debtor has sold, mortgaged or conveyed in trust shall not be seized in execution, if purchaser, mortgagee or trustee shall point out other property of debtor in county sufficient to satisfy execution. Ibid., art. 2347.

Goods and chattels pledged, assigned or mortgaged as security for debt or contract, may be levied upon and sold on execution against person making pledge, assignment or mortgage subject thereto; and purchaser shall be entitled to possession when it is held by pledgee, assignee or mortgagee, on complying with conditions of pledge, assignment or mortgage. Ibid., art. 2353.

All chattel mortgages hereafter filed with county clerks of State in accordance with law shall be prima facie presumed to have been paid after expiration of six years from date of maturity of debts such mortgages were intended to secure, unless owner or holder of mortgage, his agent or attorney, shall, within three months next before expiration of said time, file affidavit in writing with county clerk stating that such debt has not been paid, and the amount still due thereon. If such affidavit is not filed the clerk shall, at expiration of said time, make disposition of such mortgage, either by delivering same to maker or by burning same. [Acts 1907, p. 272.] § 1 at p. 228 of Supplement of 1908 to Sayles' Civil Statutes of 1897.

UTAH.

Unless possession of personal property delivered to and retained by mortgagee, no mortgage thereof is valid against rights and interests of any person other than the parties, unless:

1. The mortgage, duly witnessed by at least one person, provide that the property may remain in possession of mortgagor;

2. Mortgage be accompanied by affidavit of parties, or, in case any party is absent, affidavit of parties present and that of agent or attorney of absent party, that same made in good faith to secure amount named therein and without design to hinder or delay creditors of mortgagor;

3. Mortgage, or copy, be filed in office of recorder of county where mortgagor resides, or, in case he is non-resident of state, in office of recorder of county or counties where property may be at time of execution of mortgage. Compiled Laws of 1907, § 150.

Mortgage need not be acknowledged, and recorder shall file same and indorse thereon time of filing, and it shall be as valid as if recorded. Ibid., § 151.

Action for foreclosure of mortgage of personal property or for enforcement of any lien thereon, may be conducted in manner provided by law for foreclosure of mortgage or lien upon real property, and without right of redemption; or mortgage of personal property containing power of sale upon default being made in condition of mortgage, authorizing exercise of such power, may be foreclosed by advertisement, in manner and upon notice hereinafter provided. Ibid., § 152.

When mortgagee or assignee has commenced foreclosure by advertisement, and it shall appear by affidavit of mortgagor or agent or attorney, to satisfaction of judge of district court of county where mortgaged property situated, that mortgagor has legal counterclaim or any other valid defense against collection of whole or any part of amount claimed to be due on mortgage, such judge may, by order to that effect, enjoin mortgagee or assignee from foreclosing mortgage by advertisement and direct that all further proceedings for foreclosure be had in district court properly having jurisdiction of subject-matter. Ibid., § 153.

Chattel mortgage, when satisfied, shall be discharged by entry by mortgagee, agent, assignee, or legal representative, on margin of index, which shall be attested by recorder without fee; or recorder may discharge same on presentation of order in writing duly signed and acknowledged. After full performance of conditions of mortgage, any mortgagee, agent, assignee, or legal representative who shall wilfully neglect, for space of ten days after being requested, to discharge same, shall be liable to mortgagor or assigns in sum of $50 damages, and also for all actual damages sustained by such neglect or refusal. Ibid., § 154.

Every mortgage so filed shall be void against creditors of person making same, or subsequent purchasers or mortgagees in good faith, after expiration of one year after filing, unless within thirty days after expiration of term of one year from filing, and within thirty days after expiration of each year thereafter, mortgagee, agent or attorney, shall make affidavit exhibiting interest of mortgagee in property at time last aforesaid, claimed by virtue of such mortgage, and if such mortgage is to secure payment of money, amount yet due and unpaid, and shall file same with county recorder, to be attached to instrument or copy on file to which it relates: but no mortgage of personal property shall be valid against creditors of mortgagor or subsequent purchasers or mortgagees in good faith, after expiration of five years from date of original filing. Ibid., § 155.

If such affidavit be made and filed before any purchase of such mortgaged property shall be made, or other mortgage deposited, or lien obtained thereon, in good faith, it shall be as valid to continue in effect such mortgage as if same had been made and filed within period above provided. Ibid., § 156.

Personal property mortgaged may be taken on attachment, if any legal cause for attachment exists, or on execution issued at suit of creditor of mortgagor; but, before property so taken, officer must pay or tender mortgagee amount of mortgage debt and interest at place where by its terms it is made payable, if such place is within state. If it specifies no place of payment, or if payable without state, then he must deposit amount thereof with county recorder of county wherein mortgage filed, payable to mortgagee or order. Ibid., § 157.

Certified copy of mortgage of personal property, made and filed as provided in this title (on Chattel Mortgages, title 12, §§ 150-168), may be read in evidence in any court in state without further proof of execution of original, if original out of control of person wishing to use it. Ibid., § 158.

Provisions of foregoing sections shall extend to and include all such bills of sale, deeds of trust, and other conveyances of personal property as shall have effect of mortgage or lien upon such property. Ibid., § 159.

Notice that mortgage will be foreclosed by sale of mortgaged property or part thereof, shall be given by advertisement published at least once a week for two successive weeks prior to sale in newspaper printed in county where sale is to take place, or, in case no newspaper printed therein, by posting up notices at least ten days prior to sale in at least five public places in such county, two of which shall be in precinct where mortgaged property is, to be offered for sale. Ibid., § 160.

Such notice shall specify date of mortgage and where filed, names of mortgagor and mortgagee and assignee of mortgagee, if any, the amount claimed to be due thereon at time of first publication or posting of notice, description of mortgaged property conforming substantially with that contained in mortgage, and time and place of sale. Ibid., § 161.

All sales shall be made within thirty days after seizure of property, unless postponed as hereinafter provided. All sales shall be made by public auction, and shall be commenced between hours of twelve m. and four o'clock p. m., and shall be held in county where mortgage first filed, or in any county where property may have been removed by consent of parties and in which mortgage duly filed, and in view of property so being sold. Mortgagee, assignees, and his or their legal representatives, may fairly and in good faith purchase any of property offered at sale, and when mortgage foreclosed as herein provided all right and equity of redemption which mortgagor may or might have had shall be extinguished. Ibid., § 162.

Sale may be postponed to definite time by public announcement made at time and place of sale, with consent of mortgagor, if present; but if sale postponed for more than one week, notice shall be given by publication, or by posting as in first instance. Ibid., § 163.

Within ten days after sale of mortgaged property as hereinbefore provided, mortgagee or assignee shall make, or cause to be made, a statement under oath of proceedings under sale, specifying particularly property sold, amount received therefor and costs and expenses, which shall be itemized, and disposition made by him of proceeds of sale, and shall deliver same to mortgagor or send same to him by registered letter; and on failure so to do shall forfeit to mortgagor $25 damages. Ibid., § 164.

Out of proceeds of sale, person making sale shall pay, first, the costs and expenses of foreclosure, second, amount of mortgage debt due to person entitled thereto, and, third, balance, if any, to owner of mortgaged property. Fees for publication of notice shall in no case exceed $3. Fee of person crying sale shall be $2 a day. Ibid., § 165.

Mortgagor, agent, servant or employe of mortgagor of personal property who shall, during time mortgage remains in force, destroy, sell, conceal, or otherwise dispose of whole or any part of mortgaged property, or who shall remove same or any part from state without written consent of mortgagee, legal representatives or assigns, is guilty of obtaining money under false pretenses, and, on conviction, shall be punished by fine not exceeding three times value of property described in mortgage, or by imprisonment, or by both fine and imprisonment. Term mortgage in this section shall embrace deeds of trust and all instruments intended as security for debt. Ibid., § 166.

It is unlawful for husband, where relation of husband and wife exists, to create lien, by chattel mortgage or otherwise, upon personal property owned by him and exempt by law to resident heads of families from seizure and sale upon attachment, execution, or other process issued from any court in state, without consent of wife; and no such mortgage of personal property shall be valid unless executed by both husband and wife. Ibid., § 167.

Provisions of this title shall not apply to contracts by railway company owning or operating railway in state, for possession, use, and conditional purchase of rolling stock and equipments to operate such railway, and containing condition that title shall not pass until full payment of purchase price; and such contract is valid as to all persons without recording same. Ibid., § 168.

All papers, notices, and instruments of writing required by the laws of Utah to be filed in office of county recorders, shall be recorded. Ibid., § 632x.

When personal property, choses in action, or effects of defendant in hands of garnishee are mortgaged or pledged, or in any way liable for payment of a debt to him, plaintiff may, under order of court for that purpose, pay or tender amount due to garnishee, and thereupon garnishee shall deliver personal property, choses in action, and effects to sheriff, as in other cases. Ibid., § 3107.

There can be but one action for recovery of any debt or enforcement of any right secured by mortgage upon real estate or personal property, which action must be in accordance with the provisions of this chapter (on Foreclosure of Mortgages, chap. 59, §§ 3498-3505). Judgment shall be given adjudging amount due, with costs and disbursements, and sale of mortgaged property, or part thereof, to satisfy amount and directing sheriff to proceed and sell same according to provisions of law relating to sales on execution. Such judgment may be docketed at any time. Ibid., § 3498.

If it appears from return of officer making sale that proceeds are insufficient, and a balance remains due, execution may be issued for such balance as in other cases; but no such execution shall issue until after sale of mortgaged property and application of amount realized as aforesaid. Ibid., § 3499.

No person holding a conveyance from or under mortgagor of mortgaged property, or having lien thereon, which conveyance or lien does not appear of record in proper office, at time of commencement of action, need be made party to action, and judgment therein rendered, and proceedings therein had, are as conclusive against party holding such unrecorded conveyance or lien as if he had been made a party to action. Ibid., § 3500.

If there is surplus money after payment of amount due on mortgage, lien, or incumbrance, with costs, court may cause same to be paid to person entitled to it, and in meantime may direct it to be deposited in court. Ibid., § 3501.

If debt for which mortgage, lien or incumbrance is held is not all due, as soon as sufficient of property has been sold to pay amount due, with costs, sale must cease, and afterwards, as often as more becomes due for principal or interest, court may, on motion, order more to be sold. But if property cannot be sold in portions without injury to parties, whole may be ordered to be sold in first instance, and entire debt and costs paid, there being a rebate of interest where such rebate is proper. Ibid., § 3502.

In all cases of foreclosure, when attorney or counsel fee is claimed by plaintiff, no other or greater amount shall be allowed or decreed than sum which shall appear by the evidence to be charged by and paid to attorney for plaintiff; and if it shall appear there is agreement or understanding to divide such fees between plaintiff and his attorney, or between attorney and any other person except attorney associated with him in the cause, only amount to be retained by attorney or attorneys shall be decreed against defendant. Ibid., § 3504.

In all cases of foreclosure by proceeding in court, attorney's fee shall be fixed by court in which proceedings of foreclosure are had, any stipulation in mortgage to contrary notwithstanding. Ibid., § 3505.

The justices' courts shall have concurrent jurisdiction with district courts within their respective precincts and cities, in actions to enforce and foreclose liens on personal property, where amount of liens and value of property are each less than $300. Ibid., § 689.

The city court shall have concurrent jurisdiction with district courts within their respective counties, in actions to enforce and foreclose liens on personal property, where amount of liens and value of property are each less than $500, and in any action in equity relating wholly to personal property where sum involved and value of property are each less than $500. Ibid., § 686x-12.

In contract for sale of railroad or street railway equipment or rolling stock it may be agreed that title to property sold or contracted to be sold, although possession delivered immediately or subsequently, shall not vest in purchaser until purchase price paid, or that seller shall have lien for unpaid purchase money. And in contract for leasing or hiring such property, it may be stipulated that there be a conditional sale at termination of contract, and rentals or amounts to be received under contract may, as paid, be treated as purchase money, and title shall not vest in lessee or bailee until purchase price paid in full, and until terms of contract fully performed, notwithstanding delivery to and possession by lessee or bailee; but no such contract is valid against subsequent judgment creditor or subsequent bona fide purchaser for value without notice, unless evidenced by instrument executed by parties and acknowledged by vendee, lessee, or bailee, as case may be, or duly proved, like a deed, and filed for record in office of secretary of state of this state, and unless each locomotive engine or car so sold, leased, or hired, or contracted to be sold, leased, or hired as aforesaid, shall have name of vendor, lessor, or bailor plainly marked in letters not less than one inch in size on each side, followed by word "owner," or "lessor," or "bailor," as case may be. These contracts shall be recorded by secretary of state in book of records to be kept for that purpose. And on payment of purchase money and performance of terms and conditions stipulated in contract, a declaration in writing to that effect shall be made by vendor, lessor, or bailor, or assignee, on margin of record of contract, duly attested, or by separate instrument acknowledged by vendor, lessor, or bailor, or assignee, and recorded as aforesaid. Ibid., §§ 456x-2, and 456x-3.

Receiver may be appointed by court in which an action is pending or has passed to judgment, or by the judge thereof, in an action by a mortgagee for foreclosure of mortgage and sale of mortgaged property, where it appears that the property is in danger of being lost, removed, or materially injured, or that condition of mortgage has not been performed, and that property is probably insufficient to discharge mortgage debt. Ibid., § 3114.

Mortgage of personal property is not valid either between the parties or otherwise unless in writing and recorded within thirty days from execution in office of town clerk of town where mortgagor resides, or, if he resides out of state, in town where property situated. Ibid., § 2621.

Mortgagor and mortgagee, or, in absence of mortgagee, his agent or attorney, shall make and subscribe affidavit in substance as follows:

592. Affidavit to Chattel Mortgage.

"We severally swear that the foregoing mortgage is made for the purpose of securing the debt specified in the conditions thereof, and for no other purpose, and that the same is a just debt, due and owing from the mortgagor to the mortgagee."

Such affidavit with certificate of oath signed by the authority administering same shall be appended to mortgage, and recorded therewith. Ibid., § 2622.

When corporation is party to mortgage, affidavit required may be made and subscribed by a director, trustee, cashier or treasurer thereof, or by person authorized on part of corporation to make or receive mortgage; when partnership is party to mortgage, affidavit may be made and subscribed by one member thereof. Ibid., § 2623.

If mortgage given to indemnify mortgagee against liability assumed, or to secure fulfillment of agreement other than payment of debt due from mortgagor to mortgagee, or given to a trustee to secure bonds issued or to be issued thereunder, such liability, agreement or obligation shall be stated specifically in condition of mortgage; and affidavit shall be so varied as to verify validity and justice of liability, agreement or obligation. Ibid., § 2624.

When condition of chattel mortgage fulfilled, mortgagee shall, within thirty days thereafter, cause mortgage to be discharged of record. Person who neglects or refuses so to do shall be fined not more than fifty dollars nor less than five dollars. Ibid., § 2625.

Mortgages of personal property may be discharged by mortgagee, assignee, executor, administrator, agent or attorney, as mortgages of real estate. Ibid., § 2626.

If mortgagee, assignee or executor or administrator of either, after performance of condition before or after breach thereof, or after tender or performance of condition at or after time fixed for performance, does not, within ten days after being thereto requested by person entitled to redeem, discharge mortgage on record, he shall forfeit to person entitled to redeem, the sum of ten dollars and damages occasioned thereby, to be recovered in action on case. Ibid., § 2627.

Town clerk shall keep book of records for mortgages of personal property, record therein any mortgage, transfer or discharge, and on officer's return of sale upon any mortgage, make a reference upon margin of record of such return to volume and page of record of mortgage, and a reference upon margin of such record to volume and page of record of such return, and give certified copy thereof, when requested, on payment of his fees at rate of ten cents a folio, and certify time when same is received and recorded, and keep alphabetical index of mortgagors and mortgagees. Ibid., § 2628.

Personal property not exempt from attachment, encumbered by chattel mortgage, may be attached on mesne process and sold on execution in same manner as unencumbered personal property, in any action against mortgagor and mortgagee for recovery of debt or demand for which both mortgagor and mortgagee are adjudged holden, and whole interest in such property shall pass to purchaser. Word "mortgagee," as used in this section, shall include assignee of mortgagee, or other person holding mortgagee's interest. Ibid., § 2629.

Mortgagor violating a provision of three preceding sections shall be fined not more than double the value of property so wrongfully removed from state, sold, pledged or mortgaged, one-half to use of party injured, and other half to use of the treasury liable for the costs of prosecution. Ibid., § 2633.

Justices shall have concurrent jurisdiction with county court of offenses under four preceding sections. Ibid., § 2634.

When condition of mortgage of personal property is broken, mortgagor or person holding under him, or holding subsequent mortgage, may redeem same by paying or tendering to mortgagee amount due on such mortgage, with reasonable costs and expenses incurred by such breach of condition, before a sale. Ibid., § 2635.

Mortgagee or assignee may, after thirty days from time of condition broken, cause mortgaged property, or part, to be sold at public auction by public officer at public place in town where mortgagor resides or where property is, in case at least ten days' notice of time, place and purpose of sale has been posted in two or more public places in such town. Ibid., § 2636.

Mortgagee or assignee shall notify mortgagor or person holding under him, and persons holding subsequent mortgages, of time and place of sale, either by notice in writing delivered to him, or left at his abode, if within town, or sent by mail if he does not reside in such town, at least ten days before sale. Ibid., § 2637.

Officer making sale shall, within thirty days thereafter, make a return of his doings and file same in town clerk's office where mortgage recorded, and pay town clerk ten cents a folio for recording same, which shall be taxed in costs of sale. Fees of officer for selling the property shall be same as in case of sale on execution. The return shall particularly describe articles sold, and state amount received for each, and shall operate as discharge of lien created by mortgage. Ibid., § 2638.

If machinery is mortgaged with real estate, equity of redemption in such machinery and real estate may be attached and sold on execution as real estate is now sold. Ibid., § 2641.

When assignment of mortgage of real estate, or of personal property, recorded and mortgage itself not recorded therewith, town clerk shall make memorandum on margin of record of mortgage, giving number of book and page where assignment recorded. Ibid., § 3456.

A town clerk shall record instruments acknowledging satisfaction of mortgage, when executed and acknowledged according to law, on margin of record of mortgage or in suitable book kept for that purpose; he shall record any satisfaction and make memorandum on margin of record of mortgage discharged, giving number of book and page where such satisfaction is recorded. Ibid., § 3455.

No lien reserved on personal property sold conditionally and passing into hands of conditional purchaser is valid against attaching creditors or subsequent purchasers without notice, unless vendor takes written memorandum, signed by purchaser, witnessing such lien, and sum due thereon, and causes it to be recorded in office of clerk of town where purchaser resides, if he resides in state, otherwise in office of clerk of town where vendor resides, within thirty days after property delivered. Ibid., § 2663.

Liens on personal property sold conditionally may be discharged by entry on margin of record thereof, in office of clerk where recorded, signed by vendor, executor, administrator, assignee or attorney, acknowledging satisfaction of lien, or by an entry in the writing creating lien signed as aforesaid, acknowledging satisfaction, duly recorded on margin of record of lien, or by release of lien signed as aforesaid and recorded in such office. Ibid., § 2664.

If vendor, assignee or executor or administrator of either, after performance of condition before or after breach, does not, within ten days after being thereto requested, and after tender of reasonable charges, discharge lien in one of ways provided in preceding section, he shall forfeit to person entitled to redeem, the sum of ten dollars and damages occasioned thereby, to be recovered in action on case. Ibid., § 2665.

Vendor of personal property sold conditionally, with lien reserved thereon, or his assignee, may after thirty days from time of condition broken, cause property on which lien exists, or part thereof, to be sold at public auction by public officer in public place in town where person giving lien resides or where property is, in case at least ten days' notice of time, place, and purpose of sale has been posted in two or more public places in such town; and at least ten days' notice of such sale shall be given to vendee or person holding under him, of time and place of sale, either by notice in writing, delivered to him or left at his abode, if living within town, or sent by mail if he does not reside in such town; and, if property is not redeemed by payment of amount due and costs and expenses incurred by such breach of condition, the property shall be sold as posted. Ibid., § 2666.

Proceeds of sale shall be applied to payment of lien and costs and expenses of keeping property and sale; and balance shall be paid to vendee or person holding under him, on demand. Ibid., § 2667.

Officer selling property shall make return of his doings in same manner as required in sale upon mortgage of personal property, and his return shall have like effect, and he shall receive same fees. Ibid., § 2668.

No personal property sold conditionally, upon which there is reserved a lien duly recorded, shall be removed from state without consent of vendor or assignee Ibid., § 2669.

Person having possession of personal property with lien thereon duly recorded, with intent to defraud, before performance of condition precedent to acquiring absolute title thereto, who sells same without consent of vendor or assignee, or, with intent to defraud, conceals or aids in concealing personal property upon which there is such a lien, or removes same from state without consent of vendor or assignee, shall be fined not more than double the value of property so wrongfully sold, concealed or removed, one-half to use of party injured, and other half to use of treasury liable for costs of prosecution. Ibid., § 2670.

Justices shall have concurrent jurisdiction with county court of offenses under preceding section. Ibid., § 2671.

Provisions of this chapter (on Liens, chap. 124, §§ 2642-2673), in so far as inconsistent, shall not apply to contracts of the kind mentioned in section 4389. Ibid., § 2672.

In contract for sale of railroad or street railway equipment or rolling stock, it may be agreed that title to property sold or contracted to be sold, although possession may be delivered immediately or subsequently, shall not vest in purchaser until purchase price fully paid, or that seller shall have lien for unpaid purchase money; and, in contract for leasing or hiring such property, it may be stipulated that there be a conditional sale at termination of contract, and rentals or amounts to be received under contract may, as paid, be treated as purchase money, and title shall not vest in lessee or bailee until purchase price paid in full and terms of contract fully performed, notwithstanding delivery and possession; but no such contract is valid against subsequent creditor, or subsequent bona fide purchaser for value without notice, unless evidenced by instrument executed by parties and acknowledged by vendee, lessee or bailee, as case may be, or duly proved like a deed, and filed for record in office of secretary of state, and unless each locomotive engine or car so sold, leased or hired, or contracted to be sold, leased or hired, shall have name of vendor, lessor or bailor plainly marked on each side, followed by word "owner," or "lessor," or "bailor," as case may be. Ibid., § 4389.

Contracts authorized by preceding section shall be recorded by secretary of state in book of records to be kept for that purpose. On payment in full of purchase money, and performance of terms and conditions stipulated in such contract, declaration in writing to that effect may be made by vendor, lessor or bailor, or assignee, on margin of record of contract, duly attested, or by separate instrument, acknowledged by vendor, lessor or bailor, or assignee, and recorded as aforesaid. Ibid., § 4390.

Mortgages of railroad franchises, furniture, cars, engines and rolling stock, when properly executed and recorded, shall vest in mortgagee a mortgage interest in and lien upon such property, without delivery or change of possession; and, for purpose of mortgage, all such property shall be deemed part of realty. This section shall not prevent such furniture, cars, engines and rolling stock from being attached by person having claim against corporation owning such property, for injury sustained on its road by negligence of corporation, or for services rendered, or materials furnished to keep road in repair or to run same, or for liabilities as common carriers, or for loss of property while in possession of corporation; and such property, when so attached, may be taken, held and disposed of as though not mortgaged. Ibid., § 4388.

Person who sells or disposes of personal property, or causes same to be sold or disposed of by another upon which there is lien created by previous attachment or conditional sale, or upon which he has previously given bill of sale, without giving notice to purchaser of lien or bill of sale, with intent to defraud, shall be imprisoned. Ibid., § 5785.

Whenever word "mortgagee" occurs in the six following sections, it shall be construed to mean mortgagee, assignee of mortgagee, or other person holding his interest. Ibid., § 1695.

When mortgagor of personal property summoned as trustee of mortgagee, plaintiff may direct officer serving writ to attach mortgagee's interest in property. Officer when so directed shall attach interest by leaving copy of writ in town clerk's office where mortgage recorded, with return thereon describing property and interest of mortgagee therein; and town clerk shall enter upon margin of record of mortgage, a statement that interest of mortgagee is attached, and make other record and entry required by law to be made where property attached by copy. Ibid., § 1696.

Property so attached shall be holden to satisfy any execution issuing upon judgment rendered against trustee in original action, or in action on judgment rendered against trustee in original action, in same manner and to same extent that property attached as property of defendant in action and taken into actual possession of officer making attachment is held to satisfy execution against such defendant. Ibid., § 1697.

Mortgagee whose interest is so attached shall not sell or dispose of such property while attachment in force, or while liability of trustee is undetermined or continues. Ibid., § 1698.

Property so attached may be sold upon any execution issuing by reason of judgment rendered against trustee, either in original action or in action on judgment rendered in original action, and title and interest of mortgagor, mortgagee or other person, to and in property, shall pass to purchaser at sale. Ibid., § 1699.

When action pending in county or supreme court, if trustee files with clerk of such court a bond to plaintiff in sum equal to amount for which attachment is directed in writ, with sufficient sureties, approved by clerk, conditioned that trustee will pay judgment rendered against him in action, and also bond to defendant in penal sum double amount of mortgage debt, with sureties approved as aforesaid, conditioned that he will pay balance due upon mortgage after paying judgment, and that if discharged as trustee he will pay amount secured by mortgage, he may sell property; and purchaser shall hold same released from mortgage and attachment. Ibid., § 1700.

When action pending in county or supreme court, if mortgagee files with clerk of court bond in sum equal to amount for which attachment directed in writ, with sufficient sureties approved by clerk, conditioned that he will pay judgment that may be rendered against him, trustee shall be discharged and attachment dissolved. Ibid., § 1701.

Personal property not exempt from attachment, subject to mortgage, pledge or lien, may be attached, taken on execution and sold as property of mortgagor, pledgor or general owner, in same manner as other personal property, except as hereinafter otherwise provided. Ibid., § 1768.

Officer making attachment or taking property on execution may make written demand of mortgagee, pledgee, or holder of lien for account in writing, under oath, of amount due upon debt secured by mortgage, pledge or lien, and may retain property in custody until same is given without tender or payment. Upon receiving demand, account shall be rendered within fifteen days by resident of state and thirty days by non-resident. If account not rendered within that time, or if false account rendered, property may be holden and sold discharged from mortgage, pledge or lien. Ibid., § 1769.

If debt due at time of rendering account, creditor so attaching or causing property to be taken on execution may, within ten days after account rendered, pay or tender amount so rendered to mortgagee, pledgee, or holder of lien, and retain and sell property free and clear of mortgage, pledge or lien. Ibid., § 1770.

If debt not due at time of rendering account, but becomes due before time fixed by officer making attachment or levy of execution for sale of property, such creditor, within ten days after debt due and before sale, may pay or tender amount to mortgagee, pledgee, or holder of lien, and retain and sell property as provided in preceding section. Ibid., § 1771.

If debt not due at time fixed by officer for sale of property, creditor may offer to pay debt to mortgagee, pledgee, or holder of lien, and, if payment accepted, same proceedings may be had as provided in second preceding section. Ibid., § 1772.

If creditor pays or tenders debt as provided in three preceding sections to mortgagee, pledgee, or holder of lien, he shall be subrogated to all rights of mortgagee, pledgee or holder, and may cause same to be sold in same manner that unencumbered personal property may be sold on mesne or final process; and proceeds of sale shall be applied, first, in payment of sum paid by creditor to mortgagee, pledgee or holder; second, to satisfy execution. Ibid., § 1773.

If mortgagee, pledgee, or holder of lien duly renders such account, attaching creditor may, whether or not debt is due, cause property to be sold subject to mortgage, pledge or lien, without first paying or tendering amount due on debt secured thereby. Ibid., § 1774.

If mortgagor, pledgor or conditional vendee of property sold on execution under provisions of this chapter (on Attachment and Sale of Property subject to Mortgage, Pledge or Lien, chap. 86, §§ 1768-1781) fails or refuses to discharge lien after it becomes due and payable, and within ten days after written notice so to do is served upon him by purchaser of whole or part, person so purchasing may tender and pay to holder of mortgage, pledge or lien, or conditional vendor, amount due such creditor upon whole of property, and upon such tender or payment shall be subrogated to all rights of original mortgagee, pledgee or conditional vendor, and may hold same as security for amount so paid in discharge of original claim, with sum paid by him on execution sale, with interest upon such sums, and shall have same benefit of foreclosure, sale and disposition of property, that original mortgagee, pledgee or conditional vendor would have had under his claim. Ibid., § 1775.

In sales of personal property, where by contract payment of purchase money is made condition precedent to transfer of title, if property in pursuance of contract has passed into possession of vendee, and purchase money or part remains unpaid, creditor of vendee may attach or levy his execution upon property, and upon payment or tender of unpaid purchase money to vendor, agent or attorney, within ten days after notice of amount thereof remaining unpaid, may hold property discharged from claim of vendor. Ibid., § 1776.

Officer making such attachment or levy shall hold and dispose of property like other personal property attached or levied upon, and from proceeds of sale pay to creditor amount by him paid or tendered to vendor, and apply residue upon execution. Ibid., § 1777.

If vendor refuses to receive amount so tendered him, and brings suit on account of attachment or levy, defendant may, under general issue, give evidence of tender in bar of action, and on proof thereof and payment of money tendered into court, recover his costs, unless it appears amount so tendered was less than sum due vendor, as residue of purchase money. Ibid., § 1778.

Real or personal estate of a deceased person which is mortgaged or pledged, or has lien thereon, for security of debt, may, on application of executor, administrator or creditor, be sold under order of probate court; and net proceeds shall be applied towards payment of such secured debt; and debt, if proved before the commissioners, shall be reduced by amount of net proceeds of sale. Executor or administrator may be licensed or ordered to sell such real or personal estate under same regulations as provided in this chapter (on License to Sell and Convey Real and Personal Estate, chap. 135, §§ 2867-2887) for sale of real estate for payment of debts. Ibid., § 2884.

Such sale shall be made in such manner as court directs, but sale of such real estate shall be at public auction, unless sold for sum sufficient to satisfy mortgage secured thereon; and executor or administrator and creditor, respectively, shall execute deeds and papers necessary for effecting conveyance. Ibid., § 2885.

Surplus of sale, after payment of debt secured, shall be administered by executor or administrator as such property would be if not held as security; and certificate of sale, filed by executor or administrator in office of clerk of town where property situated, shall operate as discharge of mortgage or lien. Ibid., § 2886

Three preceding sections shall not affect rights of widow. Ibid., § 2887

VIRGINIA.

Every deed of trust or mortgage conveying goods and chattels and bill of sale or contract for sale of goods and chattels, when possession is allowed to remain with the grantor must be in writing and signed by the vendor, and is void as to subsequent purchasers for valuable consideration without notice and creditors, until and except from the time when it is duly admitted to record in the county or corporation wherein the property embraced may be. Code of 1904, § 2465.

Record must be in all counties or corporations where the goods or chattels may be. Ibid., § 2466.

If any such goods or chattels shall be removed from the county or corporation in which the mortgage is recorded, the mortgage must within one year after such removal be admitted to record in the county or corporation to which the property is so removed. Otherwise so long as not recorded it shall be void as to creditors and subsequent purchasers as to property secured, except in respect to the interest of any married woman (such interest not being her separate estate), infant or insane person, when before the end of one year after the disability shall cease, the writing is recorded in the county or corporation to which the property is removed. Ibid., § 2468.

No mortgage, deed of trust or other incumbrance upon personal property, while such property is located in another state, shall be valid against property removed into this state, unless recorded in the county or corporation, in which said property is located. Ibid., § 2468-a.

The provisions as to recording in county where property is relate to property within the county and without the corporate limits of a corporation having a court wherein writings may be lawfully admitted to record, and those in reference to the corporation relate only to property within the corporate limits of such corporation having said court. Ibid., § 2470.

Where loan of goods or chattels is pretended to have been made to person with whom, or those claiming under him, possession shall have remained five years without demand made and pursued by due process of law on part of pretended lender, or where any reservation or limitation is pretended to have been made of a use or property, by way of condition, reversion, remainder, or otherwise, in goods or chattels, the possession whereof shall have so remained in another as aforesaid, the absolute property shall be taken to be with the possession, and such loan, reservation, or limitation void as to creditors of and purchasers from the person so remaining in possession, unless such loan, reservation, or limitation be declared by will, which or copy of which is, or by deed, or other writing, duly admitted to record within said five years, in county or corporation in which goods or chattels may be. Ibid., § 2461.

Every sale or contract for sale of goods and chattels wherein the title thereto or a lien thereon is reserved until same be paid for in whole or in part, or transfer of title is made to depend on any condition, and possession be delivered to vendee, shall in respect to such reservation and condition, be void as to creditors of and purchasers for value without notice from such vendee until such sale or contract be in writing, signed by both vendor and vendee, in which the said reservation or condition is expressed, and until and except from time that a memorandum of said writing, setting forth date thereof, amount due thereon, when and how payable, and a brief description of goods or chattels, be docketed in clerk's office of circuit or corporation court of county or corporation in which goods or chattels may be, or in clerk's office of chancery court of city of Richmond, if goods or chattels be within corporate limits of said city; and it shall be duty of such clerk to docket and to index same from original contract in name of vendor and vendee, together with date of docketing, in a book to be kept by him for that purpose, and to endorse on such contract the words "Memorandum docketed," with his signature as clerk affixed thereto, for which service clerk may charge fee not exceeding twenty-five cents; but no tax shall be charged thereon, and the docketing and indexing of such memorandum of said contract as is herein provided for shall have same effect as to creditors of and purchasers for value without notice from vendee as if contract were recorded according to the provisions of chapter one hundred and nine of Code of Virginia of eighteen hundred and eighty-seven, or if said goods or chattels consist of locomotives, cars, or other rolling stock, equipments or personal property of any description to be used in or about the operation of any railroad, until and except from time said writing is duly admitted to record in clerk's office of circuit or corporation court of county or corporation wherein principal office in this State of company operating railroad is located, or in clerk's office of chancery court of city of Richmond, if said principal office is within corporate limits of said city, and a copy of said writing be filed in office of State corporation commission, and each locomotive, car, or other piece of rolling stock be plainly and permanently marked with name of vendor on both sides thereof, followed by word "owner."

Except where goods and chattels consist of locomotives, cars, or other rolling stock, equipments or personal property of any description to be used in or about operation of any railroad, no acknowledgment or other form of proof shall be requisite to authorize clerk to docket said sale or contract, and all sales or contracts for sale of goods or chattels other than locomotives, cars, and railroad equipment aforesaid, heretofore docketed without acknowledgment or other proof, shall have same force and effect as if same had been duly acknowledged or proved.

All reservations, liens, conditions, and the collection of all money mentioned in any such written contract, whether recorded or not, may be enforced on petition to justice of peace when amount or value involved is within his jurisdiction, and to circuit court or corporation court when amount or value involved is within its jurisdiction. Such petition shall be filed by person entitled to recover, and shall state the contract and plaintiff's claim, describe the property with reasonable certainty, and name the time when judgment will be asked for.

A copy thereof shall be served on each person whose rights will be affected by proceedings, which may be had thereon at least ten days before date named therein for asking for judgment, and original shall be filed with the justice or clerk of court at least five days before such date.

A defendant shall, when case is in circuit or corporation court, state grounds of his defence or his counter claim or offset in an answer to the petition, to which plaintiff may reply, and no further pleading shall be required. But any such pleading may be demurred to as pleading in other cases. The court or the justice may permit all proper amendments to petition or other pleadings. The court or justice shall hear and determine all questions arising out of or under the contract which are properly raised by the pleadings (no pleadings other than petition being necessary before a justice) and shall render such judgment thereon as may be required by the rules of law or equity applicable to such questions.

The property may be sold or possession delivered or such other disposition made of it as the court or justice may direct. When judgment is for money or costs or for specific property, execution therefor may issue as in other cases. Where property is to be sold or other disposition made of it, judgment or order of court or justice shall be executed by sheriff or other officer of court authorized to execute process or by a constable. Ibid., § 2462.

Each vendor in a contract for sale of personal property docketed under section twenty-four hundred and sixty-two of Code of Virginia, as amended, upon payment to him of amount of purchase price in full, as set forth in said contract, shall mark, or cause to be marked, in manner hereinafter stated, the same satisfied upon margin of page of book where same is recorded, which note of satisfaction, when signed by vendor or duly authorized agent or attorney, and attested by clerk in whose office contract docketed, shall operate as release of all claims of such vendor therein; or upon written notice by vendor, his duly authorized agent or attorney, to clerk in whose office contract is docketed, stating therein that contract has been fully paid by vendee, clerk shall, upon such notice, mark said contract satisfied upon margin of page of book wherein contract is docketed, and this shall operate as a release of all claims of such vendor, as to all goods described in contract so docketed, and clerk for attesting such release as is herein provided, or for marking said contract satisfied upon written request of vendor, his duly authorized agent or attorney, shall have fee of twenty-five cents, to be paid by vendee.

Vendor failing or neglecting to so release contract after whole amount thereof has been paid to him, and within fifteen days after such vendor shall have received written notice from vendee to mark said contract satisfied, shall forfeit five dollars to vendee.

Whenever vendee shall be indebted for rent of house wherein personal property, described in said contract, is stored or kept, and landlord or his duly authorized agent has taken action to recover said rent, said vendor, at request of landlord, or duly authorized agent or attorney, shall state under oath balance due on contract of sale, and upon payment of such balance by vendee, shall release and mark contract satisfied in accordance with terms and provisions of this act. Ibid., § 2462a.

Every deed of gift, or deed of trust, or mortgage conveying real estate or goods and chattels, and every bill of sale or contract for sale of goods and chattels when possession is allowed to remain with grantor (and any such bill of sale of contract shall be in writing and signed by vendor), shall be void as to subsequent purchasers for valuable consideration without notice, and creditors, until and except from time it is duly admitted to record in county or corporation wherein property embraced in contract, deed or bill of sale may be: but possession of estate or term, without notice of other evidence of title, shall not be notice to subsequent purchasers for valuable consideration. Ibid., § 2465.

Notwithstanding such writing shall be duly admitted to record in one county or corporation wherein there is real estate or goods or chattels, it shall nevertheless be void as to such creditors and purchasers in respect to other real estate or goods or chattels without the same, until duly admitted to record in county or corporation wherein such other real estate or goods or chattels may be. Ibid., § 2466.

Two preceding sections are subject to qualification that such writing admitted to record within ten days from day of its being acknowledged before and certified by a justice, notary, or other person authorized to certify same for record, shall, unless it be mortgage or deed of trust not in consideration of marriage, be as valid as to creditors and subsequent purchasers as if admission to record had been on the day of acknowledgment and certificate. Ibid., § 2467.

Where two or more writings embracing same property are admitted to record in same county or corporation on same day, if previous sections do not provide for case, that which was first admitted to record shall have priority in respect to property in such county or corporation. Ibid., § 2469.

Words "creditors" and "purchasers," where used in any previous section of this chapter, shall not be restricted to the protection of creditors of and purchasers from grantor, but shall extend to and embrace all creditors and purchasers who, but for the deed or writing, would have had title to property conveyed, or a right to subject it to their debts. And as against any person claiming under deed or other writing which shall not have been admitted to record before payment by subsequent purchaser for valuable consideration of the whole or part of his purchase money, such subsequent purchaser, notwithstanding such deed or other writing be admitted to record before he becomes a complete purchaser, shall in equity, have a lien on the property purchased by him, for so much of his purchase money as he may have paid before notice. Ibid., § 2472.

A purchaser shall not, under this chapter, be affected by record of deed or contract made by person under whom his title is not derived, nor by record of deed or contract made by any person before date of deed or contract made to or with such person, which is duly admitted to record, and from which the title of such person is derived. Ibid., § 2473.

WASHINGTON.

Mortgages may be made upon all kinds of personal property, and upon the rolling stock of railroad company and upon all kinds of machinery, and upon boats and vessels, and upon portable mills, and such like property, and upon growing crops and crops before seed thereof sown or planted; but mortgaging of crops before seed thereof sown or planted, for more than one year in advance, is forbidden, and all securities or mortgages executed on such unsown or unplanted crops are void, unless such crops are to be sown or planted within one year from time of execution of mortgage. Remington & Ballinger's Annotated Codes and Statutes of 1909, § 3659.

Mortgage of personal property is void against creditors of mortgagor or subsequent purchaser, and encumbrancers of property for value and in good faith, unless accompanied by affidavit of mortgagor that it is made in good faith, and without design to hinder, delay or defraud creditors, and acknowledged and recorded in manner required in conveyance of real property. Ibid., § 3660 [See §§ 3662 and 3665, later enactments].

Such instrument within ten days from time of execution thereof shall be filed in office of county auditor of county where mortgaged property situated, and he shall file all such instruments when presented for purpose, upon payment of the proper fees therefor, indorse thereon time of reception, and number thereof, and enter in suitable book to be provided by him, with alphabetical index thereto, used exclusively for that purpose, ruled into separate columns with appropriate heads: "The time of filing," "Name of mortgagor," "Name of mortgagee," "Date of instrument," "Amount secured," "When due," and "Date of release." An index to said book shall be kept in manner required for indexing deeds of real estate, and county auditor shall receive for services required by this act sum of fifteen cents for every instrument. Ibid., § 3661.

Mortgage filed and indexed in pursuance of this act (this act refers to §§ 3659 and 3661-3667) is full and sufficient notice to all the world, of existence and conditions thereof, but ceases to be notice against creditors of mortgagor and subsequent purchasers and mortgagees in good faith after expiration of time mortgage becomes due, unless before expiration of two years after time mortgage becomes due, mortgagee, his agent or attorney, shall make and file as aforesaid an affidavit, setting forth amount due upon mortgage, which affidavit shall be annexed to instrument to which it relates and auditor shall indorse on affidavit time it was filed. Ibid., § 3662.

Effect of such affidavit shall not continue beyond one year from time when mortgage would otherwise cease to be valid against such creditors and subsequent purchasers and mortgagees in good faith; unless before time when mortgage would otherwise cease to be valid, as aforesaid, similar affidavit filed and annexed as provided in preceding section, and with like effect. Ibid., § 3663.

Mortgage contemplated by this act given to secure sum of one hundred dollars or less, exclusive of interest and costs of foreclosure, may be made in substantially following form:

Ibid., § 3664.

Mortgage to secure sum of three hundred dollars or more exclusive of interest, costs and attorney's or counsel fees may be recorded and indexed with like force and effect as if this act had not been passed, but such mortgage or copy must also be filed and indexed as required by this act. Ibid., § 3665.

In case property mortgaged exists in two or more counties, copy of mortgage may be filed in each of such counties with like force and effect as original mortgage. Ibid., § 3666.

Whenever mortgage, filed under provisions of this act, has been paid or conditions thereof satisfied, mortgagee, or assignee or personal representatives shall make to mortgagor, assignee or personal representatives, certificate in writing, under his hand, stating date of mortgage and description of property thereby mortgaged, and that same has been discharged in full;

and on delivering certificate in writing to officer with whom mortgage filed, said officer shall deliver mortgage to person producing certificate on payment of sum of ten cents for filing certificate, and file certificate in his office, indorsing thereon true date of filing same, and keep certificate among records in office, and write word "satisfied" with date opposite to mortgage, in index in which such mortgages entered, under heading "release." Ibid., § 3667.

Mortgage of personal property must be recorded in office of county auditor of county where property situated, in book kept exclusively for that purpose. When personal property mortgaged is thereafter removed from county where situated, it is, except as between parties to mortgage, exempted from operation thereof, unless either,—

1. Mortgagee within thirty days after removal causes mortgage to be recorded in county to which property removed; or

2. Mortgage be recorded in custom house; or

3. Mortgagee within thirty days after removal takes possession of property; but mortgage on vessel or boat, or part of vessel or boat, over twenty tons burden, shall be recorded in office of collector of customs, where vessel is registered, enrolled or licensed, and need not be recorded elsewhere. Ibid., § 3668 [See § 3661, later enactment].

Mortgagor of personal property, or successor in interest of mortgagor, who, with intent to hinder, delay or defraud mortgagee, or assigns or legal representatives, shall injure or destroy property or part thereof, or conceal property or part thereof, or remove same or part thereof from county where situated at date of mortgage before duly released, without consent in writing of mortgagee, or sell or dispose of same, or any interest therein, where he parts with possession thereof, without consent in writing of mortgagee, is guilty of misdemeanor. Ibid., § 3669.

Person selling or mortgaging personal property which is at the time mortgaged or upon which any lien has been or may lawfully be filed, without informing purchaser or mortgagee thereof, before payment of purchase price or money loaned, of several amounts of all such mortgages and liens, is guilty of larceny. Ibid., § 2603.

Person in possession who shall remove, conceal or destroy or connive at or consent to removal, concealment or destruction of personal property or part thereof, upon which mortgage lien, conditional sales contract or lease exists, in such manner as to hinder, delay or defraud holder of mortgage lien or conditional sales contract, or lessor, or who, with intent to hinder, delay or defraud such holder or lessor, shall sell, remove, conceal or destroy or connive at or consent to removal, concealment or destruction of such property, is guilty of gross misdemeanor. Ibid., § 2629.

Mortgage upon property of mixed character, consisting in part of real estate and in part of personal property, and particularly upon railroad property, in state of Washington, shall be admitted to record and be recorded in the several counties wherein property is located as a real estate mortgage when acknowledged in manner provided by law, and original of mortgage or copy certified by auditor of any county where original has been recorded may be filed in a file to be kept for that purpose in office of auditor of county where property situated, and said record and filing shall constitute notice to all persons of existence of mortgage lien provided by mortgage. Ibid., § 8782.

In case mortgage covering mixed real estate and personal property is recorded in record of mortgages of real estate, or in record of chattel mortgages, and affidavit required by law to be attached to chattel mortgages is not recorded as part of chattel mortgage but is afterwards recorded upon separate page of record and a reference made at place of original record of real estate or chattel mortgage to said affidavit stating volume and pages on which same may be found, said record shall constitute notice from and after date of filing of affidavit, the same as if affidavit and mortgage had been recorded together at same time and at same places. Ibid., § 8783.

County auditor must, upon the payment of his fees for same, record separately all such papers or writings as are required by law to be recorded and such as are required by law to be filed if requested so to do by party filing same. Ibid., § 8786.

When amount due on mortgage is paid, mortgagee, legal representatives or assigns, shall, at request of person interested in property mortgaged, acknowledge satisfaction of same on margin of page upon which mortgage recorded (which marginal satisfaction shall be at the time attested by auditor or deputy), or by executing instrument in writing referring to mortgage by volume and page of record or otherwise sufficiently describing it and acknowledging satisfaction in full thereof. Said instrument shall be acknowledged and upon request be recorded in county where property situated. Ibid., § 8798.

If mortgagee fail so to do after sixty days from date of such request or demand, he shall forfeit to mortgagor sum of twenty-five dollars, to be recovered in any court having competent jurisdiction, and said court, when convinced that mortgage fully satisfied, shall issue order in writing, directing auditor to cancel mortgage, and auditor shall immediately record order and cancel mortgage as directed by court, upon margin of page upon which mortgage recorded, making reference thereupon to order of court and to page where order recorded. Ibid., § 8799.

Person to whom real estate or chattel mortgage given, or assignee of mortgage, may, by instrument in writing, by him signed and acknowledged in manner provided by law entitling mortgages to be recorded, assign same to person therein named as assignee, and person to whom mortgage is so assigned, may, after assignment has been released in office of auditor of county where mortgage is of record, acknowledge satisfaction of mortgage, and discharge same of record. Ibid., § 8800.

Conditional sales of personal property or leases thereof, containing conditional right to purchase, where property is placed in possession of vendee, shall be absolute as to purchasers, encumbrancers and subsequent creditors in good faith, unless within ten days after taking possession by vendee, memorandum of sale, stating terms and conditions and signed by vendor and vendee, shall be filed in auditor's office of county, wherein, at date of vendee's taking possession of property, vendee resides. Ibid., § 3670.

It is duty of county auditor wherein such memorandum is presented to him for that purpose, to file all such instruments, upon payment of proper fees, indorse thereon time of reception, number thereof, and he shall enter in suitable book to be provided by him, with alphabetical index thereto, and exclusively for that purpose, ruled into separate columns with appropriate heads, "The time of filing," "Name of vendor," "Name of vendee," "Date of instrument," "Amount of purchase price," and "Date of release." An index of said book shall be kept in manner required for indexing deeds to real estate, and county auditor shall receive for services required by this chapter, twenty-five cents for each instrument. Such instrument shall remain on file until full payment made thereon, and shall be satisfied or canceled in same manner and upon payment of same fees as chattel mortgages. Ibid., § 3671.

Purchaser or lessee of personal property obtaining possession under contract providing that title shall not vest in purchaser until purchase price paid, who, with intent to hinder, delay or defraud vendor or assigns or legal representatives, shall injure or destroy property or part thereof or conceal property or part thereof, or remove same or part thereof from county where situated at time possession passed to purchaser or lessee before duly released, without consent in writing of vendor, or sell or dispose of same or any interest therein where he parts with possession, without consent in writing of vendor, is guilty of misdemeanor. Ibid., § 3672.

All acts or parts of acts enumerated in the following schedule, and all acts, and parts of acts in conflict with the provisions hereof, are hereby repealed.

Schedule of Acts Repealed contains section 3672, which is retained, as apparently not in conflict with other provisions or not clearly embraced in title of act. Ibid., § 2304, and note.

No bill of sale for transfer of personal property is valid against existing creditors or innocent purchasers, where property left in possession of vendor, unless bill of sale recorded in auditor's office of county where property situated, within ten days after sale made. Ibid., § 5291.

In contract of or for sale of railroad equipment or rolling stocks, it may be agreed that title of property sold, or contracted to be sold, although deliverable immediately, or subsequently, shall not vest in purchaser until purchase price paid, or that seller shall have lien for unpaid purchase money; and in contract of or for leasing of such property, it may be stipulated that there be conditional sale at termination of lease, and rentals received may, as paid, be treated as purchase money, and title shall not vest in lessee or vendee until purchase price paid, notwithstanding delivery and possession; but no such contract is valid against subsequent judgment creditor or subsequent bona fide purchaser, for value and without notice, unless evidenced by instrument acknowledged like a deed and filed for record in office of county auditor of county where, at time of execution thereof, is situated principal office of vendee or lessee within this territory, and unless each locomotive engine or car so sold or contracted to be sold, or leased, as aforesaid, shall have name of vendor or lessee plainly marked on each side, followed by word "owner" or "lessor," as case may be. Ibid., § 8741.

Such contracts shall be recorded by said county recorder in book of records of mortgages of real estate in said county; and on payment of purchase money and performance of terms and conditions stipulated in contract, declaration in writing to that effect shall be made by vendor or assignee, on margin of record of contract, attested by said recorder, or by separate instrument, acknowledged and recorded as aforesaid. Ibid., § 8742.

Mortgage of personal property, when debt secured by mortgage is due, may be foreclosed by notice and sale as herein provided; or by action in superior court having jurisdiction in county where property situated. Ibid., § 1104.

Notice must contain full description of property, with time and place of sale, also statement of amount due, and must be signed by mortgagee or his attorney. Ibid., § 1105.

Such notice shall be placed in hands of sheriff or other proper officer, and personally served in manner provided by law for service of summons; but, if mortgagor cannot be found in county where mortgage is being foreclosed, it shall [not] be necessary to advertise notice or affidavit in newspaper; but general publication directed in next section shall be sufficient service upon all parties interested, and such notice shall be sufficient authority for officer to take property into immediate possession. Ibid., § 1106.

After notice served upon mortgagor, it must be published in same manner and for same length of time as required in cases of sale of like property on execution, and sale shall be conducted in same manner. Ibid., § 1107.

Purchaser shall take all interest which mortgagor had in property mortgaged. Ibid., § 1108.

Officer conducting sale shall execute to purchaser bill of sale of property, which bill of sale shall be effectual to carry whole title and interest purchased, and if any balance of purchase price remain, it shall be disposed of in same manner as surplus proceeds of sales on execution. Ibid., § 1109.

Right of mortgagee to foreclose, as well as amount claimed to be due, may be contested by any person interested in so doing, and proceedings may be transferred to superior court, for which purpose an injunction may issue if necessary. Ibid., § 1110.

Where debt not due for which mortgage given, and mortgagee has reasonable cause to believe mortgaged property will be destroyed, lost or removed, he shall have the right to an immediate action in superior court of county having jurisdiction where property situated, for recovery of debt, and court may make any order it may deem fit, in order to secure said property so as to make same available for satisfaction of debt. Ibid., § 1111.

Mortgage[e] of personal property, where debt secured by the mortgage is due, or, if debt not yet due, and mortgagee has reasonable ground to believe debt is insecure and that by allowing property longer to remain in hands of mortgagor he would be in danger of losing debt or security, may have property taken from possession of mortgagor, and sold in manner provided in this chapter (on the Foreclosure of Chattel Mortgages, chap. I, of Title VIII, §§ 1104-1115). Ibid., § 1112.

Provisions contained in chapter two (on Foreclosure of Mortgages of Real Estate, §§ 1116-1128) of this title, so far as the same shall be applicable, shall govern in actions for foreclosure of chattel mortgages or bills of sale creating liens on personal property. Ibid., § 1113.

Mortgagee or holder of lien may proceed upon mortgage or lien, [or] if there be separate obligation in writing to pay the same secured by said mortgage or lien, he may bring suit upon such separate promise. When he proceeds on mortgage, if there be specific agreement therein for payment of certain sum or there is separate obligation for said sum, in addition to decree of sale of mortgaged property, judgment shall be rendered for amount due upon mortgage or other instrument, the payment of which is thereby secured. The decree shall direct sale of mortgaged property, and if proceeds of sale be insufficient under execution, sheriff may levy upon and sell other property of mortgage debtor, not exempt from execution, for sum remaining unsatisfied. Ibid., § 1114.

Interest of mortgagor, subject, however, to lien of mortgagee, may be sold under process of law issuing out of any superior or justice of the peace court; but, if party who has mortgage resides in state, or has agent herein, and same is known to officer executing process, he shall serve upon him or agent personally, or by mailing to him or agent if their post-office is known, a notification of intended sale at time such mortgaged property is seized under said process, or within five days thereafter. Said property shall not be sold within less than thirty days after seizure, and officer executing process must post in three public places, near place where property is to be sold, notice of time and place of sale, at time he seizes said property under said process. Ibid., § 1115.

All franchises of every kind and nature shall be subject to sale upon execution and upon order of sale issued upon foreclosure of mortgage, in same manner as any other personal property, except as hereinafter provided. Ibid., § 520.

The levy of such execution or order of sale shall be made by filing in office of auditor of county where franchise granted, copy of same, with notice in writing that under such execution or order of sale officer levying same has levied upon franchise to be sold, specifying time and place of sale, name of owner of franchise, amount of claim or judgment for satisfaction of which franchise is to be sold, and name of plaintiff in action in which decree of foreclosure or judgment is entered; and by serving copy of execution or order of sale and notice upon judgment debtor or attorney of record, if any, in action in which judgment was rendered, twenty days prior to date of sale. Notice may be served upon a defendant in same manner that summons is served in civil actions. Sale of franchise under execution or order of sale upon foreclosure must be made at front door of courthouse in county in which franchise granted, not less than twenty days after levy of execution or order of sale and giving of notice as in this act provided. Ibid., § 521.

In this section word "transfer" shall be taken to include every gift, sale, conveyance and assignment, and word "charge" shall be taken to include every confessed judgment, deed of trust, mortgage, lien and incumbrance. Every transfer or charge which is not upon consideration deemed valuable in law, shall be void as to creditors whose debts shall have been contracted at time it was made; but shall not upon that account merely be void as to creditors whose debts shall have been contracted, or as to purchasers who shall have purchased after it was made; and though decreed void as to prior creditor, because voluntary, it shall not for that cause be decreed void as to subsequent creditors or purchasers. Every transfer or charge made by insolvent debtor attempting to prefer creditor of such insolvent debtor or to secure such creditor or any surety or indorser for debt to exclusion or prejudice of any other creditor, is void as to such preference or security, but shall be taken to be for benefit of all creditors of such debtor, and all the property so attempted to be transferred or charged shall be applied and paid pro rata upon all debts owed by debtor at time transfer or charge made; but such transfer or charge shall be valid as to such preference or priority, unless creditor of such insolvent debtor institute suit in chancery within one year after transfer or charge was made to set aside and avoid same and cause property so transferred or charged to be applied toward payment pro rata of all debts of insolvent debtor existing at time transfer or charge made, subject, however, to provision hereinafter contained with reference to creditors uniting in suit and contributing to expenses thereof. But if such transfer or charge be admitted to record within eight months after it is made, then such suit to be availing must be brought within four months after transfer or charge was admitted to record. Every such suit shall be deemed to be brought in behalf of plaintiff and all other creditors of such insolvent debtor, but the creditor instituting such suit or proceeding together with all creditors of such insolvent debtor, who shall come into suit and unite with plaintiff before final decree and agree to contribute to costs and expenses of suit, shall be entitled to have their claims first paid in full pro rata out of property so transferred or charged, in preference to any creditor of such debtor who shall before final decree decline or fail to so unite and agree to contribute to costs and expenses of suit, but not in preference to such creditor as may attempt to sustain preference given him by transfer or charge. Nothing in this section shall prevent making of preference as security for payment of purchase money or bona fide loan of money or other bona fide debt contracted at time transfer or charge made or as security for one who at time of transfer or charge becomes indorser or surety for payment of money then borrowed. Nothing in this section shall affect any transfer of bonds, notes, stocks, securities, or other evidences of debt in payment of or as collateral security for payment of bona fide debt or to secure any indorser or surety whether transfer made at time debt contracted or indorsement made or for the payment or security of pre-existing debt. Ibid., § 3100.

Where loan of goods or chattels is pretended to have been made to any person with whom, or those claiming under him, possession shall have remained five years without demand made and pursued by due process of law on part of pretended lender, or where any reservation or limitation is pretended to have been made of a use or property, by way of condition, reversion, remainder, or otherwise, in goods or chattels, the possession whereof shall have so remained in another as aforesaid, the absolute property shall be taken to be with the possession, and such loan, reservation or limitation, void as to creditors of, and purchasers from, person so remaining in possession, unless declared by will, deed or other writing, duly acknowledged. And, if any sale be made of goods and chattels, reserving title until same paid for, or otherwise, and possession be delivered to buyer, such reservation shall be void as to creditors of, and purchasers without notice from, such buyer, unless notice of reservation recorded in office of clerk of county court of county where property is, or in case goods and chattels consist of engines, cars or other rolling stock or equipment to be used in or about operation of any railroad, unless notice be recorded in office of secretary of state, who in such case shall record same in book to be kept for the purpose, and be entitled to fee of five dollars for so doing. Ibid., § 3101.

Every deed of gift, or deed of trust or mortgage, conveying real estate or goods and chattels, shall be void as to creditors and subsequent purchasers for valuable consideration without notice, until and except from time that it is duly admitted to record in county wherein property embraced in deed may be. Ibid., § 3103.

Notwithstanding such writing admitted to record in one county wherein are real estate, or goods or chattels, it shall nevertheless be void as to such creditors and purchasers in respect to other real estate or goods or chattels without the same, until duly admitted to record in county wherein such other real estate, or goods or chattels, may be. Ibid., § 3104.

If goods or chattels mentioned in such writing, be removed from county in which it is admitted to record, said writing shall, within three months after removal, be admitted to record in county to which property is so removed; otherwise same, for so long as it is not admitted to record in last mentioned county, shall, as to property so removed, be void as to such creditors or purchasers. But such writing shall not be so void in respect to interests of married woman, infant or insane person, if before end of three months after disability shall cease, writing be recorded in county to which property removed. Ibid., § 3105.

Where two or more writings embracing same property are admitted to record in same county on same day, if previous sections do not provide for the case, that which was first admitted to record shall have priority in respect to property in such county. Ibid., § 3106.

Words "creditors" and "purchasers" where used in any previous section of this chapter (of Acts valid between the Parties, but void as to Creditors and Purchasers, chap. 74, §§ 3099-3108), shall not be restricted to protection of creditors of, and purchasers from, the grantor, but shall extend to and embrace all creditors and purchasers who, but for the deed or writing, would have had title to the property conveyed, or a right to subject it to their debts. Ibid., § 3107.

Purchaser shall not, under this chapter, be affected by record of a deed or contract made by person under whom his title is not derived, nor by record of a deed or contract made by any person before the date of a deed or contract made to or with such person, which is duly admitted to record, and from which the title of such person is derived. Ibid., § 3108.

WISCONSIN.

Every sale made by vendor of goods and chattels in his possession or under his control, and every assignment of goods and chattels, unless accompanied by immediate delivery and followed by continued change of possession of things sold or assigned, shall be presumed to be fraudulent and void against creditors of vendor or creditors of person making assignment or subsequent purchasers in good faith; and shall be conclusive evidence of fraud unless it be made to appear on part of persons claiming under such sale or assignment that same made in good faith and without intent to defraud such creditors or purchasers. Statutes of 1898, § 2310.

Nothing in two last sections applies to contracts of bottomry or respondentia, nor to assignments or hypothecations of vessels or goods at sea or in foreign ports, or without state; but assignee or mortgagee shall take possession of ship, vessels or goods as soon as may be after arrival thereof within state. Ibid., § 2312.

No mortgage of personal property is valid against any other person than parties thereto unless possession delivered to and retained by mortgagee or unless mortgage or copy is filed as provided in next section, except when otherwise directed in these statutes. Nor shall chattel mortgage of personal property which is by law exempt from seizure and sale upon execution be valid unless signed by wife of person making mortgage, if he be a married man and his wife at time be member of his family, and unless signature of such wife be witnessed by two witnesses. Ibid., § 2313.

Mortgage of personal property or copy may be filed in office of clerk of town, city or village where mortgagor resides, or in case he is non-resident of state then in office of clerk of town, city or village where property may be at time of execution of mortgage; such clerk shall indorse on mortgage or copy time of receiving same and keep same in his office for inspection of all persons; such clerk shall also make the entries as required in subdivision 10 in section 832. Mortgages so filed shall be as valid and binding upon all persons as if property mortgaged had been, immediately upon execution of mortgage, delivered to, and possession thereof retained by, mortgagee. Ibid., § 2314.

Such mortgage shall cease to be valid, against creditors of person making same or subsequent purchasers or mortgagees in good faith, after expiration of two years from filing of same or copy unless within thirty days next preceding expiration of two years mortgagee, agent or attorney shall make and annex to instrument or copy on file an affidavit setting forth interest which mortgagee has by virtue of such mortgage in property therein mentioned, upon which affidavit the clerk shall indorse time when same was filed. Ibid., § 2315.

Effect of such affidavit shall not continue beyond two years from time when mortgage would otherwise cease to be valid against subsequent purchasers or mortgagees in good faith; but within thirty days next preceding time when mortgage would otherwise cease to be valid as aforesaid a similar affidavit may be filed and annexed as provided in preceding section and with like effect. Ibid., § 2316.

No sale of personal property taken by virtue of chattel mortgage, lease or other instrument intended as security, except by consent of mortgagor, legal representatives or assigns, shall be made before expiration of five days from time when same actually taken, nor shall property during such time be removed from county where situated when taken; and during such period property shall be subject to redemption by payment of mortgage debt and actual and necessary costs and expenses of taking and keeping it incurred at time of making redemption. Person aggrieved by violation of any provision of this section may recover of person who violated same, in addition to his actual damages, twenty-five dollars as liquidated damages. If any such property is sold at private sale, without public notice, or is sold within period herein limited, without such consent, mortgage debt shall be deemed paid and mortgage securing same be deemed canceled. Nothing in this section shall be construed to limit effect of section 2319b. Ibid., § 2316a.

Mortgagor of stock of goods or stock in trade of which he is in possession and from which he is permitted to make sales and apply proceeds upon indebtedness existing between him and mortgagee shall file statement in writing of aggregate amount of sales made therefrom, amount applied on mortgage debt and total valuation of stock added, every sixty days from date of mortgage with town, city or village clerk in whose office mortgage filed. Mortgage shall cover and be valid lien upon property added to such stock after its execution for amount of indebtedness remaining unpaid thereon. Such statement shall be verified by mortgagor, agent or attorney as being true and correct statement of all sales made from stock of mortgaged goods, value of additions made to original stock since date of mortgage or date of last verified statement so filed and amount paid on mortgage debt since execution of mortgage or filing of such statement. If mortgagor shall fail to file statement herein required within time prescribed the mortgage, as between the parties thereto, shall be immediately due and payable, and at expiration of fifteen days from time fixed for filing of such statement shall cease to be lien upon such stock of goods, or stock in trade except as between mortgagor and mortgagee. Ibid., § 2316b.

Whenever property covered by chattel mortgage, or instrument intended to have effect of chattel mortgage, shall be taken and sold under and by virtue of such mortgage pursuant to power of sale contained therein, owner of mortgage, or person acting as agent of owner and conducting sale, shall, within ten days after sale of any property covered by mortgage, make and file affidavit setting forth date of sale, description of property sold, sum then claimed to be due on indebtedness secured by mortgage, amount realized on sale, statement in detail of expenses of sale including cost of taking and keeping property pending sale. Copy of notice of sale if any shall be attached to affidavit and be deemed part thereof. Such affidavit shall be filed in office of town, city or village clerk where mortgage under which sale is had was filed, or, if mortgage not so filed, then in office of clerk of town, city or village where sale held.

Person violating the provisions of this act shall be liable to person personally liable for indebtedness, in which case such person shall be entitled to recover in addition to his actual damages, sum of twenty-five dollars liquidated damages. In case of failure of owner of mortgage, or his agent conducting sale, to comply with the provisions of this act within time herein limited, debt secured by such mortgage shall be deemed fully satisfied and mortgage cancelled. Statutes Supplement 1899-1906, p. 1091, § 2316c [chap. 122, Laws of 1903].

No contract for sale of personal property, by whose terms title is to remain in vendor and possession thereof in vendee until purchase price paid or other conditions of sale complied with is valid against any other person than parties thereto and those having notice thereof unless contract is in writing, subscribed by parties, and same or copy is filed in office of clerk of town, city or village where vendee resides, or, if he shall not be resident of state, then in office of clerk of town, city or village where property may be at time of making contract, and such clerk shall file, keep and index same in like manner as mortgages of personal property and receive like compensation therefor; but effect of such filing shall not extend for more than one year after time fixed for payment of contract price or for performance of other conditions of sale. Statutes of 1898, § 2317.

When chattel mortgage paid and other conditions fully performed, mortgagee, representative or assignee shall, on demand, give mortgagor certificate to that effect; and mortgagor shall, within ten days after receiving certificate, cause same to be filed in office where mortgage to which certificate relates was filed, and remove mortgage from office. Town, village and city clerks shall receive and file certificate and may charge ten cents for so doing. Ibid., § 2317a.

Copy of mortgage or other instrument or of copy, so filed, including affidavits annexed thereto in pursuance of this chapter [of fraudulent Coneyances and Contracts relating to Personalty, chap. 105, §§ 2306-2319b], certified by clerk in whose office same is filed, shall be received in evidence, not only of fact that such instrument, copy or affidavit was received and led according to indorsement of clerk thereon and of no other fact. Ibid., 2318.

Whenever it appears upon trial of any action against sheriff, coroner, constable or other officer for recovery of possession of personal property or value thereof that defendant obtained possession of such property by virtue of execution or writ of attachment against property of person not party to action, from whom plaintiff claims to have derived his right by a mortgage, and that such property was taken by officer from possession of the defendant at such execution or attachment or from premises occupied or controlled by him and it shall be alleged in answer of defendant that mortgage was fraudulent as to creditors of mortgagor, then burden of proof shall be upon plaintiff to show that mortgage was given in good faith and to secure an actual indebtedness and the amount thereof. Ibid., § 2319.

No contract for future purchase, sale, transfer or delivery of personal property shall be void when either party intends, in good faith, to perform same; and intention on part of either not to perform shall not invalidate it if other party shall in good faith intend to perform same. No such contract shall be void because vendor was not, at time it was made, owner of property contracted to be sold; and in any action by either party for enforcement of its terms or to recover damages for breach it shall be incompetent to show in defense, by any extrinsic evidence, that contract had any other intent or meaning than it expresses; and it and all collateral contracts, agreements or securities growing out thereof or of which they may have formed the consideration in whole or in part shall be legal and valid; but nothing herein shall be construed to exclude evidence of fraud in procuring of any such contract as is first mentioned herein, or of any collateral contract, agreement or security growing out thereof, or that any such contract was not entered into upon sufficient consideration, or is not supported thereby, or that both parties intended to make wagering contract. Ibid., § 2319a.

Contracts for sale of furniture or other household effects, made on condition that title shall not pass until price paid in full, whether in form of lease or otherwise, shall be in writing and copy thereof shall be furnished vendee by vendor at time of sale; and all payments made by or in behalf of vendee and all charges, whether in nature of interest or otherwise, as they accrue shall be indorsed by vendor upon copy if vendee so requests. If vendor fails to comply with any of these provisions through negligence his rights under contract shall be suspended while default continues; and if he refuses or wilfully or fraudulently fails to comply therewith he shall be deemed to have waived conditions of sale. Vendor, upon taking possession of such furniture or effects for non-compliance with terms of contract, shall furnish vendee or other person in charge thereof itemized statement of account, showing amount due, and vendee may, at any time within fifteen days after such taking, redeem property so taken by paying to vendor full amount of price then unpaid, with interest and all lawful charges and expenses. Said fifteen days shall not begin to run until statement is furnished, in case vendee or other person in charge can be found by vendor by exercise of reasonable care and diligence. Ibid., § 2319b.

When goods and chattels are pledged or mortgaged for payment of money or performance of any contract or agreement the right and interest in such goods of person making pledge or mortgage may be sold on execution against him, and purchaser shall acquire all his right and interest, and be entitled to possession of goods and chattels on complying with terms and conditions of pledge or mortgage; but officer shall not take such property out of possession of pledgee or mortgagee, when judgment debtor not entitled to possession thereof unless judgment creditor or purchaser shall have first complied with terms and conditions of pledge or mortgage. Ibid., § 2988.

Person having conveyed personal property by mortgage, who shall, during existence of lien or title created by such mortgage, sell, transfer, conceal, remove or carry or drive away said property or any part thereof, or cause same to be done, without consent of mortgagee or assigns and with intent to defraud, shall be punished by imprisonment or fine. Ibid., § 4467.

All mortgages, liens, bills of sale or other written instruments in any way affecting ownership of any marked logs in any lumber district which shall specify marks placed upon said logs and when they were cut shall be recorded in office of lumber inspector in which said marks are recorded; and no such conveyance, lien, mortgage or transfer shall be valid, except as to parties thereto, until same is so recorded or until same is filed with some deputy lumber inspector, who shall immediately forward instrument to inspector of proper district. Such filing and recording of all such instruments and papers shall have same effect as recording of deeds and mortgages in office of register of deeds. Ibid., § 1739.

In all cases where railroad equipment and rolling stock have been or are sold to any person, firm or corporation to be paid for in whole or in part in installments, or are leased, rented, hired or delivered on condition that same may be used by person, firm or corporation purchasing, leasing, renting, hiring or receiving same, and that title shall remain in vendor, lessor, renter, hirer or deliverer of same until agreed upon price of or rent for property fully paid, such condition in regard to the title so remaining shall be valid as to subsequent purchasers in good faith and creditors, in case term during which the installments or rent are to be paid shall not exceed ten years and such contract shall be in writing and be recorded in office of secretary of state, and on each locomotive or car sold or leased the name of vendor or lessor or assignee of vendor or lessor shall be marked in conspicuous place followed by word "owner" or "lessor," as case may be. Ibid., § 1839a.

WYOMING.

Any person, firm or corporation may mortgage by any proper bond, conveyance or instrument intended to operate as mortgage, executed in accordance with and subject to provisions of this title (entitled Contracts relative to Real and Personal Property, Title I of Division Two, §§ 2728-2842), possessory claims to public lands, all buildings, fences, ranches and improvements thereon; all quartz, coal and other mining claims and all such personal property as shall be fixed in its structure to the soil; all neat cattle or herds of cattle, horses, mules, sheep or other live stock; and any and all other personal property owned, occupied or in possession of such mortgagor at time of making bond, conveyance or instrument intended to operate as mortgage; and also all personal property of like kind and character as that described in such mortgage, bond, conveyance or instrument, intended to operate as mortgage, thereafter to be acquired, owned, occupied or possessed by such mortgagor; and this section shall apply to all mortgages, bonds, conveyances and instruments intended to operate as mortgages, heretofore as well as hereafter made, executed and recorded as provided in this chapter (entitled Chattel Mortgages, chap. 6, §§ 2805-2828.) Revised Statutes of 1899, § 2805.

In mortgage, bond, conveyance or instrument intended to operate as mortgage upon neat cattle, horses, mules, sheep or other live stock, or upon herd of neat cattle, horses, mules, sheep or other live stock in state, given, made, executed and recorded as required by provisions of this title, by person, firm or corporation, it shall be sufficient description of such cattle, horses, mules, sheep and other live stock to set forth therein all such brands and marks of same as will convey to mortgagee in all particulars power and ability to identify, prove and recover any and all of such stock that was possessed by mortgagor at time of making mortgage; together with ranches or range upon which such cattle, horses, mules, sheep or other live stock shall be running or ranging; and such mortgage, bond, conveyance or instrument intended to operate as mortgage shall convey and cover all cattle, horses, mules, sheep or other live stock which are then marked or branded with said mark and brand belonging to mortgagor, and which thereafter may be acquired by him, and be marked and branded with said mark and brand, and also such mark and brand; and also all the increase of such cattle, horses, mules, sheep or other live stock, and herds of cattle, horses, mules, sheep or other live stock. Ibid., § 2806.

Mortgage, bond, conveyance or other instrument intended to operate as mortgage of goods, chattels or personal property, shall be executed and acknowledged in same manner as provided by law for execution of conveyances of real estate; but no instrument shall operate as chattel mortgage unless it shall state distinctly upon its face that it is intended for security, and shall also state amount for which it is security. Ibid., § 2807.

Each member of co-partnership must execute and acknowledge mortgage, bond, conveyance or other instrument intended to operate as chattel mortgage for and on behalf of co-partnership; but chattel mortgage may be given to co-partnership in its co-partnership name without enumerating the several members. Ibid., § 2808.

Chattel mortgage shall extend to and include day on which last instalment or portion of indebtedness thereby secured shall mature. Ibid., § 2809.

Chattel mortgage to co-partnership shall only be released and discharged or assigned, transferred and set over, either by endorsement upon original instrument or by instrument executed and acknowledged by each member. Ibid., § 2810.

Mortgage, bond, conveyance or other instrument intended to operate as mortgage of goods, chattels or personal property, not accompanied by immediate delivery and followed by continued change of possession is void against creditors of mortgagor and subsequent mortgagees or purchasers in good faith, unless filed as hereinafter provided. Ibid., § 2811.

Mortgage, bond, conveyance or other instrument intended to operate as chattel mortgage shall be filed in office of county clerk where property is, and shall be indexed by clerk of county in book called "Chattel mortgage index"; upon the filing, county clerk shall enter in index name of mortgagor, name of mortgagee, in alphabetical order, date of instrument, day and hour of filing, amount for which it is security and date of maturity of mortgage, together with brief description or reference to mortgaged property, and upon release, discharge or assignment, he shall enter in suitable columns opposite original entry of filing, date of assignment, date of filing of assignment, and assignee thereof, or in case of release of said instrument, date of discharge, satisfaction or release, and by whom released, satisfied or discharged; the release, satisfaction, discharge or assignment of chattel mortgage may be endorsed upon original instrument on file in clerk's office, or by instrument of release and discharge or assignment executed and acknowledged in manner provided for a chattel mortgage, which shall be filed with, and by the clerk be attached to original instrument in his office. Ibid., § 2812.

Instead of filing original instrument, a copy, certified by clerk of county where instrument is to be filed for record, which certificate shall be endorsed upon said copy by clerk of said county and under his seal, may be filed in place of original, and when so certified and filed, shall have same force and effect as original, and either original or certified copy may be offered and shall be received in evidence in all courts of state with like and equal effect. Ibid., § 2813.

In the cases hereinafter provided for the mortgaging of cattle, horses, mules, sheep or other live stock, it shall be sufficient, if mortgage, bond, conveyance or other instrument intended to operate as chattel mortgage is filed in county where range upon which the same are or shall be principally running or ranging, is located, the location of which range shall be described with reasonable certainty in mortgage. Ibid., § 2814.

In case of removal of mortgaged property during term of validity of mortgage, bond, conveyance or other instrument intended to operate as chattel mortgage to other county by consent of mortgagee, mortgage, bond, conveyance or other instrument intended to operate as chattel mortgage or copy shall be certified by clerk of county where instrument filed, and shall thereupon be immediately filed in county to which property removed; but this section shall not apply to live stock, horses or mules temporarily used, driven or grazed in county other than that in which the herd may belong or is permanently located. Ibid., § 2815.

Mortgage, bond, instrument or conveyance intended to operate as chattel mortgage shall take effect and be in force from and after time of delivering same to clerk for filing and not before, as to all creditors and subsequent purchasers and mortgagees in good faith for valuable consideration and without notice, and shall be void as to any such subsequent purchaser and mortgagee for valuable consideration in good faith and without notice, whose mortgage, bond, conveyance or other instrument intended to operate as chattel mortgage shall be first filed; but shall be valid between the parties, anything contained in this chapter to contrary notwithstanding, until debt thereby secured is fully paid. Ibid., § 2816.

Mortgage, bond, conveyance, or other instrument intended to operate as mortgage, filed in pursuance of this chapter, shall remain in full force and validity for term for which given, and for sixty days thereafter, and where no specific time stated therein, the said terms shall be deemed and held to be given for one year from date of its execution; but the same shall cease to be valid against creditors of person or persons making same and subsequent purchasers or mortgagees in good faith, after expiration of sixty days from and after end of term for which given, unless before expiration of the said sixty days notice of foreclosure is given as required by law, or mortgagee, heirs, legatees, executors, administrators or assigns, or other legal representatives, or agent or attorney of mortgagee or his assigns shall make affidavit exhibiting interest of owner and holder at time of making affidavit, in such mortgage, bond, conveyance or other instrument intended to operate as mortgage, and if such mortgage is to secure payment of money, amount yet due and unpaid, and affidavit shall be filed in all respects as original mortgage is by this chapter required to be filed, and original mortgage shall then continue to be in full force for period of one year after expiration of term for which originally filed, and like affidavit may be filed within sixty days after expiration of said period of one year last aforesaid, and said original mortgage shall then continue to be in full force for period of one more year, and in addition to first year's renewal thereof, and under same conditions and within same limitations a like affidavit may be filed to renew said mortgage for each succeeding year thereafter until debt secured thereby is fully paid. And it shall be duty of county clerk in whose office original mortgage, bond, conveyance or other instrument intended to operate as mortgage was originally filed, upon filing of affidavit hereinbefore required, to note upon original instrument the filing of such affidavit and the subsequent affidavits of renewal, together with reference on index, opposite original record of instrument. Ibid., § 2817.

Parties to mortgage, bond, conveyance, or other instrument intended to operate as mortgage of personal property as provided by law, may insert therein permission to mortgagor to use, handle, operate, herd, manage and control property mortgaged, and to market, sell and dispose of such portions thereof, as may be necessary in course of business, or to preserve and care for same, and replace such property, or parts sold, with other property of like kind or character, which property replaced may be purchased, either with net proceeds of mortgaged property sold, or otherwise, all of which shall be subject to operation and effect of such mortgage, bond, conveyance, or instrument. But unless permission expressly given otherwise in mortgage, mortgagor shall pay over to mortgagee all moneys received from sale of any part of mortgaged property. Ibid., § 2818.

Mortgage, bond, conveyance or instrument intended to operate as mortgage, containing and giving to mortgagee, or other person a power to sell property described therein upon default in condition of such mortgage, bond, conveyance or instrument, may be foreclosed in cases and manner herein-after specified. Ibid., § 2819.

To enable any person to foreclose such mortgage, bond, conveyance or instrument intended to operate as mortgage, it is requisite, first, that default in a condition of same shall have occurred by which power to sell becomes operative; second, that no suit or proceeding has been instituted at law to recover debt or obligation then remaining secured by same, or any part thereof, or, if instituted, has been discontinued, or that execution on judgment thereon has been returned unsatisfied in whole or part; and, third, that mortgage or conveyance containing power of sale has been duly recorded as required by this chapter. Ibid., § 2820.

Notice that mortgage or conveyance will be foreclosed by sale of mortgaged property, or part, shall be given by advertisement published in weekly newspaper published in county in which sale shall take place, for three times in three consecutive issues of such newspaper; or in case no weekly newspaper published in said county, by posting up notices in at least three public places in county, one of which shall be at place designated in said notices for the sale to take place, and such notices shall be posted at least three weeks prior to day of sale. Ibid., § 2821.

Each such notice shall specify date of mortgage, bond, conveyance or instrument intended to operate as mortgage, and date when and place where filed; names of mortgagee and mortgagor and assignee of mortgage, if any; amount claimed to be due thereon at time of first publication or posting of notice; description of mortgaged property conforming substantially with that contained in mortgage; and time and place of sale. Ibid., § 2822.

Sale may be postponed, from time to time, by inserting notice of postponement as soon as practicable, in newspaper in which original notice published, and continuing publication until time to which sale postponed; or in case no newspaper is published in county in which sale is to be had, by posting notices of adjournment in same manner and at same places as original notices were posted, as required by this chapter. Ibid., § 2823.

Sale shall be at public auction, in day time, between hours of ten a. m. and four p. m., in county where mortgage first filed, or in any county to which property removed by consent of parties and in which mortgage filed. Ibid., § 2824.

When property, goods or chattels so to be sold, consists of neat cattle, horses, mules, sheep or other live stock, or of any herd or part of any herd of neat cattle, horses, mules, sheep or other live stock, or of any brand or mark by which the same shall be known, designated, marked or branded; or of possessory claims to public lands, and buildings, fences, ranches and improvements thereon; or of any quartz, coal or other mining claims; such sale may take place at court house in county where such mortgage, bond, conveyance or instrument intended to operate as mortgage was first filed; or in case property to be sold has been removed to another county, by consent of the parties as hereinbefore provided, then sale may be had and take place at court house in county to which property has been removed and where such mortgage, bond, conveyance or instrument has been filed as hereinbefore required. In all other cases sale shall take place in view of said property. Ibid., § 2825.

Mortgagee, assignees, and his or their legal representatives, may fairly and in good faith purchase any of mortgaged property offered at such sale. Ibid., § 2826.

CHAPTER XIX.

CLERKS AND CRIERS.

THE power and duties of clerks of court are generally prescribed by statute. If a clerk has by law a deputy, acts which are in their nature ministerial, such as signing and sealing papers, may be done in the clerk's name by the deputy.

The statute also requires clerks of counties and of courts of record, and registers of deeds, to keep open office every day (except Sundays and holidays, and half holidays), and fixes the hours during which they shall remain open.

The following forms are those which are used in open court by clerks or criers. Forms of judgments and other records in actions and special proceedings will be found in the volumes of forms in Practice and Pleading; and forms of certificates and other acts of various kinds will be found under their appropriate heads in this volume, such as chapters on ACKNOWLEDGMENT AND PROOF OF DEEDS; OATHS; SEARCHES, etc.

CHAPTER XX.

CONTRACTS.

THE law requires certain contracts to be reduced to writing and signed, in order to give them binding force. The object of this is to prevent misunderstanding, and preclude attempts to prove important contracts by false or loose verbal testimony in cases where the minds of the parties never actually met in agreement. The statute regulating this subject is usually called the Statute of Frauds. It is to the following effect:

In the following cases, every agreement is void, unless such agreement, or some note or memorandum thereof, expressing the consideration,¹ be in writing, and subscribed by the party to be charged therewith:

1. Every agreement that by its terms is not to be performed within one year from the making thereof;
2. Every special promise to answer for the debt, default, or miscarriage of another person;

¹ The requirement that the consideration be expressed has been repealed in New York. See for present provisions in New York, Personal Property Law, §§ 30, 31. Laws of 1863, p. 802, c. 464.

3. Every agreement, promise, or undertaking, made upon consideration of marriage, except mutual promises to marry.

Every contract for the sale of any goods, chattels, or things, for the price of fifty dollars, or more, is void, unless:

1. A note or memorandum of such contract be made in writing, and be subscribed by the parties to be charged thereby; or,

2. Unless the buyer shall accept and receive part of such goods, or the evidences, or some of them, of such things in action; or,

3. Unless the buyer shall, at the time, pay some part of the purchase money.

No interest in lands, other than leases for a term not exceeding one year, nor any trust or power relating to lands, can be created, granted, assigned, surrendered, or declared, unless by act or operation of law, or by a deed or conveyance, in writing, subscribed by the party creating, granting, assigning, surrendering, or declaring the same, or by his lawful agent, thereunto authorized by writing; but this does not affect wills, implied trusts, etc.

Another rule of law having the same object as one of its reasons is, that where parties have reduced their intentions to writing, the terms of the written instrument, if clear and unambiguous in themselves, are deemed to be the best evidence of what is intended. And the writing cannot be contradicted or varied by parol evidence aiming to show that something different was designed.

A written contract executed by an agent on behalf of a known principal, ought to purport on its face to be the contract of the principal, and to be signed with the name of the principal, and not with that of the agent alone. A person may become bound by any mark or designation he sees fit to adopt, provided he signs it as a substitute for his name, and intends to be bound by it.

No technical words, or order of words, are requisite to make a condition precedent or subsequent, but it depends on the good sense and plain understanding of the contract, and the acts to be performed. The same words may operate as either a condition precedent or subsequent, according to the nature of the transaction, and as evincing the intention of the parties. The precedency depends not upon the order of the clauses, but upon the order of time in which the intent of the transaction requires their performance. It is best, therefore, to have the conditions distinctly expressed, that there may be no doubt of the intention in this respect.

In the case of formal and important contracts, it is usual to affix seals and to have the execution attested by witnesses. The effect of the latter formality is to require the party afterwards seeking to prove the contract in court, to produce the same witness or account for his absence. If the instrument is not attested by a witness, other proof may be resorted to, such as the testimony of the party, handwriting, etc.

As to the necessity of internal revenue stamps upon contracts, see chapter on STAMPS.

678. Railroad Construction Contract.

THIS AGREEMENT, made this day of , 19 , by and between C. D., party of the first part, and A. & B. Railroad Company, hereinafter called the company, the party of the second part, WITNESSETH:

That for and in consideration of the covenants and payments hereinafter mentioned to be made and performed by the said party of the second part, the said party of the first part doth hereby covenant and agree to furnish all the labor and materials, and perform the work necessary to complete in the most substantial and workmanlike manner, to the satisfaction and acceptance of the chief engineer of the said party of the second part, the grading, masonry, bridging, and railway superstructure of the said railroad, from its present terminus, at F., to G., a distance of about thirty miles; the said work to be finished as described in the approved plans and following specifications, and agreeably to the directions received from the said chief engineer, on or before the day of , .

SPECIFICATIONS.

The entire work to be constructed and finished in every part in a good, substantial, and workmanlike manner, according to the accompanying drawings and specifications, to the full extent and meaning of the same, and to the entire satisfaction, approval, and acceptance of the chief engineer of the said party of the second part, and under the supervision and direction of such agent or agents as he may appoint.

Additional detail and working drawings will be furnished, in exemplification of the foregoing, from time to time as may be required; and it is to be distinctly understood, that all such additional drawings are to be considered as virtually embraced within and forming part of these specifications. Figured dimensions shall in all cases be taken in preference to scale measurements.

The said chief engineer shall have the right to make any alterations, additions, or omissions of work or materials herein specified, or shown on the drawings, during the progress of the structure, that he may find to be necessary; and the same shall be acceded to by the said party of the first part, and carried into effect, without in any way violating or vitiating the contract.

If any additions, alterations, or omissions are made in the structure during the progress of the work, the value of such shall be decided by the said chief engineer, who shall make an equitable allowance for the same, and shall add the amount of said allowance to the contract price of the work, if the cost has been increased; or shall deduct the amount, if the cost has been lessened, as he, the said chief engineer, may deem just and equitable. The said party of the second part will pay for no extra work or materials, unless ordered in writing by it through its chief engineer.

Any disagreement or difference between the parties to this contract, upon any matter or thing arising from these specifications, or the drawings to which they refer, or to the contract for the work, or the kind or quality of the work required thereby, shall be decided by the said chief engineer of the party of the second part, whose decision and interpretation of the same shall be considered final, conclusive, and binding upon both parties.

All materials and labor used throughout the structure must be the best of their several kinds, and subject to the approval of the chief engineer.

The said chief engineer shall have full power at any time during the progress of the work to reject any materials that he may deem unsuitable for the purpose for which they were intended or which are not in strict conformity with the spirit of these specifications. He shall also have the power to cause any inferior or unsafe work to be taken down and altered at the cost of the said party of the first part. If any materials brought on for the use of the work shall be rejected or condemned by the said engineer as unsuitable, the contractor shall, if required, remove said materials entirely away from the line of the work, so as to effectually guard against their introduction into the same.

Particular care must be taken of all the finished work, which work must be covered up and thoroughly protected from injury or defacement during the erection and completion of the structure.

All refuse material and rubbish that may accumulate during the progress of the work shall be removed from time to time, as may be directed by the chief engineer; and on the completion of the work, the structure, grounds, and streets must be thoroughly cleaned up and the surplus material and rubbish removed.

SPECIFICATIONS FOR GRADING AND MASONRY.

Grading.—1. Under this head will be included all the clearing and grubbing, all excavation and embankment required for the formation of the roadbed ready for the track, cutting of ditches or drains about or contiguous to the road, widening or changing channels for streams or water-courses, the foundations of culverts or walls, reconstruction of millraces, highways, and roads where they are interfered with or destroyed in the formation of the roadway. Also all masonry, foundation pits, planking, piling, pumping, bailing, and all the excavation and embankment in any way connected with, or incident to the construction of said railroad.

2. The road will be graded for single track unless otherwise directed by the chief engineer, and in conformity with such directions as he may give concerning breadths, depths, and slopes of excavation and embankment.

Clearing.—3. The ground to be occupied by the excavations and embankments, together with a space of twelve feet beyond the slope stakes on each side, or ten feet beyond the berme ditch, where one is required, shall be cleared of all trees, brush, and other perishable matter. Where the filling does not exceed two and a-half feet, the trees, stumps, and saplings must be grubbed; but under all other portions of the embankment it will be sufficient that they be cut close to the earth. The clearing will be of such width as directed, and includes the cutting of all small trees and bushes close to the ground, and their piling and burning, if safe to do so without danger to adjacent timber lands or property; large trees must be cut so that their stump is within three feet of the ground, and the top of this stump must be at least three feet under top of embankment. Where fill is less than three feet they must be cut close to the ground. All logs fit for sawing or prop-timber to be collected and piled. Clearing to be paid for per acre or fraction thereof, to the extent directed by the engineer, by stakes, or marks on the ground or timber.

Grubbing.—4. All stumps and roots, muck, and perishable matter shall be grubbed out and removed from within the slope stakes; also near entrance of cuts where the filling is less than two feet; also throughout all the excavation and such other places as the chief engineer may direct. Grubbing to be paid for per acre or fraction thereof, within above-described limits.

EXCAVATION.

Excavation.—5. All excavation shall be measured in the excavations, and paid for per cubic yard, classified as follows, viz.: Solid rock, loose rock, hard-pan, earth, borrowed embankment, and foundation excavation in water.

Solid rock.—6. Solid rock shall include all rock found in ledges and detached masses exceeding one-half cubic yards each, which, in the judgment of said chief engineer, may be best removed by blasting.

Loose rock.—7. Loose rock shall include all kinds of shale, slate, ochre, and other rock, which, in the judgment of said chief engineer, can be removed with pick and bar, and is soft and loose enough to be removed without blasting, although blasting may be resorted to in order to facilitate its working; also detached stones of less than one-half cubic yard and more than one cubic foot.

Hard-pan.—8. Hard-pan shall consist of tough indurated clay or cemented gravel, which requires blasting or other equally expensive means for its removal, or which cannot be plowed with less than four horses and a railroad plow, or which requires two pickers to a shoveler; the said chief engineer to be the judge of these conditions.

Earth.—9. Earth shall include all materials of an earthy nature, of whatever name or character, not unquestionably rock, or hard-pan as above defined.

Drains, ditches, etc.—10. Side drains, ditches, and channels for streams, shall be cut as directed by the chief engineer, the nearest side of which shall not be within fifteen feet of the slope stakes of the excavation or embankment; foundation pits shall be sunk of such dimensions and the material deposited as the engineer directs, and such excavation is to be paid for as part of the ordinary excavation of the section.

Borrow pits excavations.— 11. Generally when the excavations are insufficient to make the embankments the deficiency may be supplied by widening the excavations for double track, if so directed by the chief engineer, or otherwise, may be borrowed from without the line of the road.

Foundation excavations in water.— 12. Foundation excavation in water shall apply only where (through no fault or delay of the contractor) constant unavoidable pumping or bailing is a necessity, and draining by a ditch is too expensive or impossible; the material to be classified same as excavation, and the price to include the necessary benching and dressing of the rock for base of masonry. Where delay occurs in finishing a foundation promptly during dry weather it will be at the contractor's risk as regards excavation in case water is met with by his neglect.

Overhaul.— 13. The embankment shall be formed in layers of such depth, and the materials disposed and distributed in such manner, as the chief engineer may direct, with the required allowance for settling; and in the case where grading is being done for additional tracks, the surface of the old road-bed embankment shall be stepped off to prevent slipping. Material necessarily wasted from the cuttings shall be used in widening the embankments, or be deposited in the vicinity of the road, according to the directions of the chief engineer. Material taken from excavations in their several classes shall be deposited in the adjacent embankments (unless otherwise directed by the chief engineer). The price for removing and depositing in the embankment shall be included in the price paid for excavation, provided such average haul does not exceed 500 feet; beyond that distance one cent per cubic yard per 100 feet will be allowed and paid for such extra haul for the first 500 feet of overhaul; beyond that one-half ($\frac{1}{2}$) cent per cubic yard for 100 feet shall be allowed until the overhaul reaches twenty cents per cubic yard, after which no greater price shall be paid for overhaul unless it exceeds one mile or a long section of grading. In case there is a surplus of material in excavation it shall be disposed of either for second track or as directed by the chief engineer. The contractor, when desired by the chief engineer, shall deposit, on the side of the road, or at such convenient points as may be designated, any stone or rock that he may excavate; and if, in so doing, he should deposit material required for embankment, the additional cost, if any, of procuring other materials from without the road, will be allowed. All stone or rock excavated and deposited as above, and all materials taken from buildings or other structures on the property of the railroad company, together with all timber removed from the line of the road, will be considered as belonging to the said railroad company, and the contractors upon the respective sections will be responsible for its safe-keeping until removed by said railroad company, or until the work herein contracted for is finished.

Embankments.— 14. Embankments shall be made of such material and built of such slopes, and carried to such height above grade as the chief engineer may direct; stones and heavy material forming the slopes, and the finer material deposited in the center of the embankment. No perishable material will be allowed in embankments.

Embankments approaching masonry.— 15. Embankments about masonry of bridges and culverts shall be built at such times and in such manner as directed by the chief engineer; embankments forty feet high or more shall not be filled in the usual way within fifty feet of the masonry, but shall have water-tight material if convenient (preferably borrowed) wheeled over masonry and carefully rammed, to such width and height, or puddled if necessary, as the chief engineer may direct, and for this extra work a price fixed by the chief engineer covering the ramming or puddling shall be paid, or its cost allowed the contractor.

Material to save and to waste.—16. All material excavated by the contractor, which is considered desirable to save for other purposes, may, by direction of the chief engineer, be placed in any accessible place above grade, and diverted from the construction of embankments, but no other waste material, where there is an excess, shall approach within one rod of the slopes of the excavation, and must be so deposited as to throw all drainage away from the excavations for the railroad, unless otherwise directed in writing by the chief engineer.

Trestle work.—17. All trestle work shall be built by the contractor to such extent and in accordance with the plans furnished and as directed by the chief engineer. They shall include all wooden structures commonly used for abutments or piers and undercrossings, the timber to be sound and durable of its kind, and will be paid for per 1,000 feet B. M., worked in place; piles per lineal foot, after driving and capping, adding two feet thereto for necessary waste. (See specifications under head of "Foundations.") Iron work per pound worked in place, and these prices to cover the furnishing of all labor and materials necessary to construct and finish the trestle or other structure in place ready for the track.

Public roads.—18. Whenever the route of the railroad is traversed by public or private roads, commodious passing places must be kept open and in safe condition for use; and in passing through farms, the contractor must also keep up such temporary fences as may be necessary for the preservation of the crops, or pay for such destruction as is caused by a neglect of this provision.

MASONRY.

Masonry.—19. Masonry will be estimated and paid for by the cubic yard and is to cover the furnishing of all materials, scaffolding, centering, and all other expenses necessary to its completion, and will be classified as follows, viz.:

Classification.—20. First class masonry, second class masonry, third class masonry, fourth class masonry, brick masonry, rectangular culvert masonry, vertical wall masonry, slope wall masonry, concrete, stone paving, rip rap, Structures may contain any or all of the above-mentioned classes of masonry as directed by the engineer or shown by the plans. All classes of stone work must be laid with the beds parallel to stratification lines or quarry beds.

First class masonry.—21. First class masonry shall consist of rock-range work of the best quality, the face of the stone to be accurately squared, jointed and bedded, and laid in regular horizontal courses, not less than ten inches in thickness, nor exceeding twenty-eight inches in thickness, regularly decreasing from bottom to top of wall; the stretchers shall generally be at least three and one-half feet in length, and not less than sixteen inches bed for a ten-inch course, and not less than twenty-four inches bed for an eighteen-inch course, and not less than thirty-two inches bed for a twenty-eight inch course; the headers shall have on face at least as much width as is required for a bed for a stretcher, and at least four feet long, and keep this size in the heart of the wall, and be so arranged as to occupy one-fifth of the face of the wall, and be similarly disposed in the back of the wall. When the thickness of the wall will admit of their interlocking, they will be laid in that manner, but when the wall is too thick to admit of that arrangement of headers, they will be connected by a large backing stone laid over them connecting the two opposite headers; bond is not to be less than twelve inches throughout face, back and heart of wall. The stone for the heart of the wall will be of the same thickness as those for the face and back, bedded the same as the face stone, but not jointed, and must be well fitted to their places; any remaining interstices will be filled with small sound stones or chips. The face stones and backing to be set entirely in a good bed of cement mortar and mauled to place, the interstices may be laid dry; then every course is to be thoroughly grouted separately, and finished water-tight, except during winter, when each stone or spawl will be laid in a full bed of mortar and mauled to place at once, under such special stipulations and directions as are given concerning heating of water and sand, thawing and cleaning of stone and covering at night of work laid previous to 3 P. M. (no work allowed to be laid in winter after 3 P. M., unless temperature is above freezing point). The stones forming the points of piers which act as ice-breakers shall be neatly and smoothly dressed on their faces, and be fastened together with iron clamps and to the interior of the pier, if so desired by the chief engineer. The other face stones will, with the exception of the draft, be generally left with the face as they come from the quarry, unless the projections above the draft should exceed two inches, in which case they should be thoroughly scabbled down to that point. The abutments and piers, or such portions of them as the engineer may direct, shall be covered with a course of coping, not less than fourteen inches thick, and not less than three feet wide. Especial care to be taken in preparing beds for coping, under foot shoes of iron bridges, and the necessary dressing after laying for the bridge rests is to be well and finely dressed; all coping to be fastened together and to the lower courses with clamps of iron, without extra charge. Drafts one and a half inches wide on all corners and covers of masonry. This class of masonry to be generally used for piers in streams that are subject to ice flows.

Second class masonry.—22. Second class masonry will generally cover all such masonry as abutments of bridges, unless otherwise directed by the engineer. It will be range work, or in broken courses, as may best suit the stone that is used. Face stones to be accurately jointed and bedded, and no stone to be less than eight inches thick. The stretchers in the face to have beds of at least fifteen inches, and in no case less bed than rise, and to be not less than three feet long, measured in the face of the wall. The bond to be not less than ten inches throughout the face, back, or heart of wall. The headers shall not have less than sixteen inches length of face, and shall extend at least three and one-half feet into the wall. There shall be not less than one header to every six feet of face measured from center to center, and so arranged that a header in a superior course shall be placed between two headers in the course below. The backing stone shall be of large size, and have parallel beds, but the beds are not required to be dressed as in first class masonry. The backing stone shall be laid so as to break joint with one another, and when the thickness of the wall exceeds three and one-half feet, headers of the same dimensions as those in the face, and in equal number, will be placed in the back of the wall, the face and backing stone to be set full width of bed in cement mortar, the interstices to be laid dry, and each course thoroughly grouted separately and finished water-tight; but if laid in winter, as specified for first class masonry.

Third class masonry.—23. Third class masonry may be used for foundations of all classes of masonry below the neat work or for any work as directed by the chief engineer; it will be rubble work, laid with a good bed of mortar, in irregular courses, and will consist of stone, containing generally six or more cubic feet each, and not less than ten inches in thickness, so disposed as to make firm and compact work; no stone in the work shall contain less than three cubic feet, except for filling up the interstices between the large blocks in the heart of the wall, and shall be laid with bond of not less than ten inches throughout the face, back, and heart of wall. At least one-fifth of the face measurement shall be composed of headers, extending full size four feet into the wall, and from the back the same proportion, and of the same dimensions, so arranged that a header in the back shall be between two headers in the face. The corner stones shall be neatly hammer-dressed so as to have horizontal beds and vertical joints. Also drafts to be cut on all corners and copings of masonry.

Fourth class masonry.—24. Fourth class masonry will be dry rubble work, dressed by the spawling hammer to shape, and laid in irregular courses, or as may best suit the stone used. The stone used shall be of durable quality and of good size and shape, generally not less than seven inches thick and so disposed as to make strong, compact, and durable work. Corner stones shall have parallel beds, and be neatly dressed to shape, headers of good size, extending well through the wall in the proportion of about one-fifth of the face measurements, shall be required on both the front and back of wall, connecting them together by large backing stone in the next course if the wall is wide enough to admit of this being done. It will be used generally for retaining walls.

Arch culvert masonry.—25. Arch culvert masonry can be built of first, second or third class, or of all the three classes combined in one structure, at the discretion of the chief engineer, and as shown by plans; generally all arches under ten feet span will be built of third class masonry, except the arched ring and sheeting, which may be of second class masonry, in which the arch stones shall have a good bearing throughout the thickness of the arch or sheeting, and be well bonded and of full depth; no stone shall be less than five inches in thickness on the intrados of the arch; generally all arches over ten feet span and up to twenty feet span will be built of second and third class masonry combined, the ring and sheeting to be of full size and well dressed to radial lines; generally arches over twenty feet span will have sheeting and ring, parapet and coping of first class masonry, the balance will be of second or third class masonry. They will be coated on the back with one-half inch of cement mortar, mixed one to one, and allowed to set before clay puddle is placed over it. The plan of each structure will usually show the class of work desired for each part of the arch.

Brick masonry.—26. Brick masonry must be laid of all hard-burned brick of the best quality, well tempered and moulded to standard size. No bats, cracked, crooked, swelled or salmon bricks will be used or allowed. The brick shall be thoroughly saturated with water until each brick absorbs from one-half to three-fourths of a pound of water before being laid, and shall be laid in the best hydraulic cement mortar, with such thickness of joint and style of bond as prescribed by the engineer by plan; grout may be used instead of mortar for the filling of joints and for the keying of arches. Arches of brick must be coated on the back with a coating of strong and water-proof mortar one-half inch in thickness, covering the highest stone, and must be allowed to set hard before any puddling with clay is allowed over it.

Rectangular culverts.—27. Rectangular culvert masonry will be of good dry rubble masonry, neatly laid with square-shaped stones of a size and quality approved by the chief engineer. Five feet of the ends, also the end parapet walls and the covering stone, will be laid in good cement or lime mortar if so directed by the engineer. When they are directed by the chief engineer to be laid entirely in cement mortar, they will be classified as third class masonry, and will conform to specifications of that class, all covering stone to be not less than twelve inches thick, and must have a good solid bearing on the side wall of not less than fifteen inches; under embankments over twenty-five feet in height, the covering stone shall be fourteen inches thick or more, if so desired.

Vertical wall.—28. Vertical wall masonry will be second, third, or fourth class masonry, generally fourth class, except in special cases; it may also be either dry or mortar masonry, as the chief engineer directs.

Slope walls.—29. Slope walls will be dry masonry of such thickness and slope as directed by the chief engineer. The stones must reach entirely through the wall, and must be not less than three inches thick and eighteen inches long, laid with close joints, and as free as possible from spawls. The foundations must be prepared and laid as directed by the engineer.

Stone paving.—30. Stone paving for culverts and other water-courses will be made by setting stone from ten to fifteen inches, or more when so directed, in depth, on edge, with top slightly inclined down stream. It must always be so laid that it will be lowest in center of culverts or water-ways, dipping from the sides at the rate of one inch per foot. About every eight feet in the length of the paving, two stones should lap in the center at least one foot, and extend under the wall of box culverts eighteen inches. It can be laid either dry, or in special cases with strong cement mortar, as may be directed by the chief engineer.

Rip rap.—31. When required by the engineer, the contractor shall protect the face of embankments or the foot of slopes from the action of water, by a facing of rip rap stone, or of brush and stones, or by a slope or retaining wall, as may be directed. The rip rap, when used, to be laid by hand by competent workmen, and to be of such thickness and slope and of such ordinary stone as the engineer may direct; brush to be laid with butts outward in the stream and slightly inclining down stream with the current.

Foundations.—32. Foundations for masonry shall be excavated to such depths as may be necessary to secure a solid bearing for the masonry, of which the said chief engineer shall be the judge; the materials excavated shall be classified and paid for, as provided for in these specifications under the general head of excavations; and in case of foundations in rock, the rock must be excavated to such depth, and in such form as may be desired by the chief engineer, and must be dressed level to receive the foundation course. All the material taken from the excavations for foundations, if of proper quality, shall be deposited in the contiguous embankment; but any material unfit for such purpose shall be deposited outside the roadway, or in such places as the chief engineer may direct, but so that it shall not interfere with any natural drainage or water-course. When a safe and solid foundation for masonry cannot be found at a reasonable depth (to be judged by the said chief engineer), there shall be prepared by the said contractor such artificial foundations as the chief engineer may direct.

Timber foundations; iron work.— 33. Timber foundations, when required, shall be such as the chief engineer may by drawings or otherwise prescribe, and shall be paid for by the one thousand (1,000) feet, board measure; the price covering cost of material, framing and putting in place. All wrought and cast iron work, ordered by the said chief engineer, shall be paid for by the pound; the price, including cost of material, manufacture, and placing in work.

Piling.— 34. All timber used in foundations or foundation filling shall be of young, sound and thrifty white oak, yellow pine, or other timber equally good for the purpose, acceptable to the chief engineer. Piles must be at least eight (8) inches in diameter at the small end, and at least twelve (12) inches diameter at the butt when sawed off; they must be perfectly straight, and be trimmed close, and have the bark stripped off before they are driven. They must be driven into hard bottom until they do not move more than one-half ($\frac{1}{2}$) inch under the blow of a hammer weighing two thousand (2,000) pounds falling twenty (20) feet at the last blow. They must be driven vertically and at the regular distances apart from centers, transversely and longitudinally, as required by the plans or directions of said chief engineer; they must be cut off squarely at the butt, and be well sharpened to a point; and, when necessary, in the opinion of the said chief engineer, shall be shod with iron and the heads bound with iron hoops, of such dimensions as he may direct, which shall be paid for the same as other iron work used in foundations. The necessary length of piles may be ascertained by driving test piles or boring in different parts of the localities in which they are to be used; and in case a pile shall not prove long enough to reach hard bottom, it shall be sawed off square, and a hole two (2) inches in diameter be bored in its head twelve (12) inches deep; into this hole a circular white oak tree-nail twenty-three (23) inches in length shall be well driven, and another pile similarly squared and bored, and of as large a diameter at the small end as can be procured, shall be placed upon the lower pile, and brought to its proper position and driven as before directed. All piles, when thus driven to the required depth, are to be cut off truly square and horizontal at the proper height, given by the said chief engineer, and only the number of lineal feet of the piles, plus two feet for waste after being sawed off, shall be paid for.

Coffer dams.— 35. Where coffer dams are, in the opinion of the chief engineer, required for foundations, the prices provided in the contract for timber, piles, and iron in foundations, shall be allowed for the material and work on same, which are understood as covering all risks from high water or otherwise, draining, bailing, pumping, and all materials connected with the coffer dams. Sheet piling shall be classed as plank in the foundations, and shall be paid for by the one thousand (1,000) feet board measure, if left in the ground.

Only the actual number of feet, B. M., timber and plank used and left for use in the foundations will be paid for.

Stone.—36. Stone for the different classes of masonry must be procured by the contractor, of strong, sound, and durable quality, such as weather will not affect injuriously, and must be approved by the chief engineer.

Sand.—37. Sand must be of good quality, clean and sharp, free from root-lets, loam, or clay, and must be sieved free from all particles that will not pass through a one-eighth inch mesh wire screen.

Cement.—38. Cement must be of the best quality of well-burned, finely-ground, improved quality of seasoned hydraulic cement; it shall be ninety per cent. fine with a sieve of 2,500 meshes to the square inch; it must set in the shade covered by a damp cloth from a plastic paste one-half inch thick by two inches square, in not less than fifteen minutes nor over thirty minutes, so as to stand a weight of four ounces on a wire one-twelfth of an inch in diameter, and not disintegrate on immersion in water; it must stand the following strains per square inch of section: Fifty pounds at the end of twenty-four hours in water, and one hundred and twenty pounds at the end of one week in water. Any cement swelling or showing cracks or fissures after immersion in water is condemned as unfit for use, even though it stands the above tests. As mortar (in the proportion of one part of cement and two parts of sand), it should set in from thirty minutes to one hour, then be immersed in water, show a tensile strength per square inch of section as follows: in twenty-four hours, of at least twenty pounds; in one week, of forty pounds; in one month, of seventy pounds, and in three months, of one hundred and fifty pounds.

Mortar.—39. Cement mortar shall be made of one part in bulk of cement, and two parts in bulk of clean, sharp sand, well and thoroughly mixed together dry, and the water added in proper proportion as mortar is required for use, and used inside of one-half hour after water is added, ten per cent. of fresh cement to be added after each half hour remaining unused, but no mortar left over night to be used under any pretext.

Grout.—40. Grout will be made in like manner to mortar, as to sand and cement, and the water added in greater quantity, and shall be used to the extent as desired by the chief engineer; it shall set, covered by water, in a vessel, in forty-eight hours, so as to stand the wire test for pure cement.

Lime mortar.—41. Lime mortar, if desired by the chief engineer, shall be made of two parts of the best quick-lime, one part of cement, and five parts sand. The ordinary mortar of lime and sand being first properly made and the cement mixed thoroughly with it immediately before using.

Concrete.—42. Concrete mortar shall be mixed as per directions for cement mortar, and the clean broken stone, passing through a two-inch ring, added after being thoroughly wet, in the proportion of four times the bulk of cement used; mixing so thoroughly that each stone is coated with the mortar; then quickly laid in sections and layers not exceeding nine inches in thickness and thoroughly rammed until mortar flushes to the surface; it shall be allowed twelve hours set before any work is laid on it. Concrete may be substituted for masonry in foundations, in backing or filling of walls, and in arch culverts when ordered by the chief engineer.

Additional cement.— 43. The above proportions for mortar, grout, and concrete are intended to form a preparation in which every particle of sand will be enveloped in cement, and this result must be attained to the satisfaction of the inspector and engineer, or a proportion of cement added to accomplish this end.

Pointing joints.— 44. The joints of all classes of masonry shall be neatly pointed with Portland cement mortar, mixed one part cement to one and one-half parts sand. It must not be allowed to dry in less than one week in the hottest and driest weather.

Inspection.— 45. No masonry must be covered up until it has been inspected by the chief engineer. No masonry will be laid in freezing weather or in winter, without special permission, and then as provided for under the head of first class masonry; and shall at all times be subject to the supervision of an inspector, whose duties shall be to see that the requirements of these specifications are conformed to; but his presence is in no way to lessen in any degree the responsibility of the contractor to his obligation. The inspector is specially to see that all mortar work in dry weather is kept wet throughout by sprinkling where masonry is being laid, and until it has been laid at least one week.

CONDITIONS APPLICABLE TO GRADATION AND MASONRY.

Risks.— 46. The prices agreed upon and paid per yard for each kind of work shall include all expenses attending the delivery of materials, and incident to the prosecution of the work, and cover all risks and damage from floods or casualties of any kind.

Claims for extra work.— 47. No claim for extra work shall be allowed unless the same shall have been done in pursuance of a written order from the engineer, and the claim be presented at the first settlement after the work was executed, unless the chief engineer, at his discretion, should direct the claim, or such part as he may deem just and equitable, to be allowed.

Examination by contractor.— 48. Contractors must satisfy themselves of the nature and location of the work they bid for, of the general form of the surface of the ground, of the quantity of materials required for forming the embankment or other work, and all other matters which can in any way influence their contract, and no information upon any such matters derived from the maps, plans, profiles, drawings or specifications, or from the engineer or his assistants, will in any way relieve the contractor from all risks or from fulfilling all the terms of this contract.

Prosecution of work.— 49. The whole of the work shall be prosecuted in the most energetic, expeditious, and workmanlike manner, with the largest force of all classes of workmen that can be worked to advantage and secure expedition.

Changes in alignment.— 50. The company shall have the right to make any alterations that may be hereafter determined upon as necessary or desirable in the location, line, grade, plan, form, or dimensions of the work, either before or after the commencement of work by the contractor, defining them in writing; by or without drawing; and in case such alterations increase the quantities, the contractor shall be paid for such excess at the contract rates herein specified; but should such alterations diminish the quantity or extent of the work to be done, it shall not, under any circumstances, be construed as constituting, and shall not constitute, a claim for damages, nor shall any claim be made on the work that may be altered or dispensed with; but no claim for an increase in prices of excavation or embankment on the part of the contractor will be allowed or considered unless presented in writing to the chief engineer before the work on that part of the section where the alteration has been made, shall have been commenced. The length of any section may be increased or diminished at any time, for the purpose of equalizing and balancing the excavation and embankment.

Negligence.—51. All slips or falls of slopes attributable to excessive use of powder, or negligence or carelessness of contractor, in the opinion of the chief engineer, shall be removed by the contractor at his own cost; but if not so attributable, an allowance as common excavation shall be made for such removal, or be fixed by the chief engineer.

The contractor will be held responsible for all damages that may be done to persons, or property, or premises through which the line of road may pass, in consequence of leaving gates or fences open, and for all trespassing or depredations on fences or other property by workmen in his employ, or by blasting rocks or building fires, and estimates may be withheld, at the option of the engineer, until damages of this description are satisfactorily settled for.

Subcontracts.—52. Contractors will be required to give their personal attention and supervision to the work, and will not be allowed to subcontract the whole or any part of same, without the consent of the railway company having been given in writing thereto.

Permission to haul.—53. Any person having permission from the engineer, shall be allowed to pass along or haul any materials required for the road or any section, such persons not interfering or impeding the work of the contractor.

Quantities on profile, etc.—54. The quantities exhibited to the contractor at the time of soliciting proposals for the work herein contracted for, or on profiles, etc., are necessarily only approximate; they furnish only general information, and will in no way govern or affect the final estimate, which will be made out on the completion of the work from actual measurements and established facts not determinable at time of letting the work.

Meaning of engineer.—55. Whenever the word engineer or chief engineer is used in these specifications, it is to be understood as applying to the engineer in chief of the company, or in his absence, his duly appointed assistant engineers and inspectors representing him, limited by the special duties intrusted to them.

Facilities for inspectors.—56. The contractor shall furnish the inspectors with proper facilities for access to the inspection of all work; for the weighing and testing of cement, sand, and other material used on the work.

Least quantity of cement.—57. Cement masonry will average at least six-tenths (6-10) of a barrel of cement per cubic yard of masonry.

Measurements of work.—58. All work and material will be paid for as measured by the engineer and his assistants, according to plans and the working lines given, and these specifications.

Delays and hindrances.—59. No charge shall be made by the contractor for hindrances or delays, from any cause, during the progress of work; but it may entitle him to an extension of time allowed for completing the work, sufficient to compensate for the detention, to be determined by the chief engineer, provided the contractor shall give the engineer in charge immediate notice in writing of the cause of the detention.

Suspension of work.—60. The railroad company reserves the right to suspend operations at any particular points, and in the event of such right being exercised so as to cause delay to the contractor, then an extension of time equal to such delay or detention shall be allowed him to complete his contract, but any such delay shall not entitle the contractor to any claim for damages. The railroad company shall not suspend operations without giving the contractor at least ten days' notice of their intention to suspend.

Work night and day.—61. The work shall be carried on night and day, in order to complete within the specified time, if so directed by the chief engineer.

Excavations for extra tracks, etc.—62. Where excavations are being made for additional tracks, the party of the first part must at all times keep the work in such condition as not to interfere with the passage of trains, and the said party will be held responsible for any delays or damages done to the existing railroad tracks. Contractors will not be permitted to transport material by carts or wheel-barrow along or between tracks under any circumstances. Said party must also provide the necessary watchmen, if instructed to do so by the chief engineer.

Crossings during work.—63. When it is necessary for the party of the first part to transport material from one side of the railroad to the other, the said party of the first part shall furnish the lumber and spikes for the crossings required; and all labor placing down the same will be performed by the employees of the party of the second part, the actual cost of which shall be paid by the said party of the first part. No crossing shall be placed down, except by direction of the chief engineer.

Transportation of workmen and materials.—64. The said party of the second part will not transport free any of the workmen or materials for this work, but all material must be shipped in the name of the party of the first part, and in no case shall it be shipped in care of, or in the name of the railroad company or any of its officers or employees, and said party of first part must pay the regular freight rates arranged for with the freight department.

BRIDGING.

The superstructure of the public road and farm bridges to be built in a thorough and workmanlike manner, according to such plans, specifications, and bills of timber and iron as will be furnished from time to time by the engineer.

[The details of bridges over particular places are given in each contract.]

SPECIFICATIONS FOR IRON WORK.

Quality of Material.

All wrought iron must be tough, fibrous, uniform in quality throughout, free from flaws, blisters, and injurious cracks, and must have a workmanlike finish. It must be capable of sustaining an ultimate stress of 46,000 pounds per square inch on a full section of test piece, with an elastic limit of 23,000 pounds per square inch.

All iron to be used in tension or subjected to transverse stress (except web-plates), must have a minimum stretch, on a length of eight inches, of fifteen per cent. measured after breaking.

All iron to be used in compression and for web-plates, of width not exceeding twenty-four inches, must have a minimum stretch of ten per cent. on a length of eight inches measured after breaking.

All iron for web-plates exceeding twenty-four inches in width, must have a minimum stretch of five per cent. measured in length of eight inches.

All iron to be used in the tensile members of open trusses, laterals, pins, bolts, etc., must be double rolled after and directly from the muck bar (no scrap will be allowed), and must be capable of sustaining an ultimate stress of 50,000 pounds per square inch on a full section of test piece, with an elastic limit of 25,000 pounds per square inch, and a minimum stretch of twenty per cent. measured after breaking in length of eight inches.

When tested to the breaking, if so required by the engineer, the bars and rods must part through the body and not through the head or pin hole. Such tests must be at the expense of the contractor when the requirements of these specifications are not complied with.

All tension wrought iron, if cut into testing strips one and one-half inches in width, must be capable of resisting, without signs of fracture, bending cold by blows of a hammer, until the ends of the strips form a right angle with each other, the inner diameter of the curve of bending being not more than twice the thickness of the piece tested. The hammering must be only on the extremities of the specimens, and never where the flexion is taking place. The bending must stop when the first crack appears.

All the tension tests are to be made on a standard test piece, of one and one-half inches in width, and from one-fourth to three-fourths inches in thickness, planed down on both edges equally, so as to reduce the width to one inch for length of eight inches. Whenever practicable, the two flat sides of the piece to be left as they come from the rolls. In all other cases both sides of the test pieces are to be planed off.

All plates, angles, etc., which are to be bent in the manufacture, must, in addition to the above requirements, be capable of bending sharply to a right angle, at a working heat, without showing any signs of fracture.

All rivet iron must be tough and soft, and pieces of the full diameter of the rivet must be capable of bending until the sides are in close contact, without showing fracture on the convex side of the curve.

Pins of four and a half inches diameter or less, may be rolled iron, but those of greater diameter must be forged.

Workmanship.

All workmanship must be first class; all abutting surfaces, except flanges of plate girders, must be planed or turned, so as to insure even bearings, taking light cuts so as not to injure the end fibres of the piece, and must be protected by white lead and tallow. Abutting members must be brought into close and forcible contact when fitted with splice-plates, and the rivet holes reamed in position before leaving the work; the plates being marked so as to go in the same position in erecting.

Generally the use of bolts instead of rivets will not be permitted, unless they are turned conical and the holes reamed to fit them.

Rollers must be turned and roller-beds planed.

Rivet holes must be carefully spaced and punched, and must in all cases be reamed to fit where they do not come truly and accurately opposite, without the aid of drift pins. Rivets must completely fill the holes and have full heads, and be countersunk when so required, and machine-driven wherever possible.

Compression members must be straight and free from kinks or buckles in the finished piece.

All pin holes in pieces which are not adjustable for length must be accurately bored at right angles to the axis, unless otherwise shown in the drawings, and no variation of more than one-sixty-fourth of an inch will be allowed in the length between centers of pin holes. Eye bars must be perfectly straight before boring, the holes must be in the center of the head, and on the center lines of the bar. Whenever links are to be packed more than one-eighth of an inch to the foot of their length out of parallel with the axis of the structure, they must be bent with a gentle curve until the heads stand at right angles to the pin in their intended position, before being bored; suitable blocking pieces being used to keep them in proper position during the operation of boring. All pieces must be at equal temperatures when bored, and those belonging to the same panel, when placed in a pile, must allow the pin at each end to pass through at the same time without forcing. Pins must be carefully turned, perfectly finished and straight, and when driven in, must have pilot nut to preserve threads. No variation of more than one-thirty-second of an inch will be allowed between diameter of pin and pin hole. In the case of bolts, a variation of one-sixteenth of an inch will be allowed between diameter of bolt and hole. Thickening washers must be used whenever required to make the joints snug and tight.

All iron must receive one coat of boiled linseed oil, and inaccessible surfaces are to be painted with one heavy coat of red-oxide of iron in pure linseed oil, before leaving the works. All scale to be scraped from the iron before painting.

The whole of the construction to be first-class work, and in strict accordance with the drawings and these specifications. In the case of subcontractors, the specifications are fully binding on them in every respect, and free access and information is to be given by them for thorough inspection of material and workmanship, and all required test pieces, etc., properly shaped, are to be provided, as may be requested, without charge. All shipments of material not properly inspected and passed are at the risk of the contractor.

In all cases figures are to be taken in preference to any measurements by scale, and no alterations are to be made unless authorized in writing by the chief engineer.

SPECIFICATIONS FOR TRACK-LAYING.

Ties.—The ties shall be spaced so as to give fourteen ties to each thirty feet rail. They shall be laid accurately to the stakes as given by the engineer in charge, and carefully mauled into the ballast to such depths as the engineer may direct, and in such a manner as to give them a firm, continuous, and even bearing thereon. They must be properly and evenly spaced, with ten inches between the edges of bearing surfaces at joints, with intermediate ties evenly spaced, and the ends on the outside on double track, and on the right-hand side going north or west on single track, lined up parallel with the rails. The ties must not be notched under any circumstances, but should they be twisted, must be made true with the adze, that the rails may have an even bearing over the whole breadth of the tie.

Rails.—The rails shall be accurately laid to the line and level stakes given by the engineer or his assistants, and on all curves they must be bent to the proper curvature before being laid upon the ties; they shall be laid to a gauge of four feet eight and one-half inches. On straight lines the rails must be on the same level, and on curves the proper elevation must be given to the outer rail and carried uniformly around the curve. This elevation should be commenced from fifty to two hundred feet back of the point of curvature, depending on the degree of the curve, and increased uniformly to the latter point, where the full elevation is attained. The same method should be adopted in leaving the curve. The rails must be spiked both on the inside and outside on each tie, on straight lines as well as on curves, and the spikes driven in such position as to keep the ties at right angles to the rails.

Joints.—The joints of the rails must be exactly midway between the joint ties, and the joint on one line of rail must be opposite the center of the rail on the other line of the same track. In winter a distance of five-sixteenths of an inch, and in summer one-sixteenth of an inch, must be left between the ends of the rails, to allow for expansion. The splices must be properly put on with the full number of bolts, nuts and nut-locks, and the nuts screwed up tight.

Ballast.—There must be a uniform depth of at least inches of clean, broken stone or gravel under the ties. The ballast must be filled up evenly between but not above the top of the ties, and also between the main tracks and sidings where stone ballast is used. In filling up between the tracks, coarse, large stones must be placed in the bottom, in order to provide for drainage; but care should be taken to keep the coarse stone away from the ends of the ties. At the outer ends of the ties the ballast must be sloped off evenly to the subgrade. When stone is used, it must be of an imperishable quality, broken evenly and not larger than a cube that will pass through a two and one-half inch ring.

Switches.—In laying switches and frogs, care shall be taken to place them accurately to the position determined by the engineer. They must be laid upon ties specially provided for the purpose, which shall be so laid as to have a firm and continuous bearing upon the ballast. Particular attention should be given to have them well lined up and to avoid low joints at the head-blocks of switches. The standard distance between flange edges of guard-rail and frog must be four feet and five inches.

Road crossings.—Road-crossing planks must be securely spiked; the plank-ing should be three-quarters of an inch below the top of rail, and on the inside two and one-half inches from the gauge-line. The ends of planks should be beveled off.

Sidings.—Sidings shall be laid at such points and of such lengths as the engineer may direct.

Ditches and drains.—All material that shall have been thrown into the ditches by the party of the first part shall be removed, and the road properly ditched and cleaned up. All necessary cross-drains must be laid at proper intervals.

General conditions.—The party of the first part shall maintain and keep the track in good repair until the same is accepted, and no length of track shall be accepted and taken off the hands of the party of the first part, except at the option of the engineer, until the whole shall have been completed.

And the party of the second part doth covenant and agree to deliver all rails, splice bars, bolts, spikes, ties, and other material that may be required for the said track at the nearest accessible point on the main line to where the track-laying is in progress.

And the party of the first part doth further agree to unload from the cars all material that may be required for said track; said unloading to be done promptly by the party of the first part, and at his own expense. The party of the second part to furnish engine and cars for hauling ballast and track material from the point of delivery to the point where used. All extra work that may be required to complete the track ready for the running of trains shall be done by the party of the first part if required by the engineer, and be paid for by the party of the second part at the valuation of said engineer, and no claims for extra work will be allowed unless the work was done under written orders of the engineer, presented on or before the first day of the month next after such work was done. No extra allowance will be made for any delays that may occur in the construction of the work, but it may entitle the party of the first part to an extension of time for completing the work sufficient to compensate for the detention, to be determined by the engineer.

And the said party of the second part doth promise and agree to pay to the said party of the first part for the work to be done under this contract the following prices, to wit:—

On or about the last day of each month, during the progress of this work, an estimate shall be made of the relative value of the work done, to be judged of by the engineer; and ninety per cent. of the amount of said estimate shall be paid to the party of the first part on or about the fifteenth day of the following month. And when all the work embraced in this contract is completed, agreeably to the specifications, and in accordance with the directions and to the satisfaction and acceptance of the engineer, there shall be a final estimate made of the quality, character, and value of said work, according to the terms of this agreement, when the balance appearing due to the said party of the first part, shall be paid to within thirty days thereafter, upon his giving a release, under seal, to the party of the second part, from all claims or demands whatsoever growing in any manner out of this agreement, and upon his procuring and delivering to the party of the second part, full releases, in proper form and duly executed, from mechanics and materialmen, of all liens, claims, and demands for materials furnished and provided, and work and labor done and performed upon or about the work herein contracted for under this contract.

It is further covenanted and agreed between the said parties, that the said party of the first part shall not sublet or transfer this contract, or any part thereof, to any person (excepting for the delivery of materials), without the written consent of the engineer, but will at all times give personal attention and superintendence to the work.

It is further agreed and understood that the work embraced in this contract shall be commenced within ten days from this date, and prosecuted with such force as the engineer shall deem adequate to its completion within the time specified; and if at any time the said party of the first part shall refuse or neglect to prosecute the work with a force sufficient, in the opinion of the said engineer, for its completion within the time specified in this agreement, then, and in that case, the said engineer in charge, or such other agent as the engineer shall designate, may proceed to employ such a number of workmen, laborers, and overseers as may, in the opinion of the said engineer, be necessary to insure the completion of the work within the time hereinbefore limited, at such wages as he may find necessary or expedient to give; pay all persons so employed; and charge over the amount so paid to the party of the first part as for so much money paid to him on this contract; or for the failure to prosecute the work with an adequate force, for noncompliance with his directions in regard to the manner of constructing it, or for any other omission or neglect of the requirements of this agreement and specifications on the part of the party of the first part, the said engineer may, at his discretion, declare this contract, or any portion or section embraced in it, forfeited; which declaration and forfeiture shall exonerate the said company from any and all obligations and liabilities arising under this contract the same as if this agreement had never been made; and the reserved percentage of ten per cent. upon any work done by the party of the first part may be retained forever by the said company.

And the said party of the first part hath further covenanted and agreed to take, use, provide, and make all proper, necessary, and sufficient precautions, safeguards, and protections against the occurrence or happening of any accidents, injuries, damages, or hurt to any person or property during the progress of the construction of the work herein contracted for, and to be responsible for, and to indemnify and save harmless the said party of the second part, and the said engineer, from the payment of all sums of money by reason of all or any such accidents, injuries, damages, or hurt that may happen or occur upon or about said work, and from all fines, penalties, and loss incurred for or by reason of the violation of any city or borough ordinance or regulation, or law of the state, while the said work is in progress of construction.

Right of way.— It is mutually agreed, that the said company shall furnish the right of way on the line of said railroad; but no claims for damages arising from delay that may, in any case, occur, in obtaining title or possession, shall be made by said contractor. But if possession shall not be obtained within three months from the date of this contract, then the said contractor may give notice in writing of such detention, and shall be allowed for the completion of the portion of the work so delayed additional time equal to the period between such notice and the time possession shall be acquired.

Order of work.— It is agreed that this contract shall be prosecuted in such order, and at such places and parts of the work, and at such times and seasons, as the said engineer may direct.

Further work.— It is further agreed, that if any work is found necessary, of a character not contemplated or provided for in this contract, that the railroad company shall have the right to let the same in a separate contract, provided the prices for doing such work cannot be agreed upon between the said engineer and the said contractors.

Use of locomotive and cars.—It is also understood and agreed, that the railroad company are to furnish the use of a locomotive engine and gravel cars for ballasting the roadbed and filling the track—the said contractor paying all expenses connected therewith.

Alterations.—And the said contractor hereby agrees that he will perform the work under this contract as before specified; but any alterations in the form, dimensions, or materials of said work, which may be directed in writing by said engineer, shall be made by said contractors as directed; and if the work shall be rendered thereby more expensive, they shall be entitled to such extra compensation as said engineer shall estimate to be just and reasonable; and if such alteration shall make the work less expensive, then a deduction shall be made, as said engineer may estimate to be just and equitable.

Dismissal of disorderly persons, etc.—To avoid disputes and interruptions, and hindrances to the regular and peaceable progress of the different parts of the work, and to prevent unnecessary injury to the rights, property, and persons of residents in the vicinity, or of persons traveling on or near the line of the company, said engineer shall have power to dismiss from the service of the said party of the first part, every quarrelsome, disorderly person, and such as shall be addicted to habits of intemperance; and the said party of the first part shall not employ any person who has been so dismissed from the service of any other contractor; and furthermore, the said party of the first part shall not sell or furnish spirituous liquors, either to persons in his employ, or to any other person or persons on or near the line of said road. This provision is understood as prohibiting entirely the use of ardent spirits as above, and its infringement will subject the said party of the first part to the dismissal and forfeiture of his contract.

And it is mutually agreed and distinctly understood that the decision of the chief engineer shall be final and conclusive in any dispute which may arise between the parties to this agreement, relative to or touching the same, and each and every of said parties do hereby waive any right of action, suit or suits, or other remedy in law or otherwise, by virtue of said covenants, so that the decision of said engineer shall, in the nature of an award, be final and conclusive on the rights and claims of said parties.

IN WITNESS WHEREOF, the party of the first part has hereunto set his hand and seal, and the party of the second part has caused these presents to be signed in its name by its president and its corporate seal to be hereunto affixed, attested by its secretary, the day and year first above written.

It shall give notice of any proposed change of this plan by filing a copy thereof with the trust company, and by advertising the substance thereof in one newspaper published in the city of New York, and one published in the city of _____, N. Y., at least once a week for three weeks, and any bondholder or stockholder who shall not dissent from such change and withdraw his bonds or stocks within one week after the completion of such advertisement, shall be deemed to have assented to such change, and shall be in all respects bound thereby. Thirteenth. If, by reason of legal or other objections, any of the provisions of this agreement cannot be strictly performed by the committee, then it shall conform as nearly as may be to such provisions, and the committee shall within one year after the organization of the new company file its accounts with the board of directors of the same. Such accounts shall be binding and conclusive upon all parties to this agreement. The assent or approval of the committee, or a majority thereof, shall be sufficient authority to the Trust Company for whatever may be done by it in the premises, including the delivery or payment to or upon the order of the committee of the bonds or stocks deposited or cash contributed hereunder.

Fourteenth. The deposit of bonds or stocks and the receipt of a certificate issued therefor shall have the same effect as if the holder of such certificate had actually subscribed this agreement.

Bondholders depositing their bonds, and their transferees, shall, by accepting such certificates, become parties to this agreement, with like effect as if they had signed the same. Each receipt or certificate of deposit may be treated by the Committee and by the depository as a negotiable instrument and the holder for the time being may be deemed to be the absolute owner thereof, and of all rights of the original depositor of the bonds and coupons; and neither the depository nor the Committee shall be affected by any notice to the contrary. Depositors must in all cases deposit with their bonds such transfers, assignments and powers of attorney as may be required by the Committee in order to vest in the Committee, and to enable them to transfer the complete and absolute title to such bonds and coupons and the depositors respectively agree at any time to execute any and all transfers, assignments or writings necessary for vesting complete ownership of the bonds and coupons deposited hereunder in the Committee or its nominees, for the purpose of enabling the Committee to carry out this agreement or any plan of reorganization which may be prepared and adopted in pursuance of this agreement.

(b.) After the first day of April, 19 , no bondholder who shall not have complied with the provisions of this agreement by depositing his holdings as aforesaid, shall have or be entitled to have any of the rights or privileges herein provided for, and shall not be entitled to participate in any way in the benefits of this agreement; provided, however, that the Committee shall have power at any time to permit any holder of bonds to receive the benefits of this agreement upon compliance with the terms hereof, upon such just and reasonable terms and conditions as the Committee shall deem proper.

(c.) The Committee, or a majority thereof, as at any time constituted, acting collectively (except as hereinafter provided), are hereby appointed and constituted by the bondholders, their agents and attorneys, and the agents and attorneys of each and every one of them, for the purpose of carrying out this agreement. And the bondholders hereby severally confer upon the Committee whatever power and authority it may be necessary for the Committee to exercise in order legally and effectually to execute this agreement, and they and each of them also constitute and appoint the Committee their true and lawful attorneys irrevocable with power of substitution, to execute in their behalf any instrument or instruments in writing convenient or necessary to enable them to carry out the purpose of, this agreement in all its parts and details, hereby giving and granting unto the Committee full power and authority to do and perform any and every act and thing requisite or necessary in the premises as fully to all intents and purposes as the consenting bondholders personally might or could do, hereby ratifying and confirming all that the Committee shall lawfully do or cause to be done by virtue hereof. The enumeration of specific powers conferred by any part of this agreement shall not be held to restrict or exclude others not enumerated, but the Committee shall have all powers necessary or convenient for the promotion, execution or accomplishment of any of the general purposes mentioned or intended to be included in this agreement, even though such powers be apparently of a character not now contemplated.

(d.) The Committee may construe this agreement, and their construction thereof or action thereunder in good faith shall be final and conclusive. They may supply any defect or omission or reconcile any inconsistency in such manner and to such extent as shall be necessary to carry out the same properly and effectively, and they shall be the sole judge of such necessity.

Third. The Committee, as holders of the deposited securities, may take any action under the mortgage or deed of trust securing the bonds, or in respect to any suits or proceedings to foreclose the same, including the power to buy in the property on such foreclosure, and to pay therefor or to make part payment of the purchase price thereof in the bonds and coupons deposited hereunder; to represent the bondholders in any court or elsewhere in respect to their rights and interests as holders of the bonds; to instruct and direct the trustee of the mortgage or deed of trust securing the bonds, and to confirm in and to give such trustee all such powers as in the judgment of the Committee shall result to the advantage of the bondholders; to receive moneys payable upon such bonds and to use such moneys in the discretion of the Committee to carry out the purposes and intent of this agreement, being especially authorized to employ agents, attorneys and counsel, and to pay reasonable compensation for all services rendered to the Committee, and being especially empowered to employ any of their own number, or any firm of which any of their own number may be a member, or with which he may be associated to act as their agent for the raising of money, or otherwise, and to pay such member of such firm reasonable compensation for such services, in all respects as though such person were not a member of the Committee; any member of the Committee may acquire any securities, outstanding titles, obligations or claims of any sort against the company, and may hold them individually for the protection of his own interests, it being expressly agreed that the trust relation created by this agreement shall not be construed as prohibiting such holding; provided, however, that any such securities, outstanding titles, obligations or claims so acquired by any member of the Committee shall at any time be transferred to the Committee upon request by them, upon payment by the Committee to such member of whatever sum of money he may actually have paid to acquire the same, together with interest at six per cent. per annum from the time of such payment by him. The Committee shall have power to borrow any money or moneys, if in their judgment it be necessary to carry out the purposes and intent of this agreement, and to use or pledge the bonds of the parties hereto of the first part as collateral for moneys so borrowed. Such Committee, however, shall not have power to create any personal liability on the part of any of the parties hereto for money so borrowed. And, in general, the Committee is authorized and empowered to exercise all other authority, powers and discretion which the bondholders hereto or any of them, might or could exercise as bondholders by reason of the bonds owned by them or of the mortgage securing them, in carrying out the objects and intents of this agreement as understood and construed by the Committee.

Fourth. The Committee shall have power to assess the bondholders to a sum not in excess of one (1) per cent. of the par value of the bonds deposited, for the necessary expenses of the reorganization, and to fix the time of payment of such assessment or assessments. The bondholders agree, each for himself, in respect to each bond deposited by him to make such payment promptly within the time fixed by the Committee. The bondholders hereby severally agree that prompt payment of any assessment made in accordance with this provision is an essential condition to the acquisition of stock or bonds in any new company to be formed, or to a share in the proceeds of any sale of bonds, or to any other benefits whatsoever which may accrue from the reorganization plan. If such payments shall not be made within the time limited by the Committee, it is agreed that without further or other notice or action, those so failing to make payment as aforesaid shall cease to have any rights or to be entitled to any benefits hereunder. The Committee, however, in their discretion may waive any such default and accept payments of overdue assessments from any bondholder at any time before the completion of the work of the Committee. In case of default and forfeiture as aforesaid, the bonds deposited, as well as any assessment already paid, shall vest in the Committee, to be used in the reorganization plan, and for the benefit of the other bondholders. The assessment herein provided for may be made either in one sum or in such portions as the Committee may impose from time to time; all such assessments, however, not to aggregate more than one (1) per cent. of the par value of the bonds deposited.

Fifth. (a.) The Committee shall have power to prepare and adopt a plan of reorganization whenever in its judgment it is advisable to do so. When the Committee shall have adopted such plan, a copy thereof shall be lodged with the depository. Notice shall thereupon be given to the holders of the receipts issued hereunder as in this article fifth provided, and such plan shall become binding upon all the holders who do not withdraw herefrom in the manner herein provided.

Moreover the Committee shall have power to negotiate for a sale of the bonds deposited hereunder as a whole, and in the event of obtaining a bid for said bonds satisfactory to the Committee, said Committee shall thereupon give notice to the holders of the receipts issued hereunder as in this article fifth is provided, and the Committee shall be fully authorized to make sale at the price mentioned in said notice of all bonds which shall not be withdrawn herefrom in the manner herein provided by the holders of the receipts therefor.

(b.) The notice from the Committee to the holders of receipts shall be given by mailing the same with postage prepaid to the addresses registered by such holders with the depository at the time of depositing the bonds represented thereby; such registered addresses may from time to time be changed by notice in writing delivered to said depository. Any holder of a receipt issued hereunder may at any time within twenty days after mailing to him, or the last publication of, the notice aforesaid, withdraw from this agreement, and be entitled to receive the bonds represented by his receipt upon payment of his pro rata share of the expenses heretofore incurred by the Committee as certified by the Committee, such share not to exceed one (1) per cent. of the par value of the bonds deposited by him, and upon the further payment of such holder's pro rata of any amount for which the bonds may have been pledged, and of whatever further sum, in addition to this proportional amount of the pledge, may have been imposed on the bonds by the Committee as a condition of the cancellation of the pledge; provided, however, that the holders of such receipts shall be entitled to the return of the bonds pledged only in the event that the Committee is able to obtain such bonds from the pledgee on the payment of such sum, the Committee not being responsible for the return of such bonds; and provided further, that if in the meantime any of such bonds so pledged shall have been sold or disposed of by the pledgee or used in satisfaction of the pledge, in such event the holder shall not be entitled to withdraw from this agreement. Upon the withdrawal of the bonds represented by such receipts, and the payment of the sums herein provided for, the holders of receipts shall be thereupon and without any further act fully released from the obligations of this agreement, and from such plan of reorganization; but as to every holder who shall not, within such period of twenty days, so withdraw the bonds represented by his certificates, his assent to and ratification of such plan or of a sale of the bonds at the price mentioned in said notice, shall be conclusively and finally assumed, conferred and given, and shall be irrevocable.

Sixth. If during the continuance of this agreement the Committee shall wish to submit to the holders of receipts, any question whatever, notice of a meeting of such holders may be given as in article fifth hereinbefore provided, and any such matter or question shall be determined by a vote of a majority in par value of the outstanding receipts, which determination shall be binding on the holders of all outstanding receipts; but the Committee need not call any such meeting or take any such vote unless it desires so to do.

Seventh. In case of a foreclosure or sale of the mortgaged property or any part thereof, the Committee is hereby authorized to purchase the same, or any part of the same, for the benefit and account of the parties hereto, according to the number of bonds represented by their respective receipts, at such price, in addition to the expenses, as such Committee may approve, not, however, exceeding the aggregate amount of the principal and interest at the time due and unpaid upon all the bonds secured by the mortgage or deed of trust, together with such amount as may be established as a lien upon the property prior to the lien of the mortgage, and the expenses of foreclosure, and to make any arrangement that may be necessary to accomplish such purposes that shall not involve the compulsory assessment of the subscribing bondholders to an amount beyond such sum as shall be necessary to pay the costs and expenses of the foreclosure; but the Committee may borrow money on the security of the bonds (or by any other means not involving the compulsory assessment of the bondholders) with which to pay to the bondholders not uniting in this agreement their pro rata share of the purchase price; and to that end the bonds so deposited, and the coupons thereto, or a part thereof, may be used by such Committee in completing the purchase, including the right to pledge the same in borrowing such sum as may be necessary to pay the bondholders not uniting in this agreement as aforesaid, or to secure such sum by creating a prior lien upon the property so purchased. In case the mortgaged premises and property shall not be purchased by the Committee upon any sale, the Committee is authorized to receive the dividends due on the bonds deposited under this agreement from the proceeds of the sale, and distribute the same less the pro rata share of the expenses.

Eighth. If the Committee should purchase the mortgaged premises, as hereinbefore authorized, in their names or otherwise, the same may be conveyed to them, or to any persons or corporations designated by them, and they or such appointee may take possession of the same for account and benefit of the parties to this agreement, respectively, and their respective representatives or assigns, according to the amount of the bonds then held by them respectively, to be by the Committee disposed of according to any plan that may be hereafter agreed upon, as above provided, for the reorganization of the property in the event of such purchase.

Ninth. The Committee, as at any time constituted, and notwithstanding any vacancy, shall have all the powers, rights, and interests of the Committee as originally formed. Any member of the Committee may resign by giving notice thereof in writing to the secretary of the Committee or to all the other members. The affirmative vote of a majority of the members of the Committee as at any time constituted, shall be necessary for the passage of any resolution (a member of the Committee may vote by proxy at any meeting of the Committee) and such affirmative vote of the majority shall be taken for every purpose final and as the action of the whole Committee, except that in no event shall any member of the Committee incur any personal liability to any of the bondholders or to any persons, except for his own acts, and not then except for wilful misconduct. It shall not be necessary for the members of the Committee to meet formally in order to take any action, provided they agree unanimously on any matter and embody such action in a writing signed by each member of the Committee. The Committee may fill vacancies in its number; in case the Committee cannot agree on an additional member to fill a vacancy, notice of such vacancy shall be given to the holders of receipts by written notice sent by mail to the addresses registered at the time of depositing the bonds represented thereby, and which registered addresses may, from time to time, be changed by notice in writing delivered to the depository. Such notice shall state the fact of a vacancy and shall fix a time within which the vote of the holder of the receipt must be received; which date shall not be less than twenty (20) days after the mailing of the notice; such votes of the bondholders shall be received by the depository and the person receiving the highest number of such votes, reckoned according to the par value of the certificates voting, shall, upon his acceptance of the office, become a member of the Committee in all respects as though appointed by this agreement. No member of the Committee shall be personally liable for anything except his own wilful misconduct and each shall be entitled to reasonable compensation for his services. The depository shall incur no liability as depository for anything done or permitted at the request or direction of the Committee, it being intended that the bonds so deposited shall be wholly at the order and under the control of the Committee; the Committee to incur no liability whatsoever except for their own wilful misconduct. All directions or instructions given to or powers conferred upon the depository as depository of the Committee or to the Trustee under the mortgage or deed of trust securing the bonds, shall be binding upon the bondholders, parties hereto, and their assigns, notwithstanding the return of the bonds and the termination of this agreement. The members of the Committee are not personally bound or obliged to carry this agreement into effect, but are only required to do what, in their judgment, seems advisable for this purpose.

Tenth. This agreement may at any time be terminated by a majority vote of the Committee, and upon notice thereof being mailed to the parties of the first part to their several addresses as the same shall appear opposite the signatures to this agreement, or by notification to the depository or at the option of the Committee upon publication of such notice twice a week for two consecutive weeks in a daily newspaper published in the city of Philadelphia; and in such event, the Committee shall, at the expiration of ten days thereafter, be absolutely and forever discharged from all connection with this agreement; and the bondholders shall thereafter be free to take such action in reference to their bonds as they may be advised, and shall be entitled to a return of their securities upon surrender of their receipts in like manner and on the same terms as hereinbefore provided in article fifth hereof, for the ease of bondholders not assenting to the Committee's plan of reorganization. The Committee shall have power to determine and to act according to its judgment in all matters not specifically provided for herein but within the general purposes set out in this agreement, and shall have power to modify this agreement in any matter of detail not affecting the substantial rights of the parties hereto. The accounts of the Committee shall be filed with and audited by the depository and their approval of such accounts shall be final and conclusive, so that the same shall not be questioned thereafter by any of the parties hereto or any one claiming under them or through them, and the Committee shall thereupon be discharged.

Eleventh. The bondholders, parties hereof, of the first part, may become parties to this agreement, either, first, by signing and delivering counterparts thereof to the Committee, or to any one acting for the Committee (in which case the bonds of any person to become a party must be deposited with the Committee as in article second hereof provided); or, second, by depositing their bonds hereunder with the depository above named as hereinbefore provided in article second hereof; it may be executed in any number of parts, which together shall be deemed to be one instrument.

IN WITNESS WHEREOF, the members of the Committee have hereunto set their hands, and the other parties hereto have set their hands, setting opposite their names the amount of their bonds and their post-office addresses, the day and year first above written.

720. Trust Agreement for Control of Capital Stock of Life Insurance Company.

AN AGREEMENT, made in the City of New York, in the State of New York, this fifteenth day of June, one thousand nine hundred and five, between T. F. R., of the first part, and G. C., M. J. O. and G. W. (hereinafter called the "Trustees"), of the second part.

WHEREAS, the E. L. A. Society of the United States (hereinafter called the "Society"), is a corporation of the State of New York, having a full paid capital stock of one thousand (1,000) shares of the par value of one hundred dollars ($100) each, of which five hundred and two (502) shares are held by the party of the first part; and

WHEREAS, the corporate powers of the Society are vested by its charter in a board of directors consisting of fifty-two (52) persons, divided into four (4) classes of thirteen (13) directors each, each class serving for a term of four (4) years, so that thirteen (13) directors are elected at each annual election of the Society; and

WHEREAS, the directors of the Society have adopted a plan for the mutualization of the Society by so amending its charter that, of the fifty-two (52) directors of the Society, twenty-eight (28) should be elected by the policyholders and twenty-four (24) by the stockholders; and

WHEREAS, the consummation of said plan of mutualization and formal action thereon by the Superintendent of Insurance of the State of New York have hitherto been prevented by litigation, and in order to effect, so far as practicable, and without further delay, the result sought to be attained by such plan of mutualization, the party of the first part has entered into this agreement with the Trustees:

Now, this agreement witnesseth as follows:

First. The party of the first part hereby transfers to the Trustees said five hundred and two (502) shares of the capital stock of the Society for the purpose of vesting in the Trustees the right to vote thereon for the term and upon the terms and conditions stated in this agreement. The existing certificates for said stock shall be surrendered and cancelled, and certificates therefor shall be issued to the Trustees, in which certificates it shall appear that the same are issued pursuant to this agreement, and that fact shall also be noted in the entry of the Trustees as owners of such stock in the proper books of the Society.

Second. The Trustees are exclusively authorized to exercise the voting power on the stock held under this agreement for the election of directors of the Society, and shall, at every annual election of directors of the Society, so vote on said stock, that out of every thirteen (13) persons for whom such vote shall be cast, seven (7) shall be policy-holders of the Society, selected in accordance with the wishes of the policy-holders of the Society, expressed as hereinafter provided, and the remaining six (6) directors shall be selected by the Trustees in their uncontrollable discretion, to the end that, of the entire fifty-two (52) directors, twenty-eight (28) shall be policy-holders of the Society, selected by, or on behalf of, the policy-holders, and twenty-four (24) shall be lawfully eligible persons selected by the Trustees in their sole discretion.

The wishes of the policy-holders in respect of the directors to be voted for by the Trustees shall be expressed in the following manner: In each year, at any time prior to the first day of November, any holder of any policy which shall have been in force for one year or more, may send to the Trustees, at the E. Building, No. — Broadway, New York City, a written request, designating policy-holders of the Society to the number of not more than seven-thirteenths of the number of directors to be elected at the next ensuing annual election of directors, for whose election as directors such policy-holder desires the Trustees to vote at such annual election, or requesting the Trustees to exercise their discretion on his behalf in the selection of policy-holders to act as such directors.

Third. The Trustees are authorized, in respect of said stock, to take, in their discretion, by vote thereon or otherwise, any action necessary or proper to effect the consummation of said plan for the mutualization of the Society, by securing to the policy-holders the right to elect directly twenty-eight (28) of the fifty-two (52) directors of the Society, or a like proportion of the entire number of directors of which the Board of Directors shall from time to time consist.

Fourth. In case said plan of mutualization shall become operative and the policy-holders shall become entitled to vote directly for twenty-eight (28) directors of the Society out of an aggregate number of fifty-two (52) directors, or a like proportion of any other number of which the board of directors may from time to time consist, then the Trustees, in respect of the stock held under this agreement, shall continue to vote for such lawfully eligible persons to be the remaining directors as they shall, in their uncontrolled discretion, select.

Fifth. In case of vacancies in the board of directors, due to resignation, death or other cause, the Trustees may make recommendations to the directors of the Society as to the persons to be elected to fill such vacancies to the end that the purposes of this agreement may be promptly and effectually accomplished.

Sixth. No vote shall be cast upon said stock for any purpose except with the unanimous approval of the Trustees, but the Trustees may empower any one of their number actually to cast their vote.

Seventh. Any Trustee may at any time resign by delivering to the other Trustees his resignation in writing. In case of the death or resignation of any Trustee, the vacancy shall forthwith be filled by an appointment made in writing by the remaining Trustees. The term "Trustees" whenever used herein shall include the parties of the second part, and their successors so appointed.

Eighth. The party of the first part shall be entitled to the dividends on the stock deposited by him under this agreement.

Ninth. This agreement shall continue in force for the full period authorized by section 20 of the General Corporation Law of the State of New York, viz.: five (5) years from the date hereof. It shall be continued thereafter so long as the Trustees shall deem advisable, and the party of the first part hereby agrees that, upon the request of the Trustees, he will execute an instrument continuing, for a further period of five (5) years, this agreement and the powers of the Trustees hereunder, including said power to require an extension hereof. This agreement may, however, be terminated by the Trustees in their discretion whenever in their opinion its purposes have been accomplished, or for any reason its termination is, in their opinion, advisable.

Tenth. Every other stockholder of the Society may transfer his stock to the Trustees, to be held subject to the provisions of this agreement, and thereupon may participate in the terms, conditions and privileges thereof.

IN WITNESS WHEREOF, the parties hereto have set their hands unto five originals hereof the day and the year first above mentioned.

THIS AGREEMENT, made and executed this day of , A. D. 19 , by and between the National Bread Company, a corporation duly organized under the laws of the State of New Jersey (hereinafter called the "Grantor"), party of the first part, and , a corporation duly organized under the laws of the State of , and having its place of business in the City of and State of (hereinafter called the "Grantee"), party of the second part, WITNESSETH:

First. That the said Grantor, for and in consideration of the sum of one dollar, to it in hand paid by the said Grantee, and twenty-five per cent. of the capital stock of said Grantee, receipt of which is hereby acknowledged, has granted, bargained and sold, and by these presents does grant, bargain and sell, unto the said Grantee and its successors, the exclusive right, license and privilege of using its Patented Mixing and Kneading Machines and Process for the Manufacture and Sale of Bread and Other Like Products, in the following-named territory, namely:

for the full term and life of any and all patents now owned, or which may hereafter be acquired, by said Grantor on said machines, or any improvements thereon, subject, however, to all the conditions, stipulations and restrictions in the use of the said license, machines and process hereinafter contained; the Grantor reserving and excepting from said grant the right to sell its said patented machines to any hospital, asylum, institution or prison situated within the limits of said territory.

And said Grantor agrees to supply all such mixing and kneading machines, and other apparatus covered by its patents, as may be requisite and necessary for the business of said corporation, from time to time, as required, and within sixty days after a demand and requisition in writing therefor, at a cost to said corporation not exceeding ten per cent. over the actual cost to said Grantor of manufacturing and delivering; and to furnish the Grantee promptly, when requested, all necessary expert aid and instruction in the installation and operation of all machinery supplied by the Grantor, at a cost to said Grantee of actual disbursements by the Grantor, including traveling expenses, employees' salaries and incidentals while so engaged.

Second. That the right and license to use said machines and process is hereby declared to be definitely limited to the Grantee and its successors within the above-mentioned territory, and to be indivisible, unassignable and inalienable, and neither the whole nor any fractional part thereof, nor any of said patented machinery, shall be sublet, transferred, sold, mortgaged or otherwise disposed of to any person, firm or corporation, either within or without said territory, at any time during said license period, without the written consent and agreement of said Grantor; and the sale of the products manufactured by said machines and process shall likewise be restricted to said territory; but nothing herein contained shall be construed to prevent the creation and establishment by said Grantee, within said territory, of as many plants or bakeries as may be deemed necessary for the development of its business, nor to prevent the sale and disposition of its property and franchises, excepting said machines and process and said grant, license and privilege, to any other firm or corporation, in good faith and for value.

Third. It is also provided and agreed that said Grantee shall not increase its issue of stock, whether preferred or common, without delivering to the Grantor its proportion thereof, in the ratio of its holdings to the original issue, and shall not encumber its property or assets by an issue of bonds, mortgages, certificates of indebtedness, or other obligations, creating any lien or priority against its property, without proffering to said Grantor, in exchange for its holdings of stock in said corporation, such proportion of the securities creating such lien or priority as said Grantor's holdings of stock bear to the entire outstanding issue of stock; said Grantor to determine its acceptance or rejection of said proffer within ten days after receiving same; but nothing herein contained shall be construed to interfere with, or prevent, the issue of notes, bills of exchange, drafts, or other like papers, in the usual and customary course of business.

Fourth. The Grantee covenants and agrees, at all times hereafter, to admit the validity of the letters patent for said machines, which are now owned or which may hereafter be acquired by the Grantor, and not to violate or infringe the same, or any of them, or to contest the validity or the scope of the claims thereof, or the title of the Grantor thereto, nor aid or encourage others in so doing, nor to manufacture, or cause to be manufactured, except with the Grantor's consent, any of the machinery covered by said patents.

Fifth. The Grantee further covenants to diligently prosecute, extend and develop the business of said corporation in said territory, and to keep its plant, or factory, in continuous operation, and not to permit the same to remain idle or inoperative for a longer period than three months in any one year, except by mutual consent, and to keep suitable and accurate records and books of account of the operations and financial condition of said corporation, and at all times afford said Grantor, or its authorized agents, free access thereto, and supply said Grantor, upon request, full and complete semi-annual statements of said operations and financial condition on forms to be supplied by the Grantor.

Sixth. It is expressly understood and agreed that if the Grantee herein shall violate any of the provisions of paragraphs two, three, four and five above, or shall cause, suffer or permit its plant or factory to remain idle or inoperative, excepting as above provided, or shall fail or refuse to give said Grantor, its agents or attorneys, access to its books and accounts, or to furnish said semi-annual statement at any time while said Grantor is the holder of bonds, stock or other securities issued by the Grantee, then the license and privilege hereby conveyed shall, after thirty days' notice and the failure of the Grantee within that time to correct and remedy any such violation of this agreement as may be complained of in said notice, immediately cease and determine and revert to said Grantor with the same force and effect as if this agreement had not been made.

Seventh. That the Grantor will, at its own cost and expense, defend and protect the Grantee in the exclusive use of said machines within the said territory against all infringers, licensees and others, and will at its own proper charge take such proceedings in law and in equity as may be necessary and proper to prevent and enjoin such infringement and to recover any damages which may be caused thereby, and to save the Grantee harmless from the result of any and all such acts on the part of any person or corporation whomsoever; and, in case of the failure of the Grantor to fulfill any of the obligations in this paragraph contained, the Grantee shall have the right and privilege of instituting any proceedings in law or in equity at its own cost and charges, and shall have the right to charge the same against the Grantor and to collect the same from it; provided, however, that the said Grantee shall first give thirty days' notice by letter duly registered and addressed to the Grantor at its office in the City of New York, making demand for compliance with the terms of this agreement on its part, before proceeding to exercise the rights hereby conferred on said Grantee. And the Grantor hereby warrants its title to the United States Patent of the said Mixing and Kneading Machine, numbered _____, issued on the _____ day of _____, 19____, to J. L., and the United States Patent for improvements in machines for Mixing and Kneading Dough or Analogous Materials, numbered _____ and issued on the _____ day of _____, 19____, to National Bread Company. And the Grantor further agrees to execute all licenses or other documents which may be necessary to vest in the Grantee the right to use the said patents, subject to the terms and conditions of this agreement, within the territory of the Grantee, and any other patents or improvements which may be made, whether upon the present mixing and kneading machines or upon any other mixing and kneading machine that may be acquired by the Grantor, and all rights under any such patents in which the Grantor may have such an interest as to enable it to license the Grantee.

IN WITNESS WHEREOF, the parties of the first and second parts have caused this agreement to be signed by their officers thereunto duly authorized, and their corporate seals to be affixed, and have executed these presents in duplicate, the day and year first above written.

The leased machinery shall not be transferred or delivered or sublet to any other person, partnership or corporation, and neither the lease nor the license hereby granted can be assigned by the Lessee by own act or by operation of law. If the Lessee becomes insolvent or bankrupt, or has a receiving order made against , or makes or executes any bill of sale, deed of trust or assignment for the benefit of creditors, or if a sale or lease or removal of the leased machinery, or any part thereof, without the consent in writing of the Lessor, be made or attempted, or if any distress or execution or attachment be levied thereon, or if the Lessee fails and refuses to pay the rentals and charges due hereunder, or observe and carry out the conditions, covenants and restrictions of this lease, then and in each such case this lease and license and any other lease or license then existing between the Lessor and the Lessee, whether as the result of assignment to the Lessor or otherwise, shall at the option of the Lessor cease and determine, and the possession of and full right to and control of all the leased machinery, and any machinery held by the Lessee under any other lease or license from the Lessor, whether as the result of assignment to the Lessor or otherwise, shall thereupon revert in the Lessor, free from all claims or demands whatsoever. The Lessor and its agents and employees shall at all times be given access to the leased machinery for the purpose of inspecting it, or watching its use and operation, or of altering, repairing, improving, or adding to it, or determining the nature or extent of its use, or retaking said leased machinery hereunder, and the Lessee shall afford all reasonable facilities therefor.

Two. The Lessee shall at all times and at own expense keep the leased machinery in good and efficient working order and condition, and shall not permit anyone to injure or deface or remove any plate, or dates, numbers, or other inscriptions now or hereafter impressed on or affixed to the leased machinery by the Lessor. The Lessee shall obtain from the Lessor exclusively and shall pay therefor, at the regular prices from time to time established by the Lessor, all the duplicate parts, extras, mechanisms and devices, of every kind needed or used in operating, repairing or renewing the leased machinery, and the same shall form part of the leased machinery, and the Lessee shall not otherwise make or allow to be made any addition, subtraction or alteration to, from, or in the leased machinery without the consent in writing of the Lessor, nor interfere with the proper operation of the same.

Three. The Lessee shall pay all taxes and assessments which shall be levied in respect to the leased machinery, or in respect to this lease and license or the right to payments hereunder, upon whomsoever assessed.

Four. The leased machinery shall be used only in the kneading of bread and other dough or bakery material in the factory or bakery of the Lessee, situated at _____ in _____ in the State of _____.

Five. The Lessee shall pay to the Lessor on the last day of each calendar month as rent or royalty the rental or royalty of fifty cents (50c.) per barrel for each barrel or part of barrel used, manufactured and prepared during the next preceding calendar month in any way, whether wholly or in part by the aid of the leased machinery or any part thereof; provided, however, that in all cases when the Lessee shall pay to the Lessor on or before the fifteenth day of the calendar month the rent or royalty due for the use of the leased machinery for the next preceding calendar month, the Lessor will, in consideration of such prompt payment, grant a discount of twenty per cent. (20%) from such rent or royalty due for such preceding calendar month.

Six. The Lessor may attach to the leased machinery, or any thereof, an indicator or indicators to register the number of revolutions or movements of any part or parts thereof, or the amount of work done by such leased machinery, and the Lessee shall not allow any person (other than the Lessor or its agents) to disturb or interfere with such indicator or indicators. In case any indicator thus attached shall from any cause cease to correctly indicate or register, or shall be disturbed or out of repair, or if the glass covering any such indicator shall be removed or broken or injured, then and as often as the same shall happen, the Lessee shall immediately by writing notify the Lessor, and at the same time explain the circumstances under which the same has happened. In case any such indicator ceases to indicate, or becomes or remains inaccurate, or the glass covering becomes or remains removed, broken or injured because of any fault of the Lessee, or anyone in _____ employ, or because of the failure of the Lessee to give promptly the notice hereinbefore provided for, then, without prejudice to any rights of the Lessor hereunder, the Lessee shall pay to the Lessor, as rent or royalty, fifty cents (50c.) per barrel for each barrel of flour or portion thereof, in the manufacture or manipulation of which the leased machinery or any part thereof shall have been used. The Lessee shall keep full and accurate accounts, independently of any indicators that may be placed upon the leased machinery, showing the number and amount of barrels of flour or portions thereof in the manufacture or manipulation of which the leased machinery or any part thereof shall have been used, and shall allow the Lessor at all times, by its agents or attorneys, to examine and to take copies of such books, accounts and entries of the Lessee as may serve to determine the total number of barrels of flour or portions thereof used or manipulated by the aid of the leased machinery or any part thereof, and the Lessee shall produce all such accounts and entries upon request. The Lessee shall require each of _____ operators upon the leased machinery, or any part thereof, to keep upon blanks or blank books to be furnished by the Lessor, accurate daily records of the number of barrels of flour or portions thereof in the using or manipulating of which _____ has used the leased machinery or any part thereof, and shall require _____ operators or workmen to sign such records, and if requested so to do by the Lessor, shall verify the same under oath, and shall also furnish any further information called for by such blanks or blank books; and the Lessee shall send to the office of the Lessor in the City of New York, on or before the fifth day of each calendar month the original records for the next preceding calendar month by operators, as above provided for; and, in case in any calendar month none of the leased machinery has been used, the Lessee shall notify the Lessor in writing of that fact, on or before the fifth day of the next succeeding calendar month.

The following agreements, stipulations and provisions are agreed to:

Seven. If at any time the Lessee shall fail or cease to use exclusively the machinery held by under lease from the Lessor, as herein provided, the Lessor, although it may have waived or ignored prior instances of such failure or cessation, may at its option terminate forthwith by notice in writing this lease and license, or any other lease and license of machines, machinery, or devices like those mentioned in the foregoing "Schedule of machines," or designed for similar purposes, then existing between the Lessor and the Lessee, whether as the result of assignment to the Lessor or otherwise; and the possession of and full right to and control of all such machines, machinery or devices held by the Lessee under lease or license from the Lessor or its assignor shall thereupon revert in the Lessor free from all claims and demands whatsoever.

Eight. This lease and license shall continue, unless sooner terminated by the Lessor because of breach thereof on the part of the Lessee, or otherwise as herein provided, for seventeen years from the date hereof. But if any breach or default shall be made in the observance of any one or more of the conditions herein contained, or contained in any other lease or license agreement subsisting between the Lessor and Lessee, whether as the result of assignment to the Lessor or otherwise, and expressed to be obligatory upon the Lessee, the Lessor shall have the right by notice in writing to the Lessee to determine forthwith this lease and license, and also if the Lessor so elects any other lease or license agreements then in force between the Lessor and the Lessee, whether as the result of assignment to the Lessor or otherwise, and this notwithstanding that previous breaches or defaults may have been unnoticed, waived or condoned by or on behalf of the Lessor. If, upon the expiration of the full term of this lease, the Lessor does not request the return of the leased machinery, then the leased machinery shall continue to be held and used under and in accordance with the conditions of this lease and license, which shall thereupon be extended indefinitely as to term; but thereafter either the Lessee or the Lessor, upon sixty days' notice in writing to the other, may terminate this lease and license, whereupon the leased machinery shall be delivered forthwith to the Lessor, as herein provided. Upon the expiration or termination of this lease and license, or any extension thereof by notice or by reason of any default on the part of the Lessee, as to the terms of this lease and license or any other lease or license from the Lessor, or otherwise as herein provided, the Lessee shall forthwith deliver the leased machinery to the Lessor at its office or factory in good order, reasonable wear and tear alone excepted; and the Lessee for himself, his heirs, executors and administrators, successors and assigns, hereby grants to the Lessor, its successors and assigns, full right, power and authority to enter upon the premises and into any factory, room, or any place where the leased machinery, or any part thereof, may be, and take possession thereof, and take away the same; and the Lessee shall have no claim for the repayment of any sum or sums, or any part thereof, which shall have paid as consideration for the grant of this lease and license, rent or royalty, or otherwise in respect to the leased machinery.

Nine. A notice in writing, signed by the president, a vice-president or treasurer of the Lessor, or by any assignee of the Lessor's rights hereunder, and posted by prepaid letter, addressed to the Lessee or delivered at usual or last-known place of abode or business, that the lease and license hereby granted is determined or shall be determined at the expiration of a certain period, shall be a sufficient determination of the lease and license from the time of posting or delivering such notice, or from the expiration of the period therein mentioned, as the case may be. Any termination of this lease and license shall not release the Lessee from obligation to pay rent or royalty for the period prior to such termination, and shall be without prejudice to any other rights or remedies which the Lessor may have for violation of contract, use of machines without right, or use of patented inventions without license.

Ten. The Lessee admits the validity of each and every of the letters patent and trade marks or copyrights, of the United States of America owned by the Lessor or under which it is licensed, or any of the inventions of which are or hereafter may be embodied in the leased machinery, or used by the Lessor in its business. The Lessee also agrees that will not directly or indirectly infringe or contest the validity of, or the title of the lessor to, any of the patents referred to in the "Schedule of Patents" hereto annexed. The termination or cesser of this lease and license from any cause whatever shall not in any way affect the provisions of this clause, or release or discharge the Lessee from the admission and estoppel herein set forth.

Eleven. None of the terms or conditions of this lease and license shall be held to have been waived by any act or knowledge of the Lessor, its agents or employees, but only by an instrument in writing, signed by the president, a vice-president or the treasurer of the Lessor.

Twelve. The term "Lessor" shall include the said National Bread Company and its successors and assigns. All the conditions and agreements binding on the Lessee shall be binding on and enforceable against legal representatives, successors and assigns.

In the construction of this instrument, words relating to the number and gender of the parties shall be read according to their real number and gender.

IN WITNESS WHEREOF, the parties hereto have duly executed this instrument in duplicate, the day and year first above written.

THIS AGREEMENT made at Boston in the State of Massachusetts this day of , 19 , between the U. S. M. Company, a corporation organized under the laws of the State of New Jersey, having an office in said Boston, hereinafter referred to as the Lessor, of the one part, and of in the State of , hereinafter referred to as the Lessee of the other part:

WITNESSETH, the Lessor in consideration of the covenants and agreements on the part of the Lessee herein contained, does hereby lease to and license the Lessee under its patent to use the machine or machines of the "Good-year Department" of the Lessor designated by number or numbers in the following schedule, viz.:

SCHEDULE OF MACHINES.

and any duplicate parts, extras, mechanism and devices relating thereto or used in connection, now attached to or delivered with the said designated machine or machines, or which may at any time hereafter be obtained from the Lessor, or be added thereto, by or with the consent of the Lessor (the whole of which machine or machines, duplicate parts, extras, mechanism and devices held by the Lessee under these presents, whether now or hereafter delivered, to or in the possession of the Lessee, is hereinafter referred to as the "leased machinery,") subject to the conditions hereinafter contained; and the Lessor hereby grants to the Lessee a license to use in connection with welted boots, shoes or other footwear made by the Lessee, the welts of which have been sewed to their uppers wholly by Goodyear Welt and Turn Shoe Machines or by Goodyear Universal Inseam Sewing Machines hereby leased or now held by the Lessee under lease from the Lessor heretofore executed, and the outsoles of which have been stitched to their welts wholly by Goodyear Outsole Rapid Lockstitch Machines hereby leased or now held by the Lessee under lease from the Lessor heretofore executed, the trade name or trade mark "Goodyear Welt" and to use, in connection with turned boots, shoes, or other footwear made by the Lessee the soles of which have been attached to their uppers wholly by the use of Goodyear Welt and Turn Shoe Machines or Goodyear Universal Inseam Sewing Machines hereby leased or now held by the Lessee under lease from the Lessor heretofore executed, the trade name or trade mark "Goodyear Turn."

And that the following are agreed to as conditions of this agreement, all of which the Lessee covenants and agrees to keep and perform:

One. The leased machinery shall at all times remain and be the sole and exclusive property of the Lessor and the Lessee shall have no right of property therein, but only the right to use the same, upon the conditions herein contained. The leased machinery shall be used only by the Lessee himself or by operatives in his direct employ, and only in the factory now occupied by him at _____ in the State of _____ unless the lessor shall by an instrument in writing, signed by its president, vice-president or treasurer, authorize the Lessee to remove the leased machinery and to use the same elsewhere. The leased machinery shall not be transferred or delivered on sublet to any other person or corporation and neither this agreement nor the lease nor the license hereby granted can be assigned by the Lessee by his own act or by operation of law. If the Lessee becomes insolvent or bankrupt, or has a receiving order made against him, or makes or executes any bill of sale, deed of trust or assignment for the benefit of his creditors, or if a sale, mortgage, lease or unauthorized removal of the leased machinery, or any part thereof, be made or attempted, or if any distress or execution or attachment be levied thereon, then and in each such case any or all leases of or licenses to use machinery then existing between the Lessor and the Lessee, whether as the result of assignment to the Lessor or otherwise, shall at the option of the Lessor cease and determine, and the possession of and full right to and control of machinery of the Lessor, the leases or licenses of which are so terminated, shall thereupon revert in the Lessor free from all claims and demands whatsoever. The Lessor and its agents and employees shall at all times be given access to the leased machinery for the purpose of inspecting it or watching its use and operation or of altering, repairing, improving or adding to it, or determining the nature or extent of its use, and the Lessee shall afford all reasonable facilities therefor.

Two. The Lessee shall at all times and at his own expense keep the leased machinery in good and sufficient working order and condition, and shall not permit any one to injure or deface or remove any plate, or dates, numbers or other inscriptions now or hereafter impressed on or affixed to the leased machinery by the Lessor. The Lessee shall obtain from the Lessor exclusively, and shall pay therefor at the regular prices from time to time established by the Lessor, all the duplicate parts, extras, mechanism and devices, of every kind needed or used in operating, repairing or renewing the leased machinery, and the same shall form part of the leased machinery, and the Lessee shall not otherwise make or allow to be made any addition, subtraction or alteration to, from or in the leased machinery nor interfere with the proper operation of the same.

Three. The leased machinery shall at all times, until the expiration or termination of the lease thereof and license to use the same hereby granted and the re-delivery of the leased machinery into the possession of the Lessor as hereinafter provided, be held at the sole risk of the Lessee from injury, loss or destruction, and in case any welting or stitching or sewing machine or machines thereby leased shall be lost or destroyed by fire or otherwise before such expiration or termination and re-delivery, the Lessee shall pay to the Lessor in respect to each such machine so lost or destroyed the sum of two hundred and twenty-five (225) dollars as partial reimbursement to the Lessor for such loss or destruction and the Lessee shall forthwith return whatever remains of all the machinery so lost or destroyed to the Lessor at Beverly, Mass.

Four. The Lessee shall pay all taxes and assessments which shall be assessed in respect to the leased machinery or other machinery of the Lessor held by the Lessee under lease or license upon whomsoever assessed. In case at any time any unapportioned tax or assessment shall be assessed to the Lessor in respect in part but not wholly to machinery of the Lessor in the possession of the Lessee the Lessee shall pay to the Lessor such proportionate part of the total amount of said unapportioned tax or assessment as the fair valuation, to be determined by the Lessor, of said machinery of the Lessor in the possession of the Lessee bears to the fair valuation to be determined by the Lessor of all machinery (excepting machinery, if any, in the Lessor's own possession) in respect to which the unapportioned tax or assessment has been assessed; provided, however, that if such unapportioned tax or assessment include any tax or assessment in respect to tangible property in the Lessor's own possession the amount thereof, based at the established rate, upon the fair valuation, to be determined by the Lessor, of such property, shall first be deducted and the Lessee shall pay his proportionate part as aforesaid of the balance only of said unapportioned tax or assessment after such deduction has been made. All taxes or assessments in respect to leases, licenses or agreements covering machinery, or the right of payments thereunder shall be construed, for the purposes of this article, to be assessed in respect to the machinery itself.

Five. The leased machinery shall be used only in the manufacture of boots, shoes and other footwear made by the Lessee known in the trade as "Goodyear Welts" which have been or are to be welted wholly by Goodyear Welt and Turn Shoe Machines or Goodyear Universal Inseam Sewing Machines held by the Lessee under lease from the Lessor, and the soles of which have been or are to be attached to their welts by Goodyear Outsole Rapid Lockstitch Machines held by the Lessee under lease from the Lessor or in the manufacture of boots, shoes or other footwear made by the Lessee known in the trade as "Goodyear Turn" the soles of which have been or are to be attached to their uppers wholly by Goodyear Welt and Turn Shoe Machines or Goodyear Universal Inseam Sewing Machines held by the Lessee under lease from the Lessor. The Lessee shall not represent or sell as "Goodyear Welts" any boots, shoes or other footwear which are not welted wholly by the use of Goodyear Welt and Turn Shoe Machines or Goodyear Universal Inseam Sewing Machines held under lease from the Lessor or the soles of which are not attached to their welts wholly by the use of Goodyear Outsole Rapid Lockstitch Machines held under lease from the Lessor, or as "Goodyear Turns" any boots, shoes or other footwear the soles of which are not attached to their uppers wholly by the use of Goodyear Welt and Turn Shoe Machines or Goodyear Universal Inseam Sewing Machines held under lease from the Lessor. The Lessee shall use the leased machinery to its full capacity in the manufacture of "Goodyear Welts" and "Goodyear Turns" limited only by the number of welted and turned boots, shoes and other footwear made by him, and in case at any time the Lessee has more work of the kind which can be performed by the Goodyear Welt and Turn Shoe Machines, Goodyear Universal Inseam Sewing Machines or Goodyear Outsole Rapid Lockstitch Machines of the Lessor than the machines for doing such work which the Lessee has under lease from the Lessor are sufficient to perform, then the Lessee shall take from the Lessor under the printed form of lease and license agreement then in use by the Lessor for machines for doing such work, a sufficient additional number of machines to perform all of such work.

Six. The Lessee shall pay to the Lessor throughout the full term of this agreement the respective amounts set forth in the following schedule in respect to each pair of welted boots, shoes or other footwear or portions thereof, manufactured or prepared by or for the Lessee, which shall have been welted in whole or in part or the soles of which shall have been in whole or in part attached to welts by the use of any welting or stitching or sewing machinery and in respect to each part of "turned" boots, shoes or other footwear or portions thereof, manufactured or prepared by or for the Lessee, the soles of which shall have been sewed or attached to their uppers in whole or in part by the use of any sewing or stitching machinery, viz:—

SCHEDULE OF PAYMENT PER PAIR.

Such payments shall be made on the last day of each calendar month in respect to all such boots, shoes and other footwear manufactured or prepared by or for the Lessee during the next preceding month, provided, however, that in all cases when the Lessee shall pay to the Lessor on or before the fifteenth day of the calendar month the amount due pursuant to the schedule in this article hereof contained for the next preceding calendar month, the Lessor will in consideration of such prompt payment grant a discount of fifty per cent. from the amount so due for such preceding calendar month. The Lessee, however, guarantees that the payments made in accordance with the foregoing Schedule of Payments under this agreement, in respect to boots, shoes or other footwear operated upon by the welting, stitching or sewing machines hereby leased (after deducting all abatements) shall amount in each calendar year to at least fifteen dollars ($15.00) for each calendar month for each welting or stitching or sewing machine hereby leased, and at the end of each calendar year the Lessee shall pay to the Lessor the amount, if any, by which the total of such payments for said year is less than such guaranteed amount. All payments and the guarantee in this agreement provided for are independent of and in addition to all payments and guarantees provided for in any other leases or licenses or agreements between the Lessor and the Lessee, provided, however, that (excepting in so far as is required by the guarantees herein contained in other lease and license agreements between the Lessor and the Lessee) in case under any other "Goodyear Department" lease and license agreement between the Lessor and the Lessee and covering one or more Goodyear Welt and Turn Shoe Machines, Goodyear Universal Inseam Sewing Machines or Goodyear Outsole Rapid Lockstitch Machines, the Lessee shall have paid to the Lessor the amount set forth in the Schedule of Payments in such lease and license agreement contained in respect to any pair of boots, shoes or other footwear, then the Lessee shall be relieved from said payment hereunder in respect to that pair of boots, shoes or other footwear.

Seven. The Lessor may attach to the leased machinery or any thereof, an indicator or indicators to register the number of revolutions or movements of any part or parts thereof, and the Lessee shall not allow any person (other than the Lessor or its agents) to disturb or interfere with such indicator or indicators. In case any indicator thus attached shall from any cause cease to correctly indicate or register or shall be disturbed or out of repair or if the glass covering any such indicator shall be removed or broken or injured, then and as often as the same shall happen the Lessee shall immediately by writing notify the Lessor and at the same time explain the circumstances under which the same has happened. In case any such indicator ceases to indicate, or becomes or remains inaccurate, or the glass covering becomes or remains removed, broken or injured, because of any fault of the Lessee or any one in his employ, or because of the failure of the Lessee to give promptly the notice hereinbefore provided for, then, without prejudice to any other rights or remedies of the Lessor, the Lessee shall pay the Lessor, without the right to any discount, eight cents per pair for each pair of boots, shoes or other footwear, or portions thereof, in the manufacture of which the leased machinery or any part thereof shall have been used. The Lessee shall keep full and accurate accounts, independently of any indicators that may be placed upon the leased machinery, showing the number and kind of boots, shoes and other footwear or portions thereof manufactured or prepared by or for the Lessee which have been welted in whole or in part or the soles of which have been in whole or in part attached to welts by the use of welting or stitching or sewing machinery, and of turned boots, shoes or other footwear or portions thereof manufactured or prepared by or for the Lessee, the soles of which have been sewed or attached to their uppers in whole or in part by the use of sewing, or stitching machinery and shall allow the Lessor at all times by its agents or attorneys to examine and to take copies of such accounts and entries of the Lessee as may serve to determine the total number of such boots, shoes or other footwear, or portions thereof; and the Lessee shall produce all such accounts and entries upon request. The Lessee shall require each of his operators upon the leased machinery or any part thereof to keep upon blanks or blank books to be furnished by the Lessor accurate daily records of the number and kind of boots, shoes and other footwear, or portions thereof, in the manufacture or preparation of which the leased machinery or any part thereof has been used, and shall require his operators to sign such records, and, if requested so to do by the Lessor, shall certify the same under oath. The Lessee shall send to the office of the Lessor in Boston, on or before the fifth day of each calendar month, original records for the next preceding calendar month kept by his operators as above provided for, and in case, in any calendar month, any one or more of the machines hereby leased has been entirely idle, the Lessee on or before the fifth day of the next succeeding calendar month shall send to the office of the Lessor in Boston the blank for said month for each such idle machine marked "Not in use" and signed by the Lessee. The Lessee shall also furnish any further information which may be called for in relation to the leased machinery or the use thereof.

And that the following stipulations and provisions are agreed to:

Eighth. If, at any time, the Lessee shall fail or cease to use exclusively welt sewing and outsole stitching machinery held by him under lease from the Lessor in the manufacture of all welted boots, shoes or other footwear made by or for him, and welts or soles of which are sewed, stitched or attached by the aid of machinery, or shall fail or cease to use exclusively turn sewing machinery held by him under lease from the Lessor in the manufacture of all turned boots, shoes or other footwear made by or for him, the soles of which are sewed or attached by the aid of machinery, the Lessor, although it may have waived or ignored prior instances of such failure or cessation, may at its option terminate forthwith by notice in writing any or all leases of or licenses to use machinery then existing between the Lessor and the Lessee, whether as the result of assignment to the Lessor or otherwise and the possession of and full right to and control of all machinery the lease or license of which is so terminated, shall thereupon revert in the Lessor free from all claims and demands whatsoever.

Nine. The term of this agreement shall be seventeen years from the date hereof. The lease of the leased machinery and license to use the same hereby granted shall continue, unless sooner terminated by the Lessor, as in this agreement provided, for the full term of this agreement, but if any breach or default shall be made in the observance of any one or more of the conditions in this agreement contained or contained in any other lease or license agreement subsisting between the Lessor and the Lessee, whether as the result of assignment to the Lessor or otherwise and expressed to be obligatory upon the Lessee, the Lessor shall have the right by notice in writing to the Lessee to terminate forthwith any or all leases of or licenses to use machinery then in force between the Lessor and the Lessee, whether as the result of assignment to the Lessor or otherwise, and this notwithstanding that previous breaches or defaults may have been unnoticed, waived or condoned by or on behalf of the lessor. If, upon the expiration of the full term of this agreement, the lessor does not request the return of the leased machinery, then the leased machinery shall continue to be held and used under and in accordance with the conditions, stipulations and provisions in this agreement contained and this agreement and the lease and license herein contained shall thereupon be extended indefinitely as to term; but thereafter either the Lessee or the Lessor, upon sixty days' notice in writing to the other, may terminate this agreement and the lease and license herein contained, whereupon the leased machinery shall be delivered forthwith to the Lessor, as hereinafter provided. Upon the expiration of this agreement or any extension thereof or the termination of the lease and license herein contained, the Lessee shall forthwith deliver the leased machinery to the Lessor at Beverly, Mass., in good order, reasonable wear and tear alone excepted, and shall thereupon pay to the Lessor without prejudice to any other rights or remedies of the Lessor such sums as may be necessary to put the leased machinery in suitable order and condition to lease to another Lessee. The Lessee, for himself, his heirs, executors, and administrators, successors and assigns, hereby grants to the Lessor, its successors and assigns, full right, power and authority upon such expiration or termination and without prejudice to any other rights or remedies of the Lessor to enter upon the premises and into any factory room, or any place where the leased machinery, or any part thereof, may be, and take possession thereof, and take away the same; and in no case shall the Lessee have any claim for the repayment or offset of any sum or sums, or any part thereof, which shall have been paid under this agreement or in respect to the lease or license herein contained or in anywise in respect to the leased machinery.

Ten. Upon the expiration of this agreement or any extension thereof, or the termination of the lease and license hereby granted, the Lessee in addition to all other payments in this agreement provided for, and without prejudice to any other rights or remedies of the Lessor, shall pay to the Lessor in respect to each welting or stitching or sewing machine hereby leased the sum of one hundred and fifty (150) dollars as partial reimbursement to the Lessor for deterioration of the leased machinery, expenses in connection with the installation thereof and instruction of operators.

Eleven A notice in writing, signed by the president, a vice-president, the treasurer or the assistant treasurer of the Lessor or by any assignee of the Lessor's rights hereunder and posted by prepaid letter, addressed to the Lessee or delivered at his usual or last known place of abode or business, that the lease and license hereby granted is terminated or shall be terminated at the expiration of a certain period, shall be a sufficient termination of the lease and license from the time of posting or delivering such notice, or from the expiration of the period therein mentioned, as the case may be. Any termination of the lease and license hereby granted shall be without prejudice to any rights or remedies which the Lessor may have for violation of contract, use of machines without right, use of patented inventions without license, or otherwise.

Twelve The Lessee admits the validity for the full term expressed in the grant thereof (and every extension and renewal thereof) of each and every of the letters patent of the United States of America, owned by the Lessor or under which it is licensed, any of the inventions of which are or hereafter may be embodied in the leased machinery, and the validity of and title of the Lessor to the exclusive ownership of the trade names or trade marks "Goodyear Welt" and "Goodyear Turn" used in connection with boots, shoes and other footwear. The Lessee also agrees that he will not directly or indirectly infringe or contest the validity for the full term expressed in the grant thereof, or of any extension or renewal thereof, of any of the letters patent referred to in the "Schedule of Patents" hereto annexed or the title of the Lessor thereto and that he will not directly or indirectly infringe or contest the validity of or the title of the Lessor to the said trade names or trade marks "Goodyear Welt" or "Goodyear Turn." The expiration of this agreement or any extension thereof or the termination or cesser of the lease and license hereby granted shall not in any way affect the provisions of this clause, or release or discharge the Lessee from the admissions and estoppels herein set forth.

Thirteen. None of the conditions, stipulations or provisions of this agreement shall be held to have been waived by any act or knowledge of the Lessor, its agents or employees, but only by an instrument in writing, signed by the president, a vice-president or the treasurer of the Lessor.

Fourteen. The term "Lessor" shall include the U. S. M. Company and its successors and assigns. All the conditions, stipulations and provisions binding on the Lessee shall be binding on and enforceable against his legal representatives. In the construction of this instrument, words relating to the number and gender of the parties shall be read according to their real number and gender.

COVENANTS.

THE word covenant, in its most general signification, means any kind of promise or contract, whether it be made in writing or by parol. In a more technical sense, a covenant is an agreement between two or more persons, entered into in writing and under seal, whereby either party stipulates for the truth of certain facts, or promises to give or do something to or for the other, or to abstain from the performance of something. No particular form of words is necessary to make a covenant; but any words which manifest the intention of the parties, in respect to the subject-matter of the contract, are sufficient.

An express covenant, or a covenant in fact, is one expressly agreed between the parties and inserted in the deed. To create an express covenant, the formal word "covenant" is not indispensably requisite. The words, "I oblige," or, "bind myself," or, "I agree," are held to be covenants; and so are the usual words of a bond. An implied covenant is one which the law intends and implies, though it be not expressed in words. In some of the states, covenants for title, are implied in deeds; in others, no implied covenants are allowed.

See the chapter on DEEDS. There are some words which, of themselves, do not import an express covenant, yet, being made use of in certain contracts, have a similar operation, and are called covenants in law. They are as effectually binding on the parties as if expressed in the most unequivocal terms. If a lessor demise and grant to his lessee a house or lands for a certain term, the law will imply as covenant on the part of the lessor, that the lessee shall, during the term, quietly enjoy the same against all incumbrances. And the words "yielding and paying" in a lease, imply a covenant on the part of the lessee that he will pay the rent.

The distinction between personal covenants (as of title, incumbrances, etc.), and real covenants (as of quiet enjoyment, further assurance, etc.), is to be carefully observed. Personal covenants may only be enforced by the immediate grantee, real covenants by subsequent grantees also.

It is usual in covenants to name the representatives of the parties upon whom, or in whose favor, they operate. Thus, in a covenant to pay money, the covenantor usually declares that he binds himself, his heirs, executors, and administrators. So in a covenant regarding lands, the covenantor binds himself, his heirs and assigns. But these words are not now usually essential in conveyances in most of the states; for the statutes usually regulate the liability of heirs and personal representatives for the debts of their ancestors; and in such case, the frame of the covenant cannot enlarge their liability, nor will the omission to mention them exonerate them.

The law in regard to covenants relating to lands is now to be found largely in the statute law of the several states. This law has been fully digested in the chapter on DEEDS, which should be consulted in regard to the law in each state. Short forms of covenants are now very generally provided for under the statute laws.

CHAPTER XXII.

DEBTOR AND CREDITOR.

A LETTER OF LICENSE is a written promise by creditors that they will give their debtor time for payment, and will not molest him meanwhile. A composition is an agreement to accept less than the sums due them respectively. It usually includes the substance of a letter of license.

Creditors who unite in such agreements are regarded as engaging not only with the debtor, but with each other. But any one who has signed may openly withdraw his assent, with the consent of the debtor, without the concurrence of the other creditors, before the accord has been fully executed.

Any secret arrangement by one of them with the debtor to secure an advantage over the others, renders the contract a fraud upon the others, and avoids it. Creditors first signing such an instrument, usually do so upon the expectation that others will also sign. If this is intended to be a condition, it should be expressly declared to be such at the time of executing and delivering the paper; and the most convenient way is to insert a clause to that effect as in Form 770 or any one may prefix such a condition to his signature, as in Form 432.

General terms in a letter of license or composition deed, extending to all the demands of the signers, are to be deemed restrained by sums set opposite their names, so as to operate only on the debts so specified. Hence, if it is intended to apply only to the debt specified, this intent should be expressed.

creditor, if known; and if not known, the fact to be stated; the sum owing to each creditor, and the nature of each debt or demand, whether on written security, account, or otherwise; the true cause and consideration of indebtedness in each case, and the place where it accrued; and a full and true inventory of all the estate, both real and personal, in law and equity, of the said Y. Z.; of the incumbrances existing thereon; and of all the books, vouchers, and securities relating thereto.

III. And he further covenants and agrees as aforesaid to manage and collect his assets, and to carry on his said business faithfully and diligently for the purposes of these presents, under the direction and control of the parties of the first part, as they may by their said committee, or otherwise, direct, according to the true intent and purpose of these presents.

IV. And he further covenants and agrees as aforesaid, that after payment of just and necessary legal expenses, and the expenses of conducting said business (including a commission of per cent. upon the net proceeds as a compensation for the committee hereinafter provided for), and also after reserving to said Y. Z. so much as may be necessary for his reasonable support, which is not to exceed the rate of dollars per month, nor to exceed the sum of dollars in any one month, he will, subject as aforesaid, pay over and distribute the proceeds of said assets and business, for and towards payment and satisfaction of the sums the said Y. Z. owes as aforesaid unto us the said respective creditors, pro rata (specific liens, however, already secured by any creditors, to be first discharged out of the property which is bound by such liens).

V. And the party of the second part hereby further covenants and agrees as aforesaid, that he will not, during such time, make any assignment or transfer of any of his property, with any preference for any creditor; that he will keep just and true accounts of all his transactions, subject at all times to the inspection of the parties of the first part and their said committee, and will render to the said committee, once in each , a statement of his accounts, showing [here specify what is desired]; which accounts, as well as the one hereinbefore provided for, shall be verified by him on oath, if so required.

VI. And he further covenants and agrees as aforesaid, that he will not, during the period contemplated by these presents, indorse or accept for accommodation, or become surety in anywise for any person, or voluntarily incur any liability except in the course of his said business, and will not enter upon or undertake any other business or enterprise whatever.

VII. And the said party of the second part further covenants and agrees as aforesaid, that he, the said Y. Z., his heirs, executors, and administrators, shall and will, well and truly, pay or cause to be paid unto all and every the said creditors, parties hereto, their respective executors, administrators, partners, or assigns, or other person or persons by them respectively authorized to receive the same, their full and whole debts and demands, at or before the expiration of the said term of years, in the manner hereinbefore appointed for payment thereof, and according to the true intent and meaning of these presents.

VIII. And for the purposes aforesaid, the said parties of the first part have appointed and hereby do appoint A. B. and E. F. their committee, as their agents and attorneys, to act until otherwise ordered, or until others are appointed in their place, by the parties of the first part, and with full power and authority to do, direct, and assent to all and any acts, matters, and things whatsoever, relative to the matters or things aforesaid, as they, in their discretion, shall at any time and from time to time hereafter think fit and expedient, as fully as the parties of the first part might do if personally present.

IX. And such committee are also empowered to nominate and appoint one or more clerks, or other persons, to assist the said Y. Z. in the management of his said trade or business, at such salary or wages as they shall think fit; and are also empowered to give bail, or other security, or cause it to be given, if the said Y. Z. or his property shall be arrested, attached, or taken under process of law by any of his creditors, or persons claiming so to be; and the said committee may contest, or otherwise act concerning the debt or debts of any such creditor or claimants, at the expense of the estate and effects of the said Y. Z., as they shall think fit and necessary for the purposes aforesaid.

X. And it is hereby further covenanted and agreed, by and between the parties hereto, that if, by reason of any unforeseen cause, not wilfully occasioned by the said Y. Z., any delay shall take place in the final settlement of his affairs, during his lifetime, so as to prevent the several creditors, parties hereto, from receiving the full amount of their respective debts, at or before the expiration of the said term of years, hereby limited for winding up the concerns of the said Y. Z., and for payment of his creditors in manner aforesaid, then and in such case it shall be lawful for the said committee, and they are hereby fully authorized and empowered, if they shall think proper, without any further consent of the said creditors than is hereby given, to prolong or extend the said term for a period not exceeding months, to be computed from the expiration of the said term, by an indorsement under the hands of the said committee being made upon these presents to that effect, and thereupon the said committee shall forthwith notify said parties of the first part of such extension; and that thereupon all and every the said creditors, parties hereto, their executors, administrators, partners, and assigns, and the said party of the second part, and his heirs, executors, and administrators, shall continue to be bound by the covenants and agreements herein contained, in the same manner, for such further period, to all intents and purposes, as if the whole term had been originally limited for that purpose.

XI. Provided always, nevertheless, and these presents are upon this express condition, that if the said Y. Z. shall die within the period aforesaid, or if he shall make default in performance of either of the covenants or agreements hereinbefore contained on his part to be performed, or in case any of the creditors of the said Y. Z. whose debts respectively exceed the sum of dollars (except only such of them as having other securities shall choose to rely thereon), shall not duly execute or otherwise accede to these presents [or, if all the intended parties are named in the caption, say, or in case any of the hereinbefore named parties of the first part shall fail to execute these presents] within months next after the date hereof, then, and in either of the said cases, this indenture, and everything herein contained, so far as the same respectively tends to restrain the said creditors from suing for and recovering his, her, or their respective debts, within the time aforesaid, shall be absolutely void.

IN WITNESS [etc., as in Form 768].
